"The service members we honor today loved peace. Willingly, without thought of compensation, they turned their backs on material things to defend a thing more precious: the right of people everywhere to live at peace determine their own future."

"We enjoy the freedom to gather here today because of the sacrifices of our veterans. We are free to do as we want, to think and act as we wish,

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Low Mortgage Rates Boost Home Sales 12.1%

Favorable mortgage rates throughout the first three months of 1996 and relatively stable home prices over the past year detached single-family home sales up 12.1 percent in Massachusetts during the first quarter of the year compared to the same period in 1995.

Condo sales also increased 21.8 percent between January and March 1996 and the same quarter last year, according to a report issued recently by the Massachusetts Association of Realtors (MAR).

"The housing market has gotten off to a strong start this year largely because interest rates fell to a 23-month low in January," said MAR President Laura E. Shifrin. "The rough winter we had normally would have made for a quiet first quarter, but with 30-year mortgage rates averaging one and one-half points lower this year (7.40 percent in first quarter '96 versus 8.89 for first quarter '95), sales activity has been steady and strong in most areas of the state since the first of the year."

The data from the MAR report shows that 6,879 detached single-family homes were sold in the Bay State during the first quarter of 1996 versus 6,139 during the same period one year ago. Additionally, the number of condominiums sold increased from 1,101 during the first quarter of 1995 to 1,341 during the same quarter this year. By month, detached single-family home sales rose 12 percent in January and 19 percent in February over the same month a year ago, but declined 4 percent in March, while condo sales were flat in February, but increased significantly in January and March.

The slight decrease in detached home sales during March could be the result of an increase of about two-thirds of a point in the fixed-rate mortgage sale between January and March, but more likely it's the result of low inventory, noted Shifrin.

"The strong sales activity early in the year, plus a continuing reluctance on the part of some homeowners with septic systems to put their home on the market, has left many communities with a shortage of housing stock to meet the current demand," she said. "Inventory levels should improve as the weather does, but Title 5 will continue to impact the market in non-sewered communities."

As of the end of March, the number of single-family homes for sale statewide had declined 7.5 percent versus the same period in 1995, from 37,655 last March to 34,829 this year.

Regionally, sales of detached single-family homes increased in every area of the state except the West, where the effects of Title 5 have been more pronounced, resulting in a 15.7 percent decline in sales. Sales growth was greatest in the Southeast region, where closings increased 29.3 percent in the first quarter versus the same period in 1995, following by greater Boston (+21.7 percent), the Northeast (+17.6 percent), Cape Cod and Islands (+13.8 percent), Central region (+11 percent), and South Shore (+4.5 percent). Sharp sales gains also were recorded in the condo market during the first quarter, with increases ranging from 6.5 percent in the Northeast to 58 percent on Cape Cod and the Islands. Only in the Southeast were sales off, declining by four units.

"Today's buyers realize that with interest rates edging up modestly and market listings running at very low levels, waiting a few months to purchase a home can often mean paying a higher selling price," Shifrin said. "In the current market, properly priced homes are attracting multiple offers, and many are selling for the full asking price."

The MAR report found that the statewide average for detached single-family homes during the first three months of this year was $177,503, an increase of 2.5 percent above the 1995 first quarter average price of $173,240. In addition, the statewide average selling price of a condominium has risen 6.9 percent in the past year, rising from an average of $106,263 in the first quarter one year ago to an average selling price of $113,612 between January and March 1996. The increases mark the 12th consecutive quarter in which the statewide average selling price for single-family homes has increased over the same three-month period the previous year.

Regionally, the average price for detached single-family homes improved by a healthy margin on Cape Cod and the Islands (+11.9 percent) and in the Southeast (+8.4 percent) and West (+5.8 percent), while rising modestly on the South Shore (+1.4 percent) and falling slightly elsewhere. Meanwhile, in the condo market, average selling prices were up sharply in the first quarter in the Southeast (+30.5 percent), West (+22.8), and greater Boston (+9.3 percent), but declined in the remaining four regions of the state.

"The low interest rates prevalent during the first quarter gave home buyers the opportunity to purchase more home for their money, and many took advantage of this chance to move up or buy a larger home," Shifrin said. "In fact, the drop of 1 1/2 points in the 30-year fixed-rate mortgage rate between the first quarter of 1996 in the same period last year."

QUINCY FAMILY BUSINESSES ASK FOR YOUR SUPPORT IN THEIR FIGHT AGAINST 'SITE PLAN REVIEW'

An amendment has been presented before the City Council which will require a business owner to have a special hearing for all development in excess of 5,000 square feet. There are already existing city boards that perform these duties very efficiently. We feel that this restriction is unfair and will limit the future growth of family businesses. While many companies such as General Dynamics, Procter & Gamble and Pneumatic Scale have come and gone, family businesses have persisted and succeeded in this city.

Please join us in this lobbying effort to the City Council to defeat the 'site plan review' proposal.

Church Leader Challenges Students To Serve Humankind

ENC Graduates 210 At 74th Commencement

Eastern Nazarene College conferred 210 graduate and undergraduate degrees at the college's 74th commencement exercises Monday.

The graduates, including 31 from Quincy, heard Dr. James Diehl, general superintendent of the Nazarene, encourage them to follow the example of Jesus by taking up the towel of servanthood. He entitled his address, "The Cross and the Towel."

Diehl, one of six persons who make up the highest level of leadership within the Nazarene denomination, presented his theme from the story of Jesus who took a basin and towel and washed the feet of the disciples shortly before his crucifixion. He explained that in ancient days the roads were made of dirt and everyone wore sandals. It was normally the responsibility of servants to wash the feet of guests. Jesus assumed the role of the servant and washed his disciples' feet. In so doing, he was setting an example of humility and servanthood.

The 1996 graduating class was challenged to find ways to "take up the towel" to reach out in service of our world. A strong emphasis was placed upon breaking down racial barriers in our society.

At the beginning of the address, Diehl hung a towel over the podium and occasionally picked it up to illustrate his point about taking up the towel.

An estimated 1500 people cheered and applauded as students received diplomas marking the culmination of their years of hard work. Of the 210 graduates, 16 received master's degrees, 94 received bachelors degrees from the traditional undergraduate program, 11 received associate degrees from the traditional undergraduate program, 87 received bachelors degrees from the adult degree completion program (LEAD), and two received associate degrees from the LEAD program.

Rachel Bromley of Quincy, a biology major, was recognized as the outstanding female graduate in the traditional undergraduate program.

A highlight of the graduation ceremony was the granting of Emeritus status to former president, Dr. Stephen W. Nease. Dr. Nease served as president of ENC from 1980 to 1989. Prior to that he held presidencies at Mount Vernon Nazarene College, Bethany Nazarene College, and Nazarene Theological Seminary.

Dr. Nease grew up in Quincy while his father was president of ENC. Following his father's untimely death in office, his mother served the college for 35 years as registrar. In addition to being president of ENC in the 1980's, Dr. Nease held several positions with the college during the 1950's and 1960's before being elected president to another Nazarene college in 1966.

Cashman, whose short-track speedskating relay team took third place in the 1994 Winter Olympics in Norway, is hoping to again go for the gold in the 1998 Olympics in Japan. Proceeds from the benefit will help defray her travel and other expenses.

Mayor James Sheets said the $11,000 will be added to a sum of approximately $1,500 collected last year from area banks. The city hopes to hold more fund-raisers in the future to bring the total between $15,000 and $20,000, he added.

The committee that organized the event consisted of Sheets, Department of Public Works Operations Manager Lester Gerry, John McSweeney of Earth Tech, Park Department Executive Director Thomas Koch, Recreation Director Barry Welch, Assistant City Solicitor James Timmins, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association President Daniel Flynn, Don

YMCA Physical Director Wins Road Races

Gayle Laing, physical director for the South Shore YMCA in Quincy, came in first place for women at the recent Quincy Hospital 5K Road Race and again at the Thomas Crane Public Library.

Laing, 34, a Braintree resident, has been running competitively for 10 years. She races every other weekend.

"If I don't place in the top three in a race, I'm disappointed. I love winning, and I'm very competitive," said Laing, who ran indoor track in high school. She graduated in 1985 from Bridgewater State College with a major in physical education and a concentration in exercise science/health fitness.

Laing began working at the South Shore YMCA in 1985 as associate fitness director in charge of adult fitness. Now, as physical director, she runs all adult fitness and recreation programs, including the men's basketball league, volleyball, a running program called the South Shore StrYders, and the Y's marathon training program.

Laing encourages the StrYders to both enter and watch the races.

"The races are all for a good cause. I also like the social aspect of the races; there is camaraderie among the participants," she said.

Laing lives with her husband Robert, 37, and their three children: Steven, 3; Bobby, 4 and Jennifer, 11.

Barra Fifth At Judo Challenge

Christopher Barra, a freshman at North Quincy High School, finished fifth in the boys' age 13-14, 130-pound class in the 24th Annual Am-Can International Judo Challenge at the University of Buffalo in Amherst, N.Y. Competitors from across the country as well as Europe competed in various age and weight groups.

After losing his first match in just 15 seconds, Barra came back to defeat three consecutive competitors, eliminating them from the tournament.

In his final match against Steve Oscara of Pottstown, Pa., Barra appeared to have the advantage but was thrown for a full point and lost the tough medal round bout, finishing fifth.

Girls' Track

North Quincy Girls Bow At League Championships

At the Old Colony League Championships at Bridgewater State College, North Quincy girls' track team jumped out to an early lead with 62 points in the field events but a lack of depth in the track events allowed Silver Lake to come from behind and defeat the Red Raiders, 83-81.

"We were happy with what we did," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "We couldn't catch Silver Lake unless one of their relays didn't score, which was unlikely. Being runner-up is good considering we were only a .500 club."

The Red Raiders had four first place finishers: freshman sensation Angela Scott (triple jump), sophomores Jasmine Gonzalez (400) and Nicole Bertone (discus) and senior captain Jen Pineo (shotput). With the victory, Pineo went undefeated in shotput and discus action for the dual meet season. Gonzalez also completed an undefeated season with a dramatic come-from-behind win over Falmouth's Becky Sangster, the state indoor 600 champion. Gonzalez' time (60.4) was the fastest 400 since North's glory days of the early 1980's.

With a throw of 105'10", Bertone outdistanced two opponents who defeated her during the year - Barnstable's Angie Brown and Taunton's Cindy Moniz. Bertone's throw was nearly four feet better than her previous best. Scott led a sweep of the triple jump with Sarah Boston finishing second and Aja Jackson placing third. Jackson also finished sixth in the 300 hurdles.

Other scorers for North were Suk Ng and Phyllis Poon (third and fourth in 100 hurdles), Wingsze Yuen and Claire Quilty (third and fourth in shotput) and Liz Ceurvels (third in discus).

The meet was delayed for an hour as severe thunderstorms blew through the area, tossing several portable bleacher sections onto the track and high jump mats across the playing fields. With the two mile underway and the 4x100 and 4x400 relays remaining, a second storm approached with more thunder and lightning. At this point, meet directors decided to stop the meet and leave the scoring as it was prior to the two mile.

Four QHS Athletes On OCL Girls' Track Team

Four Quincy High girls' track athletes--seniors Kasey McNaught and Kristen Priscella, junior Katie Sullivan and sophomore Erin Barry--were recently named to the Old Colony League All-Star team.

Following a 7-1 dual meet season and a second place finish in the league meet, McNaught was voted an all-star in the 100 meter dash. Priscella, who suffered an injury early in the season, was an automatic first-team all-star selection in the javelin event. Sullivan, who was 7-1 in dual meet competition and placed in the top five in four state wide competitions, was an all-star in the discus. With a 7-1 dual meet record and top five performances in state competitions, Barry was a unanimous selection for all-star in the 800 meters.

Brian O'Hanley went 4-for-4 at the plate and closed out Buick's 10-5 victory over Elks with 7 strikeouts in 3 innings. Joey Holleran had two hits and was robbed of another by Elks centerfielder David Armstrong. John Fidalgo reached base four times on base on balls.

Steve Williams pitched four strong innings, allowing no walks before he was relieved by O'Hanley. Williams also shone at third base, starting a game-ending double play with two runners on. Neil Gavin played well in his first game behind the plate. Jason Fidalgo and Eric Stanton also helped Buick with fine defensive plays.

Elks was paced by the excellent pitching of Phil McGillicuddy, who struck out 13. McGillicuddy and David Armstrong had two hits apiece and catcher Ryan Rogers was solid defensively.

Rotary defeated Keohane's 9-8 as relief pitcher Steve Pizzi shut the door on a strong hitting Keohane's team. He pitched the fifth and sixth innings, striking out four and giving up only one hit.

Mike Ryan continues to shine offensively, getting two hits, two walks, scoring 2 runs and knocking in the tying and winning runs in the last of the fifth. THE IMPORTANCE OF USING SEATBELTS

Much has been made of the airbag as a safety feature, but the fact is that this passive safety device must be used in conjunction with a seatbelt to be truly effective. The three-point lap-and-shoulder seatbelt is not only one of the simplest elements of motor-vehicle safety, it is also one of the most effective. Before widespread use of airbags, the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) estimated that seat belts alone saved 65,290 lives during a two-year period in the early 1980s. Now, the NHTSA's data indicates that 47 percent of fatalities in passenger-car crashes and 54 percent of all people who died in crashes including light trucks were not wearing seatbelts. Taken together, these statistics clearly indicate that seatbelts save lives, but only if they are used. So, in the name of safety and the continued enjoyment of love and life, please buckle up.

HINT: Safety experts agree that a person's chances of being killed in an auto accident are 25 percent higher if the or she is thrown from the vehicle upon impact.

Your safety is our concern. Inductions, Awards Highlight Quincy Hoop Hall Of Fame Dinner

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Five former Quincy High School basketball players -- George "Jappa" Papile, Enrico "Hank" Salvaggi, Robert Evans, Rick Reyenger and Donald "Ducky" Conners -- were inducted into the Quincy High School Basketball Hall of Fame at a recent dinner ceremony at the Quincy Sons of Italy.

Papile, the captain of the 1946 squad, was presented for induction by Guido "Buddy" Pettinelli, who also served as the ceremony's emcee. Pettinelli described Papile as "the leader of the team, a man who contributed so much to the community." A U.S. navy veteran who retired from the Postal Service after 36 years, Papile came from an "outstanding family in the city," Pettinelli said.

The next inductee, Salvaggi, was presented by a teammate from the Class of 1950, Atty. George Burke, a Quincy High Hall of Famer and former UMass standout. Pettinelli said Salvaggi was "an outstanding player, a good passer and a good defensive player."

Quincy High coach John Franceschini presented Evans, a member of the Class of 1959, for induction. Pettinelli called Evans "an excellent shooter, a high scorer who played very hard and intense who also contributed a lot to the community after his playing days."

Reyenger, a member of the Class of 1966, was presented by former Quincy High coach Joe Amorosino. Reyenger was a "good rebounder, a real scrapper, a hustling player," Pettinelli said. These days, Reyenger travels around the country as a sales representative, Pettinelli said, as Reyenger's father, Robert, accepted his son's trophy.

Conners, a member of the Class of 1975, was also presented by Amorosino, who coached Conners when he starred at QHS. Conners, the final inductee of the evening, was "a very tough defensive player, a good shooter, a high scorer, an overall outstanding player," according to Pettinelli.

Following an invocation from Rev. Mr. Joseph Papile, Franceschini introduced the 1995-96 Quincy High basketball team and presented special recognition awards to two Quincy High basketball record holders -- Kerri Connolly, Class of 1996, and Jack Uhler, Class of 1977.

Connolly, who was the Presidents' high scorer this past season, scored 1,138 points in her Quincy High career. Uhler, a Quincy High Hall of Famer, still holds the career scoring record with 1,011 points. The banners for both Connolly and Uhler will hang in the Quincy High gym, Pettinelli said.

Robert Mina, a Quincy High Hall of Famer and member of the 1962 Firehouse Five Team, presented a scholarship to Jeff Russell, the Presidents' leading scorer this past season.

One of the evening's highlights came when coach Mario "Mike" Casali, who coached for many years at the junior high level in Quincy, was presented with a special achievement award for outstanding contribution to the community.

"He was an outstanding coach in junior high for many years," Pettinelli said. "He contributed a lot to Quincy basketball, because a lot of his players went on to excel at Quincy High and North Quincy High over the years. He was a teacher, a counselor and an excellent role model."

Pettinelli was pleased with how well the ceremony went and gave special notice to the past Hall of Famers and past special award winners who attended the ceremony.

"The whole event went very well," Pettinelli said. "The program moved along smoothly and everyone enjoyed themselves. It was also good to see all the past Hall of Famers and past recipients of special awards in attendance."

Among the estimated 175 in attendance were Norfolk County Commissioner John Gillis, Rep. Ron Mariano and Councillor Tim Cahill.

Babe Ruth

Diaz Leads Local 1139; Elks, Granite City Winners

Jose Diaz allowed one run on three hits and struck out four to lead Local 1139 over Morrisette, 4-1, in recent Babe Ruth League action.

Trailing 1-0 in the second inning, Local's Ryan Murray Diaz tied the game with a single that scored Diaz. Walks and errors by Morrisette allowed Local to score three runs in the third without recording a base hit.

Brendon Bowes drove in Morrisette's only run on a single in the first inning. Jesse Winter was the tough luck loser, allowing four runs on three hits, walked six and recorded five strikeouts.

Local continued its winning ways, scoring nine runs in the seventh inning to secure a 16-13 comeback victory over Golden Print.

Ryan Murray's three-run double tied the game, 10-10, in the top of the seventh. After the next two batters walked, Steve Rochon followed with a single up the middle which scored two more runs. With runners at second and third, Mike Reidy drove in the eventual game-winning run with a two-run single. Jose Diaz drove in two runs with a sacrifice fly to give Local a 16-10 lead.

Golden retaliated with three runs in the bottom of the seventh, but could get no closer as Reidy (1 2/3 innings, two strikeouts) shut down Golden to pick up the victory. Local second baseman Rochon made two over-the-shoulder catches in short center field, including the game-ending catch which sealed the victory.

Golden had scored four runs on four hits, including run-scoring doubles by Nathan Derossario and Tony Staffier, to take a 10-7 lead into the seventh inning.

In other action, the Elks erupted for six runs in the fifth inning en route to a 6-4 come-from-behind victory over the Sons of Italy. Bobby Johnston fanned 11 to earn the complete game victory as the Elks improved to 2-0.

Leading the Elks' comeback were Steve Minkus, who lined an RBI single to center, and Rachael Powers, who ripped a two-run single to tie the game at 3-3. Chris Bregoli followed with a triple to right, driving in two runs before scoring the Elks' sixth run of the inning on a wild pitch.

Playing well for the Elks were Justin Adams (1 double) and Mike Keddy.

In other action, Granite City had a strong week, winning three consecutive games.

Mike McElvoy struck out 10 to lead Granite City over the Police, 11-5. McElvoy and Jason Oriola had three hits apiece and Matt Rodenhiser added two hits, including a ground rule double, to pace Granite City's hitting attack. Brian Smith and Matt Holt made key defensive plays behind McElvoy.

Jake Dugas' strong pitching performance sparked Granite City to a 10-4 victory over Barry's Deli. Brian Doyle, Mike McElvoy and Matt Rodenhiser all had hits for Granite City in the third inning. Matt Milericik's double in the sixth also helped the cause. Doyle and Pat Brundage played well defensively. For Barry's, Matt Graham and Shawn Manning sparked the defense.

In a 4-3 come-from-behind victory over the Elks, Granite City's McElvoy was the star of the game, striking out 13 to earn the win.

Triple A

CNA Scores 6 In Sixth, Pins First Loss On IHOP

CNA Insurance rallied from a six-run deficit in the sixth inning to defeat previously unbeaten IHOP, 9-8, at Faxon 2 in recent Triple A baseball action.

Trailing 8-2, CNA catcher Dave Grogan started the rally with a leadoff triple in the sixth inning and scored CNA's third run. The rally seemed to stall when the next two batters struck out, but Mike Torney kept the rally alive when he was hit by an 0-2 pitch. Craig Flanigin culminated the rally with a clutch RBI single that scored Rob Richards to tie the game at 8-8. Flanigin then scored the winning run on an overthrow on the same play.

CNA starting pitcher Patrick Losi allowed six hits and struck seven to earn the complete game victory. Second baseman Tyler Lagroterria and first baseman Billy Cox made several key defensive plays to keep the score close until the decisive sixth.

Dan Spillane, who started the game for IHOP, pitched 5 2/3 strong innings, striking out 13 and allowing two hits before tiring. Spillane also scored two runs. IHOP's big hitters were centerfielder Dan Dinardo, third baseman Colin Maxey and first baseman Rob Hennessey, who had two hits apiece. Catcher Mike Haines was tough behind the plate, throwing out a runner and also scored a run.

The win improved CNA's record to 4-3; IHOP is 5-1.

Defensively, Locker Room's Rich Churchill made a diving stop at second to save two runs and Ian Jorgensen made a great catch behind the plate to complete a double play.

For Yellow Cab, Mike Neumann pitched brilliantly, striking out 12 in a losing effort.

Quincy PAL picked up its second win of the year, a 4-1 triumph over Spillane and Epstein in a storm-shortened game. Quincy PAL broke a 1-1 tie with a three-run third inning before the rains came and the game was stopped after four innings.

Jeff Nardone pitched well over four innings and earned the victory. Catcher

Bert Vivatyrkan had another outstanding game, throwing out three runners trying to steal and made some fine defensive plays behind the plate. Matt Tupe played a strong game at third base.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

A type of person can be pretty well determined by his or her attitude. An attitude of hopelessness can be and usually is disastrous. An attitude that accepts reality, whatever it is, and faces a situation with a determination not to let it throw you can always be helpful.

Of course, this sort of thing is more easily said than done. Yet it can be done because people have done it. Actually, and attitude is a human resource. It can be drawn upon, revamped, replaced, revitalized. It is a human resource that provides mental grooming. A properly groomed attitude can change a feeling of failure to an expectation of success. An attitude of hopelessness can never induce an attitude of hope. No one ever gained happiness with an unhappy attitude. No one ever gained friendship with an unfriendly attitude.

When an attitude needs changing, change it. With faith and acceptance of God's help aided by your own determination and intelligence. IT CAN BE DONE...

Site Plan Review Sparks Small Business Opposition

Planned Unit Development (PUD) special permits work for larger businesses such as Home Depot and Shaw's Supermarkets, smaller establishments cannot afford them. He noted that if the size of the square footage in the proposal were increased from 5,000 to 50,000--so that only the giant stores would be affected--business representatives currently in opposition would support the measure.

The McDonalds said they hope to have as many as 500 names on their petition by the time the City Council holds its hearing next week.

Raymond could not be reached for comment.

Raymond proposed the ordinance following an announcement by Shaw's that its store on Quincy Avenue will be demolished--along with the former Quinail headquarters next door--to make room for a new, larger supermarket. At the time, he said neighbors expressed disappointment they were not allowed to voice their opinions on the matter, since under current zoning laws Shaw's only needed to obtain a permit from the city's Building Department to get the project off the ground.

Specifically, the site plan review would apply to new buildings, or additions to existing ones, larger than 5,000 square feet and apartments with 13 or more units. Single-family homes would not be affected.

The process would make it mandatory for developers to show that their project would have no adverse effect on the surrounding neighborhood and to agree to pay for any necessary street improvements. In addition, city department heads would have to review the project.

The Planning Board would have the final say on each project. It would be given the authority to request changes on anything from architecture to landscaping.

DISC CONDITION

A true disc condition often produces recurrent back and or leg pain. Simple movements such as getting in and out of a car or chair can be a painful experience. Initially the pain may be insignificant and the cause may not be known. After a few days of rest the pain may be gone, however several weeks later the pain returns. This time the painful episode lasts longer and is of greater intensity. This cycle of pain then recovery eventually leads to the person standing in an unnatural position to help relieve the pressure and pain.

Chiropractic treatment has been proven effective and well supported medically for relieving the pain, relaxing tight muscles and increasing the spinal motion. Dr. Kretz has over ten years of experience in treating spinal conditions and will take the time to discuss your symptoms. Condemned Building Will Be Renovated To House Veterans

By ROBERT BOSWORTH

A condemned rooming house at 191 Burgin Parkway, Quincy Center, will be renovated and converted into affordable housing for homeless veterans, local officials announced at the site Monday.

The completed renovation, slated for Nov. 1, will be owned and operated by Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition (Fr. Bill's Place).

Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services purchased the site for $160,000 with a City HOME Grant in partnership with The Hibernia Savings Bank which will provide long-term mortgage financing for the project. Renovations, which include private rooms, a shared kitchen and bathrooms for eight veterans, will total approximately $124,000, said Normand Grenier, executive director of QNHS.

"This is exactly what Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services does," Grenier said after leading a tour of the abandoned, boarded up and fire-damaged building. "Not only do we rehab it and

Carney Affiliation In Limbo

Quincy-Milton Hospitals Merger Now Considered

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Milton Hospital is at the top of the city's list for a possible affiliation with Quincy Hospital now that plans for such an association with Carney Hospital in Dorchester are in limbo.

Mayor James Sheets said Tuesday that Milton Hospital is the logical first choice as a partner for Quincy Hospital now that Carney is at least temporarily out of the picture. He cited proximity as the major reason.

"It's a natural," he said of the possibility.

Quincy Hospital Director/CEO Ralph DiPisa voiced similar sentiments.

"Proximity is the reason it's at the top of the list," said DiPisa, who added that he has yet to speak with officials from Milton or any other hospital. "It's much more likely we'll look for a neighboring institution."

DiPisa added that South Shore Hospital in Weymouth or another Boston hospital are other possibilities.

Sheets said city and hospital officials are planning to speak with representatives from Milton and other hospitals following Tuesday's announcement by the Daughters of Charity--a group of Catholic nuns that owns Carney--that they plan to sell the hospital.

"The merger/affiliation with Carney Hospital, as we now know it, cannot happen," said the mayor. "We plan on contacting other hospitals as soon as possible. But it is possible Quincy Hospital could affiliate in the future with Carney Hospital under its new ownership."

DiPisa agreed. "I still see there may be an opportunity for Quincy and Carney to affiliate in the future," he said.

City Councillor Paul Harold, chairman of the council's Public Health and Hospital Committee, said he also thinks an affiliation with Carney is still a possibility but agreed looking elsewhere is now a necessity.

"I think Carney and Quincy were a good match of equals," said Harold. "But we knew from the beginning there were issues that might cause problems."

The Daughters announced their plans after meeting with Cardinal Bernard Law, who voiced concerns about the Carney-Quincy affiliation because of birth control and abortion services offered at the hospital.

Task Force To Study Site Plan Review

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council is hoping to establish a site plan review process in Quincy that meets the expectations of business owners and residents alike.

On Monday night, Council President Peter Kolson appointed four councillors to serve on a task force that will address the issues raised in Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymond's controversial site plan review ordinance proposal. Kolson chose Raymond, Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico, Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, chairman of the council's Ordinance Committee and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers to serve on the task force.

The four councillors will join representatives from the Quincy Planning Board and the business community to try to find a solution to which everyone agrees.

In addition, the council amended the proposal to affect new construction projects of 10,000 square feet or more instead of those 5,000 square feet or larger.

Raymond's proposal received mostly opposition at a public hearing Monday night. Thirteen business representatives spoke against the plan and an additional 18 signed in opposition. A petition of nearly 600 signatures from mainly business people against the proposal also was presented to the council.

Planning Board Chairman James Kelley, former Ward 4 Councillor Thomas Fabrizio, and neighborhood residents Louise Harrington and Stephen Linskey spoke in support of Raymond's proposal.

Most of the opponents said they are not against the site plan review concept. They were mainly concerned about the process affecting new construction of 5,000 square feet or more.

"I think we, the small business, the family business, are the backbone of this city," said Curry Hardware owner Bob Curry. "I don't think this is the way to encourage businesses to come to the

Chlorine Used To Combat Water Contamination

The Department of Public Works has used chlorine to eliminate a contaminated water problem on Penns Hill.

DPW Commissioner David Colton said at press time the problem, believed to be caused by bird droppings that got into a hole in the roof of an above-ground tank in the neighborhood, was expected to be eliminated by the end of the day Tuesday. The contamination was found last week after tests showed high levels of E. coli coliform bacteria.

Spring water donated by Stop & Shop and Monadnock Mountain Spring Water in Quincy was to be supplied to the area as an extra precaution through yesterday (Wednesday), Colton added.

Colton also said the hole in the water tank will be temporarily patched until permanent repairs can be made in the next few weeks.

Colton said the problem affected "all the streets in that high-service area," including Viden Road, Penns Hill Road, Alton Road, Nicholl Street, Crest Street, Dale Avenue and Madison Avenue between Kendrick and Crest streets.

Colton stressed, however that the contamination incident is an isolated one and should not cause any serious health problems. He said the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority, which supplies the city's water, weekly checks 24 water locations and this is the first such problem he can recall.

"This is a very rare occurrence," he said. "People across the city should not be concerned about the quality of their drinking water."

The bacteria, which usually comes from animal waste, can cause diarrhea, cramps, nausea, jaundice and associated headaches and fatigue. Colton said he did not expect any major health problems, however, because the problem was discovered and dealt with so quickly.

Will Review School Portion June 17 Council Approves Most Of FY97 City Budget

The City Council has approved all but the school portion of Mayor James Sheets' proposed $143.2 million Fiscal Year 1997 municipal budget.

Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, said the council expects to receive the proposed $46.9 million school department budget from the School Committee at its June 17 meeting.

The council, which has the authority to Sheets' budget but not add to it, must approve it before July 1, the start of the new fiscal year.

The council has made virtually no cuts to the FY97 municipal budget, although another $24,000 was slashed from the Department of Public Works budget Monday night. That cut was made on top of a proposed reduction of $450,000 previously sent to the council by Sheets.

City Auditor Robert Foy said the city was able to reduce the proposed DPW budget by $474,000 because of money that will be saved in a new rubbish and recycling contract recently reached with Browning-Ferris Industries.

The council approved the DPW budget, along with the police, celebrations, city dues, and City Council budgets Monday night. The council's budget was approved despite protests from Councillor Paul Harold, who wants stricter controls on the amount the council spends on postage. Council President Peter Kolson said the issue will be addressed sometime in the future.

Cheney noted that there was very little to cut in this year's municipal budget.

"It came in as a very lean budget," he said. "There was no room to cut without cutting services."

Sheets' proposed budget is more than $4 million higher than the $139 million FY96 budget, a 3 percent increase. The mayor said it will likely result in a small increase in taxes, although how much of one will not be determined until the state budget is set in July and the city learns how much state funding it will receive.

For two consecutive years, the city has held the line on property taxes, although some tax bills still rose because of escalating home values. Last year, speculation that a tax increase was unavoidable caused the council to slash nearly $900,000 from Sheets' proposed budget.

The school department is receiving the biggest increase in the proposed FY97 budget. The school budget of about $46.9 million is 5 percent higher than the department's FY96 budget.

The budgets of other city departments increased by an average of less than 1 percent, Sheets said. Spending for city departments will increase only about $634,000, he noted.

The mayor noted that the two biggest reasons for the hefty school department increase were employee raises and the skyrocketing cost of educating special needs students.

Sheets said that while pay raises for most city employees are pushing up costs in the rest of the budget, those are being offset partly by an estimated $450,000 reduction in the cost of trash collection and a $230,000 reduction in employee health insurance costs. The amount paid by the city in interest on loans also has fallen, he noted.

Among the other reasons for the $4 million budget increase include $1,018,709 earmarked for the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority and $173,723 for retirement.

Asst. Harbormaster Honored By Tobin, City Council

James Hines of North Quincy, an assistant harbormaster for the city, received several commendations Monday night for saving a man from drowning in Quincy last October.

State Rep. Stephen Tobin presented Hines with commendations from Gov. William Weld and the House of Representative at Monday night's City Council meeting. In addition, Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers gave him a commendation from the council.

Hines saved Philip Wainwright of Squantum from drowning after the latter's boat overturned Oct. 10. He was able to rescue Wainwright by first throwing him a life preserver and then grabbing him by his hooded jacket and pulling him into Hines' boat.

Hines received a standing ovation and additional praise during the council meeting.

"It's a pleasure to shake the hand of a true hero, Jim," said Tobin. "Nice job."

Ayers noted that Council President Peter Kolson plans to place Hines' name in the "Local Heroes" plaque in the City Council Chambers at City Hall.

Also on hand for the presentation was Quincy Harbormaster Bernie Reisberg, who had his own words of praise for Hines.

"I'm most proud," he said, beaming.

Hines modestly opted not to speak but took a moment to introduce his wife Carolyn, son Craig and daughter Jennifer who were in the audience at Monday night's meeting.

Medically Speaking

AMNESIA, NON-HOLLYWOOD STYLE

The big and small silver screens are full of it: soulful leading characters clutching their heads and crying, "I can't remember!" Amnesia may be a favorite plot ploy in Hollywood, but in reality, amnesia is a rare, often debilitating mental disorder for which there are few storybook endings. The condition typically starts with a blow to the head or encephalitis (inflammation of the brain). In the most common form of amnesia, the patient eventually remembers the past, but the brain can't hold onto anything that occurs after the onset of the problem. For example, an amnesiac may remember the events of youth, but will not be able to recognize a child born into the family after amnesia struck, constantly "meeting" the new child at each encounter.

P.S. Movies and TV medical shows may be great entertainment, but don't mistake the "medicine" they prescribe for the real thing! The most important thing to remember is to take care of your body with proper nutrition and exercise. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. New Voting Machines On Order

Quincy voters will cast their ballots in a different manner when they go to the polls this fall.

The new $169,000 optical scan voting system is now on order and is expected to be delivered this month reports City Clerk Joseph Shea. Voters will get the chance to use it for the first time in the Sept. 17 state primaries and the Nov. 5 presidential election.

Shea thinks it will be a hit with voters, election workers--and the news media--by speeding up the vote tabulation and sending everyone home early election nights.

And, he notes, it's easy to use and is virtually snafu-proofed.

Under the system, the voter simply links the name of a candidate and the elective office by pen on a one-side ballot.

It replaces the punch-card method which has been used here since 1986 but has developed computer-counter problems delaying election night results.

Shea went to Mayor James Sheets telling him it was time for a change and found an attentive and sympathetic ear. Sheets included the money for the new system in his recent $12.9 million bond issue request that was approved by the City Council.

The punch-card system replaced the old paper ballots and the tedious hand counting which often dragged into the next morning.

Now, progress marches on.

"Former City Clerk John Gillis, Mayor Frank McCauley and the City Council took us out of the dark ages in 1986 with the purchase of the punch-card system," Shea says.

"Now, thanks to Mayor Sheets and the present City Council we will be going into the new century with state-of-the-art equipment which should be good for at least 20 years and is adaptable to new technology as it comes along."

Thirty three machines--one for each of the 30 voting precincts and three back-ups are on order from the low bidder, Business Record Corp, a national firm based in Texas.

The system has auxiliary battery power in case of an outage. And an alarm that warns voters if they accidentally vote for too many candidates for one office.

These "over voted" ballots are quickly removed and the voter gets a chance to vote again instead of having the ballot invalidated as under the punch-card and old paper ballot method.

A technician spends election day here to solve any technical problems should they occur. Presently if there is a computer snafu, everything stops until a replacement can be brought in from out-of-town.

In the Presidential primaries last March when only 6,547 voters went to the polls, computer problems delayed the start of the counting for two hours. It wasn't completed until shortly before midnight.

For Shea, that was the last straw. Time, definitely, for a change.

Shea says the new system will first pay for itself and then save the city money by reducing election worker and police detail hours.

Shea notes that he got a chance to see the same equipment in action in Somerville last fall. Somerville has 24 precincts--six less than Quincy--and the count was tabulated by 8:45 p.m.--just three quarters of an hour after the polls closed.

And, in a recent election in Springfield which has 64 precincts--twice as many as Quincy--the count was completed swiftly enough for everyone to be out of City Hall by 9:02 p.m.

Over 80 Massachusetts communities are using the same opt scan system and all seem to be happy with it, says Shea.

He recently attended a Kids Vote conference in Phoenix, Ariz. and met officials from there and Maryland who have the system and are pleased with it.

"I'm delighted that Mayor Sheets and the City Council are making this giant step forward possible," says Shea.

"And I am sure the voters of Quincy will be delighted, too, when they get acquainted with it."

"The voters will get that chance at demonstrations this summer after the Board of Registrars and precinct wardens and workers receive instructions in the use of the new equipment."

CITY HALL is losing one of its most popular--and dedicated--figures.

Josephine Carnali, secretary to City Clerk Joseph Shea, is retiring June 21, closing out a 36-year career in that office.

"In the same room, too," she laughs.

Josie made a little history in 1969 when she became the first woman clerk of City Council Committees. She served in that post for 10 years.

And, in 1979 she became acting assistant city clerk when Tom Burke moved upstairs to become Mayor Arthur Tobin's executive secretary.

Josie plans to do a little traveling and wants to spend more time with the grandchildren "before they are all grown up."

But that old dedication to the city clerk's office apparently isn't about to fade.

"I told Joe," she says, "that I'll come in a day or two if he needs me."

"She's really going to be missed," says Shea. "She has been a right arm down through the years."

And, he might just take her up on her offer.

THE BACHELOR RANKS in the City Council will soon be reduced to three.

Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers and pretty Maureen McCarthy are engaged. Bruce popped the big question recently at the Don Cesar Beach Resort in St. Petersburg, Fla. They have been going together for two years.

Maureen, a property manager in Providence, R.I., grew up in and lives in Wollaston. She and Bruce are now making plans for the wedding next June.

This leaves the council with three eligible bachelors: Michael D'Amico, Pat McDermott and Paul Harold.

REP. Ron Mariano will host his fifth annual Comedy Night "Fun-Raiser" Wednesday, June 12 at 7 p.m. at Spotlight at Playoffs, 500 Washington St., Weymouth.

Tickets are $25 and will be available at the door. For further info, call 472-0825.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS OLD POSTCARD is a view of Billings Road from in front of the Parker School looking toward the Norfolk Downs business district. The card was published in the early 1920's by McKay's Drug Store in the Downs. Billings Road is one of the widest streets in Quincy. In this view you can see the old trolley tracks which ran from Hancock Street to Elm Avenue. After the trolley service stopped it was once proposed that the city build landscaped islands with trees down the middle of the road where the tracks were. That is still a good idea.

Fred Murphy Should Never Be Forgotten

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

I strongly feel that Fred Murphy, who was awarded the Medal of Honor posthumously in World War II, deserves more recognition than he receives on Memorial Day.

A medic in my military unit, he bravely entered a minefield in Saarlauten, Germany, March 18, 1945 in an effort to tend to two wounded men and died while I watched, helplessly.

Although the engraved boulder memorial to him at Sea St. and Samoset Ave. was decorated this Memorial Day with a wreath and flag by the Houghs Neck Legion Post, I feel a color guard from the city's parade-ceremonies should have been sent there to "dip its colors" in appropriate tribute to him.

I was able to talk with State Rep. Edward Teague, who was the main speaker at the ceremonies at Mt. Wollaston Cemetery and asked him to give a little tribute to Fred Murphy in his talk. He said he would be happy to do it, and he did. I appreciate his thoughtfulness.

But, at no time since the Fred Murphy boulder was placed on a city-owned plot of land have I ever seen an honor guard stop by to pay tribute to him for his utter disregard for his own safety in order to save the lives of soldiers who might fight another day.

I sincerely suggest and hope that in the future, a color guard will be detached to appropriately honor the memory of a most deserving hero of World War II.

Fred Murphy should never be overlooked or forgotten, especially on Memorial Day.

NQHS Senior Stay-Out Party A 'Fantastic Event'

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

After a great evening of fun and excitement at the North Quincy High School Senior Prom, all North Quincy seniors were invited to attend an event that had never before taken place in the City of Quincy—an all-night senior stay-out party.

The party was initiated by Mr. Tom Bourque, a North Quincy High teacher, in order to provide seniors at North a safe alternative to a night, which, in the past, has worried many parents because of its notoriety of being an evening prone to accidents due to alcohol and drug abuse.

For seniors, the prom is the last chance to be together as a class in a social environment before graduation. It is an evening which many seniors hope will never end because it is filled with fun, excitement and camaraderie. The senior stay-out party gave North Quincy's Class of 1996 the opportunity to prolong this memorable evening in a safe, alcohol/drug-free environment.

Over 200 students attended the after-prom party. The night was thoroughly enjoyed by all in attendance. If offered a wide variety of activities and what seemed like an endless amount of food and prizes. The Class of 1996 would like to thank all of the local businesses for their generous donations which contributed to the success of our party!

We would like to extend our gratitude to the hard-working and dedicated North Quincy Parent Advisory Council for organizing and running this event along with Mr. Bourque. The Class of 1996 would also like to thank the Quincy police officers who volunteered their time to ensure our safety, the National Fire Protection Agency who lent us their excellent facilities, and Impact Quincy for its generous grant. Without these contributions of time, space and money this fantastic event would not have been possible.

The senior stay-out was a means for keeping the seniors safe and trouble-free on Prom Night. We feel that the party was a complete success. We hope that our community will continue to lend its support in the future so that this event will become another great tradition at North Quincy High School.

Deputy Chief William Barron and Lt. Anthony Malvesti sustained glass cuts, but there were no other injuries. Chief Edward Barry called it "a very stubborn blaze," but noted that Dee Dee's Restaurant next door was saved by a firewall between the stores.

Dee Dee's recently vacated the premises as did other businesses since the block was scheduled for demolition for parking for the new Wollaston MBTA station.

Savvy Images: Helping You Look Your Very Best

By ELAINE NORTON

Does this sound familiar? You have a closet full of clothes and nothing to wear. The good news is you're not alone, and the better news is that the solution to your wardrobe problems is just a phone call away.

Professional Image Consultant Andrea Rowe, founder of Savvy Images, based in Wollaston, specializes in image, fashion and wardrobe management. Her clientele is largely comprised of successful, professional women seeking to change their personal image and gain control over their wardrobe.

"Know what you need ahead of time and put the look together," she recommends. "It shouldn't be last minute."

To her clients, she suggests simplifying their lives and saving money by buying a few good quality "core" items, such as a black suit, and building their wardrobe around them.

Andrea started Savvy Images five years ago in New York in the hopes of helping individuals recognize their personal best by developing an awareness of their total image. Slowly she has developed a client base here in Boston.

What she found surprising was how very different Boston is from New York in terms of fashion consciousness.

"New York is very different. People are very much into dressing well," says Andrea. "New York is very fashion conscious.

It's a cultural thing."

The downfall of many people, she says, is that they shop on impulse or emotion as a substitute for something else they need.

Andrea recommends planning for shopping as one would plan for a vacation.

"Know what you want before you buy," she says. "Stop being a slave to the fashion industry, and stop spending a lot of money on clothing."

Accessories play a vital role in a versatile wardrobe, according to Andrea.

"Your wardrobe should consist more of accessories than clothing," she says, adding that scarves and fun jewelry are great additions to any wardrobe.

She is strongly opposed to purchasing "fad clothing" because "it's useless next season." Instead, Andrea advises looking closely at the lines of the clothing, choosing only classic, clean lines which never go out of style. She suggests buying fabrics which are blends, due to their versatility.

"Never buy a wool suit," she warns. "You can only wear it in the winter. Now, gabardine you can wear all year round."

Another no-no, according to Andrea, is "just buying something because it's on sale." She says one should only shop four times a year to get what they need for each season.

The key to successful wardrobing, she claims, is knowing your body type and recognizing what clothing is best suited for you. If you have that one versatile suit, work from that, she suggests.

"What is your best color? What is your lifestyle?" she asks her clients when they come to her for a consultation. "If 80 percent of your time is spent in the work force, your wardrobe should reflect that."

New clients are asked to answer a series of questions which help Andrea to evaluate each person's individual needs and style. She asks them to evaluate their present wardrobe, the types of clothes they like and dislike, the stores in which they prefer to shop, and their work dress code.

From this thorough analysis, the client is given a computerized overall body profile, complete with makeover suggestions, recommended necklines, skirt types, and style suggestions, all part of a customized image portfolio.

Andrea is a strong believer in color-coding your closet and keeping everything ironed for ease in selecting your clothing every day.

"When you get up to get dressed, you know everything's in order and everything fits," she says.

Andrea is sharing her knowledge this fall by offering two classes at Quincy College. They are entitled "Polishing Your Professional Image" and "How To Dress Elegantly While Keeping The Cost Down."

In addition to wardrobe coordination and personal body profile, Savvy Images offers services such as personal shopping, closet organization and color analysis, at prices ranging from $45 to $100 depending upon the service.

Andrea, a graduate of the Academy of Fashion and Image Institute in New York, is a certified consultant for BeautiControl, a line of cosmetics.

In addition to image enhancing, Savvy Images offers business seminars on interviewing, and motivational and sales training.

"The employment mode we are in today, so many people are going in for the same job," says Andrea. "No matter what you have, you have to learn to set yourself apart."

She does one-to-one counseling for those searching to enter the job market. During a "mock interview," Andrea evaluates the person's body language and their ability to describe who they are.

"A lot of people aren't comfortable talking about themselves," she says. "They need to come across as more confident."

Andrea counsels them to be prepared and build a relationship with the interviewer by asking questions. "This makes the interviewer think, 'Wow, this person is really interested.'" Plus, this "neutralizes things," according to Andrea, making the interview more conversational.

For companies with a sales staff, Andrea goes on site to offer her seminars on successful sales techniques. Having been in sales for more than 11 years, Andrea felt she had a lot of information to share, and branched out into seminars.

"I feel that no matter what type of job you have, if you have experience in sales, you can do anything," she says. "You don't have to be a sales person to take advantage of this course."

Andrea plans to offer more sales-oriented and business-oriented courses in her second semester at Quincy College.

In the future, she would like to conduct self-esteem seminars so she can help people gain confidence in their inner image as well as their outer image.

Savvy Images is located in Wollaston. For a consultation, call Andrea at 984-0289.

West Quincy Families To Host Chernobyl Orphans

Two West Quincy families will be host this summer to four orphans with childhood cancer or leukemia who survived the nuclear disaster at Chernobyl in the former Soviet Republic of Belarus.

The children will be staying with the families of Peter and Kathy Sorensen and Guy and Karen Tringale as part of the Chernobyl Children Project USA, with the support of St. Mary's Parish and private donations.

The nuclear reactor explosion at Chernobyl in 1986 exposed the surrounding population to radiation 90 times greater than that from the Hiroshima bomb. More than 2,000 towns and villages were evacuated and one quarter of the Belarusian farmland and forest were contaminated.

Project spokespeople estimate that a break from the contaminated home environment could increase the children's life expectancy by two years or more.

Childhood cancer and leukemia increased by 92 percent following the disaster. The Chernobyl Children's project began in Ireland in 1990 to provide rest, recuperation and assistance for the affected children. The first Chernobyl orphans came to the Archdiocese in 1995.

The Sorensens and Tringales are among 45 families from Gloucester to Lakeville who will participate this year.

Parishioners at St. Mary's Church in West

Quincy have been showing support through the purchase of "Chernobyl Crosses," unique medals manufactured in the region. Private donations are also requested.

The Archdiocese of Boston is planning a welcoming reception for the children, kicking off a number of activities during their stay. St. Mary's youth will be helping as "big brothers" and "big sisters."

St. Mary's Church, through a "Giving Tree" project, is also asking donations of items the children will need while in Quincy, such as sandals, bathing suits, clothing, and gift certificates for movies, food, produce or clothing stores.

For more information, call Kathy Sorensen at 471-2437.

ANTHONY SICILIANO (right), deputy director of the Quincy Emergency Management Agency, recently was appointed to the Emergency Management Institute Board of Visitors Committee by Federal Emergency Management Agency Director James Lee Witt. At left in photo is Dennis Milette, committee chairman. Siciliano will represent the New England area on the committee through Dec. 31, 1997, and recently attended his first mandated meeting in Emmitsburg, Md.

Brannigan's Change Approved

The Quincy License Board Tuesday granted a request from Brannigan's, 226 Water St. for permission to transfer stock in the corporation from Edward Maloney to Robert S. DiBona and to change the name to Bobby D's.

Police Chief Francis Mullen made the first motion transferring the stock with the same conditions as the original license. He then made a second motion to change the name of the establishment. A third motion was to change managers from Maloney to DiBona.

The board voted unanimously for all three motions.

Atty. Lou Cassis representing Maloney, told the board Maloney is selling his share to Robert S. DiBona for $70,000.

Atty. William Sullivan represented Robert and Mark DiBona, who is owner of Cagney's on Washington St. Sullivan said Mark owns 50 percent of the stock in Brannigan's and plans to sell his share of stocks to his brother eventually making Robert 100 percent owner. He said without the "friction between the parties" the place will "run very well."

He said Robert will be a "hands on participant who really wants to be the manager."

Chairman Joseph Shea explained that on two of three occasions the DiBona's and Maloney appeared before the board. At that time Shea said the board did not want to "interfere with the inner workings of the corporation" since they seemingly were having problems. Shea told them to come back when they could reach an agreement.

Maloney, who said he is now "very happy with the arrangement" will no longer manage the establishment making Robert the sole manager.

Mullen advised Robert DiBona to attend classes in Training, Intervention, Procedures and Service (TIPS) taught by Det. Sgt. Richard E. Laracy, liquor inspector and license board agent. The class will be held July 22.

Task Force To Study Proposed Site Plan Review

Other business owners said the two sides should meet and discuss the issue. "We're willing to sit down with you and talk to you," said Common Market Restaurant owner Jack McDonald.

"Just let us be involved," added Dan Newcomb of Newcomb Farms. "The devil is in the details," said Bob Fitzgerald of South Shore Buick.

Following the hearing, Kolson asked McDonald to serve on the task force and to choose a couple of fellow merchants to serve alongside him.

Not everyone, however, wanted the proposal changed. Most notable among the supporters was Harrington, whose home at 19 Berry St. has been impacted by work at neighboring Quinail. She said the remodeling of the firm's parking lot five years ago created a 10-foot wall of dirt behind her home.

Now, Harrington, who pleaded with the council to consider the site plan review, expects to be impacted by construction of a 53,000-square-foot Shaw's Supermarket that will replace the Quinail building and current Shaw's store on Quincy Avenue.

"My home has been invaded," she said.

Raymondi said he hopes the site plan review process will help protect "the Mrs. Harringtons of the future."

Raymondi's proposed ordinance would create a "site plan review" process designed to protect neighborhoods from increased traffic and other problems caused by new commercial buildings and apartments.

Specifically, the site plan review--with the amendment made Monday night--would apply to new buildings or additions to existing ones larger than 10,000 square feet and apartments with 13 or more units. Single-family homes would not be affected.

The process would make it mandatory for developers to show that their project would have no adverse effect on the surrounding neighborhood and to agree to pay for any necessary street improvements. In addition, city department heads would have to review the project.

The Planning Board would have the final say on each project. It would be given the authority to request changes on anything from architecture to landscaping.

Raymondi introduced the measure after Shaw's announced plans to build the new supermarket. Under current zoning laws, Shaw's needed only to obtain a permit from the city's Building Department to get the project off the ground.

The amendment to the ordinance changing the minimum square footage of affected structures from 5,000 to 10,000 will clear the way for Bob's Speed Shop to relocate from Hancock Street in Wollaston to Willard Street in West Quincy. Plans for the move were became uncertain after Raymondi introduced his site plan review proposal two months ago.

Salvation Army Appeal Special Ch. 3 Topic

A campaign to raise $60,000 badly needed by the Salvation Army's Quincy Temple Corps to carry on programs will be spotlighted tonight (Thursday) on Continental Cablevision Ch. 3.

Three members of the Quincy Temple Corps Advisory Board will appear with host Bill McColgan at 7 p.m. in an appeal for the funds. The program will be repeated Friday at 9 a.m.

The three are Advisory Board Chairman Anthony Agnitti, Quincy Sun Publisher Henry Bosworth and Karen Dobbyn of the Patriot Ledger.

Social worker Sue

Christensen will also appear with McColgan to discuss various programs provided by the Quincy Temple Corps.

The three board members will discuss the fund raising campaign which, it is hoped, will offset revenue losses suffered by the Quincy Temple Corps during the last two Christmas seasons.

The deficit resulted when the Salvation Army lost strategic kettle locations during the holiday seasons.

The money is now needed for summer camp programs for youngsters, adult day care programs and emergency assistance services.

"We are in a crisis," said Capt. Scott A. Kelly, commanding officer of the Quincy Temple Corps.

Letters were recently mailed to 15,000 Quincy residents appealing for help.

The Salvation Army, Quincy Temple Corps, 6 Baxter St., Quincy, MA 02169.

The Ch. 3 program was produced by QCTV Ch. 3 volunteers Vincent Bettes, Bob Gough, Harry Fifield and Milda Vaskeviciute.

Please HELP!

We need You!

The Salvation Army has always been there to help. Now it needs your help. Income losses from Christmas must be made up so that Summer Programs, including Children's Camp can be carried on.

Please make your donation payable and mail to:

QCAP Holds Fundraising Event For Food Center

Quincy Community Action Programs, Inc. held its annual Emergency Food Center fundraising event recently at the Neighborhood Club of Quincy.

Seventeen local celebrity hosts served 180 guests who attended the dinner and silent auction. Celebrities came from the City Hall, the business community and local neighborhoods. Sixty-three items were auctioned off in a competitive bidding process. Joseph Mannarino, executive director of Quincy 2000, earned the first place award for collecting the most tips, all of which were donated to the Emergency Food Center.

The highlight of the evening was a balloon popping contest, which resulted in one winner walking away with a $100 bill.

The Emergency Food Center depends on the support of Quincy residents and businesses to enable it to serve the 440 individuals who visit the center monthly for food and counseling.

Caryn Smith-Varn, chairperson of the event, said, "A fun time was had by all and the food shelves at the center can continue to be filled to help our needy friends and neighbors."

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Real Estate In Quincy Is On The Upswing

By DANIEL J. FLYNN III

Commercial real estate in the Quincy area is definitely on the upswing.

Though many companies tend to stay within the city in which they began their business, we are now finding many Boston businesses looking to Quincy as an alternative location for their operation. Quincy, in the 1990s, has become a more desirable city to have a business, and thus is experiencing tremendous growth in the commercial real estate sector.

Many factors can be attributed to Quincy's attractiveness: expenses, easy accessibility, public transportation, reduced traffic, and advancements in technology.

The driving force for any business is, of course, expense. It is no secret that being a resident or having a business in Boston is quite expensive. Quincy has become a less expensive alternative.

With office space in Boston sometimes costing twice as much as comparable space in Quincy, the in-town crowd are looking to migrate South. Many business owners are finding they can reap the benefits of being close enough to Boston to conveniently conduct any business they may have in the city, yet have their "home base" in the more compliant and less expensive commercial real estate in Quincy.

In addition to the close proximity to Boston, getting to and from Quincy is nearly hassle free. Easy access to all major highways including Routes 93, 95, 24, and 128, eliminates any difficulty that an outside business person may have in finding Quincy when meeting there for a business appointment.

From the South Shore, the traffic getting in and out of Boston can be notorious. Quincy is far enough outside of Boston that the traffic problems for South Shore commuters into Quincy is minimal. Commuters as far away as South Plymouth can make the commute in well under an hour.

The public transportation Quincy provides has been a key in our business for attracting potential clients to the City. With a great concentration of T stops including Quincy Center, Quincy Adams and North Quincy, employers can boost their easy accessibility to public transportation.

The Information Superhighway has had a profound effect on how many businesses operate. In the past, the thought was that a company had to be in a major city to be competitive in the business world. Today's growth of computer technology is lightning-fast. It no longer matters whether you are a Fortune 500 or a start-up company with 500 square feet of office space, the computer allows you to conduct your business transactions in a fast and professional manner wherever your office may be. With the advancement of modern technology, more specifically the Internet, having your business thrive outside of Boston has certainly become a reality.

Quincy has a lot to offer businesses, and the opportunities for the future are promising. This spawning resurgence can not be limited to the entrepreneurs but will necessitate partnering, private to private partnerships and public and private partnerships. Quincy is happening!

Sheltering Coalition Receives $500 Grant From County

The Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition, which runs Father Bill's Place, the city's homeless shelter recently received a $500 grant from Norfolk County to support the feeding program at Father Bill's.

Each year, the shelter serves 800 to 1,000 adults from the South Shore area. It is open 365 days a year, 24 hours a day and serves three meals a day. Each evening, the shelter serves 70 people for dinner.

The QISC is committed to ending homelessness, and Father Bill's provides a wide array of services aimed at moving people beyond the shelter. Case management, housing search, and rental-based assistance are among the services offered.

The shelter accepts all food donations. One of the shelter's most successful volunteer programs is the "Meal-A-Month" program, where various clubs, groups, and faith communities prepare and serve a meal to the shelter guests.

For more information about the shelter, call Laurie at 770-3314.

500 Boys And Girls To Participate In Games At Five Different Fields Youth Soccer To Mark 15th Anniversary With Weekend Tournament

By LIAM FITZGERALD

After a year of planning and preparation, Quincy Youth Soccer will celebrate 15 years of soccer in Quincy with the President's City Tournament this weekend.

The tournament, the brainchild of tournament director Malcolm MacNeil, has drawn a number of teams from southeastern Massachusetts as well as out of state teams. Approximately 500 boys and girls from 30 teams in age groups 10-14 will participate in the tournament, which has a point system based on wins, losses and ties and guarantees each team a minimum of three games.

"It's been a lot of hard work, time and effort on the part of a many people to help put this event together, and it's getting exciting as the tournament weekend approaches," said Mike Linnane, a member of QYS board of directors. "There's still a lot to work to do this weekend to make sure everything goes well."

Due to the size of the tournament, five fields have been designated for play: Pagent (two U-10 fields), Upper Merry-mount, Varsity and Veterans Memorial Stadium. Mitchell and McCoy fields have also been reserved for the tournament.

Play begins Friday night, with five games at the Stadium and the Varsity Field beginning at 6 p.m.

"This is the first time Quincy Youth Soccer has played in the Stadium, and the kids are excited about playing under the lights," said Linnane. "They can thank the School Department and the City of Quincy for securing the Stadium."

The City of Quincy has been a strong supporter of the event, helping designate fields for tournament use and placing soccer nets on the respective fields.

On Saturday, the action resumes at 8 a.m. with games at all five fields through 4:10 p.m. Sunday, play begins at 8 a.m., with the last five games scheduled for 11:30 a.m.

Playoffs will follow, with the U-10 boys and girls playoffs set for Sunday at 1 p.m. at both Pagent fields. The U-12 boys and girls playoffs start at 1:15 p.m. at the Stadium and Varsity Field. At 2:30 p.m. at the Stadium and Varsity Field, the U-14 boys and girls playoffs begin.

The tournament will also host a number of soccer-related events all day Saturday and Sunday at the Stadium, which includes meeting players from the New England Revolution early Saturday afternoon. A Moonwalk to benefit the North Quincy High School girls' soccer program will be open Saturday and Sunday from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Speed Kicking results by radar gun will be held Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 3-on-3 games and demos are scheduled for Saturday from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

"Hopefully kids who are not playing will come to see the Revolution players, maybe have some cake and watch the kids play," said Linnane, who expects approximately 1,500-2,000 people to attend the tournament. "They're also welcome to participate in any of the clinics during the weekend."

Linnane added that admission is free, and said that QYS "is encouraging people to come and watch the home teams as well as the out of state teams play."

QYS has given the concessions to the North Quincy and Quincy High soccer boosters as a means of support for the high school soccer programs. All proceeds from the tournament will be donated to the Joy Hanlon Memorial Fund, which provides two Book awards each year to a North Quincy and Quincy High graduate.

Merrill Lynch and NYNEX are the tournament's official sponsors, with additional sponsorship provided by American Ambulance Services, Bell Atlantic NYNEX Mobile and Verc Car Rental.

NANCY GLENNON

NOREEN MCBRIDE

Quincy Players Among Keys To Suffolk Softball Success

Two Quincy residents played important roles in the success of the 1996 Suffolk University softball team which captured the Great Northeast Athletic Conference tournament championship and enjoyed its winningest season ever.

Suffolk defeated Norwich, 4-3 in the opening game of the tournament and stunned heavy pre-tournament favorite Coast Guard in the title game, 3-0, avenging two earlier season losses. Suffolk finished its season with a 17-15 record, winning 11 of its last 12 games. Coast Guard finished the tournament with a 24-4 record.

Noreen McBride of North Quincy, who during the winter was a standout for the Suffolk women's basketball team and became a 1000-point scorer, was the catcher on the Suffolk team playing in 29 games. Her coach Christine Carr credited McBride with calling an outstanding game in pitcher Simone Lincoln's shutout victory over Coast Guard in the tournament title game.

She is a graduate of Fontbonne Academy.

Nancy Glennon of Quincy is a senior outfielder who has been one of the school's outstanding all-around athletes, playing basketball, tennis and running cross country in addition to softball. Glennon was one hand for games and was an inspirational force in the success of the team.

Lisa Satkevich On Bay State Magic AAU Basketball Team

Bernazzani School, is the only Quincy resident on the roster of 11 10-year-old girls from Boston and the South Shore area.

To raise funds for the trip to Orlando, the "Magic" will have a car wash Sunday at Quincy College from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Teams of four will be accepted and other participants will be assigned to a team by the Golf Outing Committee. The Golf Outing is limited to the first 120 players who sign up, with preference given to previous participants.

Applications will be honored on a first come, first paid basis.

For more information about obtaining an application, call Bill and Jean Donnelly at 479-9045 or Bob and Jan Kelley at 479-1440.

Girls' Track

North Quincy Athletes Shine At All-States

North Quincy High School track and field athletes continued to extend their seasons with outstanding performances at the All-State Championships at Bridgewater State College.

Senior captain Jennifer Pineo placed second in the shotput to qualify for the New England Championships at Brown University in Providence, R.I., for the fourth time (two indoor, two outdoor). Pineo's throw of 37'1/2" was not her best due to a back injury.

The 4x400 relay team did not finish in the medals by the quartet of Aja Jackson (66.0), Kellie Johnston (64.0), Sharon Lee (66.2) and Jasmin Gonzalez (61.6) turned in its best time of the year (4:17.8).

"It was nice to see our kids go out with their season best," said head coach Geoff Hennessy. "That's what every good program strives to do—turn in your season best at the biggest meet."

The results bode well for next year as only Jackson (Northeastern University-bound) graduates and Johnston is only a freshman.

In other news, North Quincy placed four athletes on the Old Colony League All-Star team. Pineo, who finished undefeated in shotput and discus, was named to the team for shotput. Gonzalez also was undefeated in the 400 during the season and her only loss on the track was a second-place finish behind Johnston in the 200 against Barnstable. Gonzalez's win in the 400 (60.4) against Falmouth's Becky Sangster stands out as one of the greatest races in North Quincy High history.

Javelin thrower Nicole Bertone was selected based on her OCL win (105'10") and having only two early season losses. The final selection was triple jumper Sarah Boston, who was undefeated in dual meet action in the triple jump and only lost in the OCL meet to teammate Angela Scott.

"With Quincy High's four selections, North's four selections and several athletes at Fontbonne and Notre Dame Academy from Quincy being named to the Catholic Conference, the City of Quincy should be proud of its track talent," said Hennessy.

Recreation Dept. Sponsoring Sports Camps, Workshops

The Quincy Recreation Department is again sponsoring summer sports camps and instructional workshop programs.

The camps are now 13 years old, and have become increasingly popular in offerings and participation, according to Recreation Director Barry Welch.

The weeklong programs, which will be under the direction of area coaches and teachers and will feature individual instruction with an approximate ratio of one to 10. make it something the whole neighborhood can be proud of, we're also going to turn it over to some of the neediest people that are out there, our veterans, who may be formerly homeless."

The first order of business for the building is cleaning it up. Some veterans who have been sheltered at Fr. Bill's Place will be among those who will help remove debris for the large white building. Grenier said a series of renovations will follow to correct "every code violation." A new sprinkler system will also be installed.

Area organizations which have "adopted" rooms will pitch in by painting and wallpapering living spaces. Officials hope tenants will be able to move in this fall.

Grenier said the building will be a managed site meaning all potential tenants will be screened.

"We'll have a managed site here so that people who come here will have to go through a screening process so it will be very safe. . . The tenants will have to be screened, they will have to go through a process, we will know them personally, and we will have somebody assigned to be kind of guardian with them," Grenier said.

Local officials joined Grenier in announcing the project. They included Mayor James Sheets, Mark Osborne, CEO and chairman of Hibernia Savings Bank; and Richard Peterson, president of Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services. They addressed city officials, residents, members of the business community, and residents and proponents of Fr. Bill's Place on the details of the project.

QNHS commended Sheets and others for not only putting the blighted site to good use but also for helping to fill the need for veterans' housing.

"Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services strategically targets its projects to respond to the most imminent needs in the community," Grenier said. "We take great pride in this project. Our partnership with The Hibernia Savings Bank and the team effort that is underway from volunteers, are allowing us to help fill the dire need for affordable housing for a most deserving group of people."

"We support Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services and actively seek opportunities to assist them in projects," Osborne said. "Serving as the sponsoring institution for this project allows us the opportunity to address and respond to a real community need."

Sheets said the project combines "two areas of conscience, two areas of compassion:" serving veterans and sheltering the homeless. He commended Quincy Housing Authority Director and past national American Legion commander John (Jake) Comer, Fr. Bill McCarthy and Joe Finn, executive director of Fr. Bill's Place, for work on behalf of veterans and the homeless.

"As we think about the commitment and service that our young men and women have made down through this century, I think it's absolutely necessary that we become as a city involved in a project of this nature which involves our veterans, particularly when we look at the national scene where we find cuts being made in our veterans' services you find the city of Quincy going in the opposite direction," Sheets said.

The mayor also praised Planning Director Richard Meade and the planning department for finding the funding for the city HOME Grant. "We continue to do all that we can in order to acquire additional funds for homeless programs," Sheets said, suggesting as much as $500,000 to $700,000.

"I find it very hard to say no to these people," Sheets said turning to Grenier. "I don't know how many more years I'm going to be mayor, but I hope whatever time I have left Normand, I never find it hard to support any project that you folks come in with because I think it's the heart and soul of our city."

Peterson said the rooming house for veterans is the latest success story for Quincy Neighborhood Housing Services.

"Quincy NHS is a partnership between the city and the state, the banking community, and the residents of the city of Quincy who all put forth an incredible amount of effort to get projects like this done. We've had a number of successful projects over the years and this is going to be the next in our successful string I'm sure," Peterson said.

Utilizing an Adopt-A-Room program initiated by QNHS, numerous volunteers have offered time and services to help rehabilitate the property. These include the Bank of Boston, Braintree Savings Bank, Habitat for Humanity, The Hibernia Savings Bank, The Painters' Union, Peterson Associates and State Street Bank.

"It's the people of the city of Quincy that make these projects work and it's the volunteer spirit that we find throughout the city that makes these successful," Peterson added.

Finn said the rooming house will give the Quincy Interfaith Sheltering Coalition an opportunity to house veterans who constitute about 20 percent of the people served at Fr. Bill's Place.

"What we're going to attempt to try to do is provide single room occupancy housing for homeless veterans in need of housing who are working. We're intending this as a permanent support of housing because here in Quincy we've been fortunate that we've always had a good stock of single-room occupancy housing. That's an important niche of housing for many of the people we serve."

Asked whether he would like to see more single-room occupancy housing in Quincy, Finn replied, "I would like to see a full continuum of housing within the city. I don't think every place has to be exactly like this one but I do think there is a need to make sure we preserve and maintain single-room occupancy boarding house type of housing for people, because particularly people who are working lower-paying jobs or for single people this is a very good, viable, affordable alternative for housing for them."

Finn said veterans who have had a history of homelessness will be given some preference.

Henry Bradley, Quincy's Veterans Services director, said he has already spoken to many of the veterans organizations in the city and they are anxious to lend a hand and "adopt" a room and a veteran.

"We hope to have seven or eight rooms available for the veterans on a long-term basis along with follow-up services for those who may need them. In the future, we may be able to add to this program," Bradley said.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Too often children are familiar with and expect all the privileges of 'belonging to a family circle, but have not been trained in assuming the responsibilities which should always accompany privileges. Children should be expected to share in the work of the home, thereby developing a sense of responsibility and experiencing the joy of co-operative effort which will extend to their outside relationships later.

To learn what it means to submerge one's own personal interests in the larger interests of the family develops in the children a proper sense of values and reduces his natural selfishness. When a child has been deprived of the experience of taking his share of responsibility in the home, he invariably finds it difficult to make the necessary adjustments when he leaves his home and gets out into the real world on his own...

LEGAL NOTICE

CITY OF QUINCY
IN COUNCIL

ORDER NO. 96-072
ORDERED:

Be it ordained by the City Council of the City of Quincy, that the revised ordinances of the City of Quincy 1993, as amended are further amended as follows:

In Chapter 17.04, Administration, add a new Section 17.04.250 to read:

That the City Council add a new zoning control procedure to be known as SITE PLAN REVIEW which shall require a permit for (1) all multi-family or apartment development in excess of twelve units; and (2) all development where the area of any new structure is 10,000 square feet or more excluding single-family homes and related accessory structures.

Purpose

The purpose of the SITE PLAN REVIEW permit procedure is to ensure:

(1) That the design and construction of developments will not create a detrimental impact to neighborhoods or to the environment;

(2) That development will be in harmony with surrounding areas;

(3) Compliance with all the requirements set forth in the Zoning Ordinances of the City of Quincy with appropriate city agency review and public input;

(4) Appropriate safeguards and impact mitigation for all such development.

Any applicant filing for a Special Permit pursuant to Title 17, Chapter 17.04 Administration, Chapter 17.04.170. Special Permits shall be exempt from the requirements of this Ordinance.

Permit Granting Authority

The permit granting authority shall be the Planning Board. This will ensure departmental review by the Planning Department and incorporation into the final development plans all appropriate City Agency recommendations. The permit shall be a written authorization which will include the conditions and special conditions deemed necessary and appropriate by the Planning Board, acting as the Permit Granting Authority (PGA) and shall be recorded and enforced as Special Permits issued by the Zoning Board of Appeals.

Procedure:

This procedure for the PGA shall be in accordance with the provisions of Chapter 40A, and Article I, Section 15 of the Revised Zoning Ordinances, the same as required for a Special Permit. In order to receive a Permit under Site Plan Review a majority vote of the PGA shall be required.

Provisions for Development Plans:

Site Plan(s) and profile drawings of the proposed development signed and stamped by professional Land Survey and/or registered professional Engineer shall be filed with the PGA. The Plan(s) and profile shall show both existing and proposed:

- (a) access and egress to and from the site;
- (b) lot lines and easements, if any;
- (c) building and structures;
- (d) topography with appropriate contours;
- (e) surface water bodies, wetlands and area subject to the 100 year flood evaluation;
- (f) soil profiles, if required;
- (g) landscape features, walls, walks and lighting;
- (h) landscaping proposed as determined appropriate and consistent with the screening required by section 84;
- (i) location of parking areas required by Section 73 and facilities for internal vehicular and pedestrian circulation;
- (j) site drainage and supporting data, if required;
- (k) location of site utilities and supporting data, if required;
- (l) loading facilities as required by Section 76;
- (m) traffic study, if required by the PGA, given the proposed development of the site and the expected traffic impact; and
- (n) architectural drawing of the proposed building(s) and structure(s), if required by the PGA.

Criteria for Approval:

The PGA shall ensure that there will be reasonable use of the site consistent with its underlying zoning subject to the following criteria:

- 1. Adequate capacity of local streets to accommodate traffic to be generated by the proposed use. In addressing this criteria, the PGA may consider projections of increased traffic volumes due to the proposed development and its impact on existing streets and the ability of the applicants to mitigate the traffic impacts at the site and affected adjacent streets and ways;
- 2. Adequacy of the public infrastructure to service the area and the immediate vicinity of the site. The public infrastructure includes the city's water, sewer and public safety protection;
- 3. Protection of adjoining properties against serious detrimental uses by providing for adequate site drainage, offensive sounds and sights and landscaped screening and buffers;
- 4. Convenience and safety of vehicular and pedestrian movement within the site and location of driveways and adjacent streets;
- 5. Adequacy of parking and loading arrangements; and
- 6. Adequacy of the methods for disposal of water, sewerage and refuse and other wastes resulting from the permitted use on the site.

Including Representatives of the Homeless
Naval Housing Area, Quincy, MA

Notice is hereby given that pursuant to the Base Closure Community Redevelopment and Homeless Assistance Act of 1994 (Redevelopment Act), the City of Quincy, the designated Local Redevelopment Authority (LRA) for the Naval Housing Area, Quincy, Massachusetts, is seeking notices of interests from state and local governments, and representatives of the homeless, for buildings and property at the Naval Housing Area located at Squantum Gardens/Naval Terrace that has been declared surplus to the Federal Government. This installation was selected for closure by the 1995 Defense Base Closure and Realignment Commission.

The property and buildings have been declared surplus to the Federal Government and, as required by the Redevelopment Act, the Local Redevelopment Authority, the City of Quincy, hereby announces that state and local governments, representatives of the homeless and other interested parties shall submit a Notice of Interest (NOI) no later than 4:00 p.m. on Friday, September 6, 1996. A listing of the properties at the Naval Housing Area was published by the U.S. Navy in the Federal Register on May 6, 1996. All those interested in submitting a NOI should request a "NOI Application Package" from the LRA beginning June 26, 1996.
To request an Application Package, please contact Richard
H. Meade, City of Quincy, Department of Planning &
Community Development, 1305 Hancock Street, Quincy, MA

Notices of interest for homeless assistance use may be submitted by a state or local government agency or private nonprofit organization that provides or proposes to provide services to homeless persons and families resident in the vicinity of the installation. Although buildings on properties that may be used to serve homeless individuals or families are available at no cost, representatives of the homeless are responsible for improvements and operating costs.
Organizations may also learn more about the available buildings and property and the process for submitting a NOI by attending a workshop that will be held on the site on Wednesday, June 26, 1996. This workshop, which begins at 10:30 a.m., will include an overview of the base reuse process, a tour of the site, and information about the application process. To register for this workshop, please contact Richard Meade at (617) 376-1362 by Friday, June 21, 1996.

spokeswoman for the Daughters of Charity, said the Daughters have affiliated their other hospitals with non-Catholic institutions in the past, but only those that do not offer abortions. She added that no buyer for Carney has yet been identified.

Carney officials said in a statement the cardinal and the Daughters agreed that a Carney-Quincy affiliation "cannot exist without serious compromise to Catholic identity."

"Therefore, after further consideration, the Daughters of Charity National Health System-Northeast has determined that it is no longer feasible for it to continue to sponsor Carney Hospital," the statement reads. "The System will begin immediately to explore the process of transferring the ownership of the hospital to another party. It is anticipated that the new owner will enter into network relationships required by local market conditions."

The statement adds that Cardinal Law and the Daughters feel "great sadness" about the decision, since Carney Hospital, which was founded 133 years old, is the oldest Catholic hospital in New England.

Sheets said while he understands the cardinal's decision was a difficult one, it remains crucial that Quincy Hospital affiliates with another institution as soon as possible to stay competitive in today's health care market.

"We don't know what's going to happen with Carney now," he said. "This situation creates an even greater demand for affiliation with another hospital. If we don't affiliate, we're not going to survive."

The cardinal's decision came while the City Council was preparing to approve a home-rule petition that would make the Quincy-Carney affiliation a reality. The petition, which required subsequent approval by the state Legislature, was necessary because Quincy Hospital is owned by the city.

Both Sheets and DiPisa said the decision to sell Carney Hospital in an attempt to make a future merger/affiliation with another institution possible is indicative of the state of today's health care industry. Sheets added that he believes the work already put into the Quincy-Carney affiliation leaves Quincy Hospital in a strong position to join forces with Milton, Carney or another hospital in the future.

THIS BUILDING AT 1212 Hancock St. in Quincy Center will become the new "front door" at Quincy College if the school can purchase it from its current owner. Dr.

Jeremiah Ryan, president of the college, said an offer of about $2 million was made Tuesday.

At Raymondi's Request Following Contamination Sheets Considering Penn's Hill Water, Sewer Bill Abatements

Mayor James Sheets said he will make a decision next week on whether water bills and sewer charges for residents of Penn's Hill will be abated following a period of contaminated water in the neighborhood.

The mayor made his comments Tuesday in response to a letter he received from Ward 2 City Councillor Daniel Raymondi. The letter reads, in part, "On behalf of the residents of Penn's Hill, I would respectfully request that you abate the water bills and sewer charges for the billing cycle in which this unfortunate situation occurred."

Sheets said he will not be able to make a final decision this week.

"We're looking at that situation," he said. "We're evaluating it. I'll make a decision next week."

The mayor added that either he or Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton has the authority to call for the abatement "if there's just cause."

The city's water is supplied by the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

Reached by telephone, Raymondi said he is hopeful the mayor will grant his request, since the city has taken similar action in the past. He praised the DPW and other city officials for moving quickly to eliminate the problem, but added that the residents should not have to pay for the contaminated water.

"I think it's the proper course of action for the city to take, in light of the inconvenience caused to the residents," he said.

The contaminated water problem, which was cleared up last week, affected several streets in the Penn's Hill area and lasted nearly a week. It is believed to have been caused by bird droppings in an above-ground tank that has since been repaired.

Residents were forced to boil water and rely on donations of spring water from Shop & Shop, Monadnock Spring Water Co. and Shaw's Supermarkets while the tap water was contaminated.

Existing Circle Could Be Eliminated Plans For FR Rotary Redesign

Plans for the redesign and possible elimination of the Fore River Rotary were to be presented at a neighborhood meeting held last night (Wednesday) by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi.

The meeting was to be held at 7 p.m. at the Fore River Clubhouse, 16 Nevada Rd., Quincy Point.

Traffic Engineer Jack

Gillon and Rick Bryant, principal engineer with Sam Park Associates Inc., were to discuss the plans to redesign the rotary. The firm is doing the work as part of the traffic mitigation package for the Granite Crossing (Roche Bros.) project off Quincy Ave., according to Raymondi.

Raymondi said the the firm is working on "a variety of different options" for the area. While one plan calls for minimal improvements to the existing rotary, another would have the existing island at the rotary divided so that traffic could travel straight from Washington Street to the Fore River Bridge, he added.

Raymondi also said that speed and volume are issues he wants addressed and that he hopes to limit access to Dee Road from the rotary. The public should also make its opinion heard as to what plan should be used, he said.

All interested residents are invited to attend. For more information, call Raymondi at 479-9044.

Offers Nearly $2M For 1212 Building QC Seeks Hancock St. 'Front Door'

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Quincy College has made an offer of approximately $2 million to purchase the building at 1212 Hancock St. in Quincy Center as the school's new "front door."

The plan has the support of Mayor James Sheets, who said Tuesday he is willing to send a bond issue to the City Council to fund it. The owner of the building and the realtor negotiating on his behalf could not be reached at press time.

Dr. Jeremiah Ryan, president of the college, said he wants the property to be used for administrative/student services offices and additional classroom and library space. He added that the school made a counteroffer of about $2 million Tuesday after the owner--Alain Checroune, president of United Real Estate Investors in Boston--asked for $2.25 million through Mike Kenealy of Key Realty in Quincy.

Ryan said he feels the college's offer is a fair one, since it is closer to what the building was sold for in February 1995.

"We've been bargaining in good faith," he said.

Another issue is whether the 62 parking spaces at the college should be included in the sale price being negotiated. Ryan said he feels they should, but the owner disagrees.

Still, Ryan said he is hopeful the deal can be closed in the near future.

Developer: Wal-Mart Is Still Coming

The developer of a planned Wal-Mart in Quincy Point says as far as he knows, the store is still coming despite rumors it now won't.

Wal-Mart, which was granted permission to build at the site in 1994, still has not begun construction there.

But D.J. MacKinnon, president of Atlantic Development of Hingham, said he often speaks with Wal-Mart officials and they have given no indication they have changed their minds about opening the store near The Falls condominium complex.

"I hear those rumors, too," he said. "Whenever I go to Quincy, people are coming up to me and saying, 'I hear Wal-Mart's not coming.' But we speak with the Wal-Mart people on a regular basis, and we don't have any indication from them that it's not going to happen.

"If it weren't going to happen, we'd probably be the first to know," he added.

MacKinnon pointed out that Wal-Mart purchased 17 acres from Atlantic Development for $5.2 million in November 1994 and went through a lengthy process in order to get permission from the City Council to build at the

Sheriff Marshall Grand Marshal Flag Day Parade, Fireworks Friday

The City of Quincy, the Quincy Partnership and the Koch Club will sponsor the 45th annual Flag Day celebration Friday.

The evening will feature a parade, a ceremony and an impressive fireworks display. The parade will begin promptly at 7 p.m. and the fireworks will commence shortly after 9 p.m.

The parade will begin on Coddington Street, head north onto Hancock Street before heading down Southern Artery, ending at Adams Field.

The parade will feature marching bands, color guards, floats, the National Flag Truck, veteran's organizations, antique vehicles, emergency vehicles, and community organizations. The highlight of the parade will be the 3,000 flag-waving youngsters from the various youth organizations that will participate.

This year's grand marshal is Norfolk County Sheriff Clifford Marshall.

Marshall will be honored for his many years of dedicated service to Quincy as a citizen, public official, and law enforcement officer. He will ride in the honorary Grand Marshal vehicle and will be honored at a ceremony following the parade.

The ceremony, to be held at Adams Field after the parade, will feature the raising of the Mount Rushmore Flag, a 45-foot by 90-foot version of the Stars and Stripes. It will also be highlighted by the first annual presentation of the Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award, named for the founder of the Flag Day parade and one of the city's finest public servants.

The recipient of this year's award will be Anthony Delmonico, organizer of youth activities in the Broadmeadows area for more than 35 years.

The 20-minute fireworks display will be conducted by the Rockingham Fireworks Company. The show will occur over Black's Creek, and the best viewing areas will be from Pageant Field and along the southern end of Wollaston Beach.

"The significance of the Flag Day celebration is the involvement of the many youth groups. We try to instill a respect and reverence for our flag at a young age in Quincy," said Quincy Partnership Chairman Ed Keohane.

"It is important that these youngsters continue the tradition of patriotism that has been established in this city. I encourage the entire family to come out and enjoy a wonderful evening of patriotism and good old-fashioned pomp and circumstance," Keohane added.

The Flag Day Committee selected Marshall as grand marshal for his lifelong service to the community. "We are hoping to show him a small token of our appreciation for his many years of dedicated service to the city of Quincy," Keohane said.

Marshall, a 1956 graduate of Quincy High School, has served as Quincy city councillor, state representative and since 1974 Norfolk County sheriff. He has been active in civic and charitable causes as a member of the North Quincy Knights of Columbus, Quincy Sons of Italy and the Quincy Lodge of Elks.

CLIFFORD MARSHALL

Marshall is the co-founder of the Norfolk County Honorary Deputy Sheriff's Association and the Ward 2 Civic Association. He has also coached in the Quincy Youth Hockey League and served his country in the Marine Corps. He and his wife Louise have four sons: Clifford III, Michael, Paul and Christopher.

Marshall was recently honored at the Norfolk County's Law Day by being awarded the Amicus Curiae (Friend of the Court) and the James R. McIntyre Award. Both achievements recognize his continued commitment to law enforcement in our communities.

At Flag Day Ceremony

Anthony Delmonico To Receive Koch Youth Service Award

Anthony T. "Tony" Delmonico will be the recipient of the first annual Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award during the city's Flag Day ceremony Friday at Adams Field.

The announcement was made by the Quincy Flag Day Committee, which plans to annually recognize an individual who has made a significant contribution to the youth of Quincy.

Delmonico, 80, of Adams Shore, has organized programs in the Broad Meadows area for more than 35 years. In 1962, he established the Broad Meadows division of the Koch Club. His dedication to serving the youth of that area resulted in countless hours of activity for children throughout the city.

Delmonico organized leagues in baseball, softball, basketball, and bowling. He also served as chairman of the Koch Club

ANTHONY DELMONICO

Scholarship Committee, which provides college scholarship money for graduates of Quincy and North Quincy high schools.

A retired Park Department stone mason, Delmonico rose to the rank of foreman and his masonry and refurbishment work on many city monuments is well-known.

The Flag Day Committee started the award this year to recognize the memory of Richard J. Koch, founder of the Koch Club and the Flag Day Parade.

"It is a pleasure to honor Mr. Delmonico with the first annual Richard J. Koch Youth Service Award," said Quincy Partnership Chairman Ed Keohane. "His continued commitment to providing Quincy's youngsters with constructive activities has resulted in a better community for all of us. He is deserving of an award that carries Dick Koch's name, the epitome of public service to the youth community."

The Flag Day Parade and celebration will begin Friday at 7 p.m. The parade will begin on Coddington St. and head down Hancock St. to Southern Artery before ending at Adams Field. The ceremony will follow the parade and the evening will be capped off by a fireworks display over Black's Creek.

State Report On Hospital Due Within Two Weeks

Investigators from the state Department of Public Health spent part of this week at Quincy Hospital observing doctors and nurses in an attempt to learn why surgeons recently removed the wrong kidney from a cancer patient.

The state report on the May 20 operation is due to be completed within the next two weeks, according to officials.

A spokesman for the department said inspectors were set to begin their work Monday and spend two or three days at the hospital. The state investigation follows a surprise visit last Friday by an official from a national hospital accreditation organization.

State officials were to review the kidney medical charts and interview everyone involved in the operation, including doctors, nurses and secretaries.

Officials said Dr. William Helfrich of Weymouth and Dr. Tomas

Divinagracia, the assisting surgeon, also removed part of the woman's colon without any problems, officials said.

The two doctors have agreed not to perform surgery for 40 days until a number of investigations into their actions are concluded. Quincy Hospital has launched its own investigation, according to officials.

State investigators are focusing on whether the mistake was a one-time occurrence or an indication of deeper problems at

DEPRESSION WAKE UP CALL

No matter how exhausted Mary felt when she went to bed, she was wide awake again before dawn. She was wide awake, that is, but still feeling tired. Mary's constant feelings of fatigue were aggravated by irritability, trouble remembering things and difficulty concentrating or making decisions - all classic symptoms of depression. Mary got help for her depression, in the form of antidepressant medication and psychotherapy plus a life-style plan that includes physical exercise and dietary changes. Mary aren't so lucky, though, enduring the symptoms of depression without recognizing their cause. Depression is more than "feeling sad." Being alert to the signs can help prevent needless suffering. P.S. As many as half of all patients who consult doctors about feeling tired are suffering from depression.

Thanks to advances in neuroscience, depression can be treated far more easily than in earlier years. For more information, visit COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, located at 700 Congress St., in Quincy or call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli at 472-2550. Office hours by appointment. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospitals. We enjoy serving your needs. Presented as a public service for the benefit of all by the offices of COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE.

Remembering Russ

The recent death of Russ Johnson saddened those of us who had the good fortune to have known him but left us with fond memories.

For me, they were of his friendship with Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter, his community involvement and those good old days at Remick's.

Russ first met Carter in 1973 as arrangements chairman for the annual Men's Prayer Breakfast and asked the then governor of Georgia to be the keynote speaker.

It had nothing to do with politics. In fact, Russ was a Republican. He said he asked Carter because "I heard he was a good speaker and a good churchman."

Russ and his late wife, Mary, who hosted the popular "Stork Club" program on WJDA at the time were at Logan Airport to meet him when he arrived for the May breakfast.

They were wondering what to expect as they waited. They thought he probably would arrive with a large entourage. But they were pleasantly surprised and impressed when he stepped off the plane with a lone aide and casually carrying a suit bag flung over his shoulder. And, flashing that smile that was to become famous.

Mary kissed him. "I couldn't help it," she said later. "He was so friendly and natural."

They became friends during his brief stay. And from then, on Carter referred to Russ as "my first friend in Massachusetts."

A Christmas card was received from him that year. And the following December (1974) a letter confiding if he was going to run for President and wondering if they would help him in Massachusetts.

They sure would. Russ became his Quincy area coordinator.

Carter was still pretty much a political unknown nationally at the time. He was hardly a familiar household name—or a weekly newspaper office name for that matter.

I remember Russ calling me one day in November, 1975—just a year before the Presidential election—and asking if he could bring Rosalynn Carter to The Sun to say hello.

"Who's Rosalynn Carter?" I asked.

"She's Jimmy Carter's wife," he replied.

"Who's Jimmy Carter?" I asked.

"He's running for President," Russ said, sounding like he thought I must have just gotten back from Mars.

Rosalynn and Russ came in and we had a nice chat. As they were leaving, Russ turned to me and said: "He's going to be the next President and she's going to be the First Lady. Just wait and see."

He was right, of course.

But it wasn't to be a story with a happy ending. Mary fell gravely ill that election year, 1976.

Carter heard of her illness in October and sent her a get-well note and telling her "my prayers are with you."

He followed this with a bouquet of American beauty roses with the message:

"Wishing I could be with you. Because of you and Russell, we will enjoy a great Democratic victory in November. Love Jimmy and Rosalynn Carter."

Commission On Disability Meeting At City Hall June 17

Mary voted for him by absentee ballot from the hospital. And though weak, watched the election returns come in on television. Six days later—Nov. 8—she died.

But a President-elect had taken the time during the hectic final days of the campaign to make her final few days and hours, some of her happiest. Russ never forgot that.

Many will remember Russ as a buyer and salesman in the men's clothing department at Remick's. Customers and salesman forged a strong, trusting bond and friendship.

Russ, Ray Josephine, Ellie Hughes and the other salesman gave each of their customers that special personalized service.

Dave Becker of Braintree, one of Russ's regular customers, recalls the day he was looking for a suit and just couldn't decide on which one.

"Here, Dave," said Russ. "Take these suits (three or four of them) home with you. Try them on and see what they look like in the sunlight. Let me know which one you like the best."

Can you imagine that happening at, say, Filene's or Macy's today?

Russ gave freely of his time, talent and energy to many worthy causes and organizations including the Salvation Army, the Protestant Social Service Bureau and the Pantry Shelf. He was one of the friends who stood by and helped Sybil Mattson for many years after she was left paralyzed in the 1955 polio epidemic.

When he got involved in a cause it was without fanfare but with an enthusiastic "you betcha." And he got it done.

In a touching tribute at his funeral service at First Congregational Church in Braintree, a beautiful hymn "Beautiful Savior of Mine," written by his wife, Barbara, was dedicated to Russ and to his life.

Rev. Robert Ripley, pastor, said it all pretty well in a few simple words:

"He always thought of others before he thought of himself."

Russ was one those genuine nice guys that don't come along often enough in a world that needs them.

Thank You For Article On NQHS Habitat Volunteers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Thank you for printing a most inspiring article on the work of several North Quincy High School students in the city of Bridgeport, Conn. ("Habitat for Humanity Volunteers," May 2). It is always heartening to read of students who are not simply "lost on themselves" but who consider it a high calling to serve others with their time and abilities. May their tribe increase!

Your description of Habitat for Humanity, though adequate, is not complete, however. While it is true that Habitat is "an international non-profit program that seeks to eliminate poverty housing and homelessness," it is thankfully much more. Begun over twenty years ago by Millard Fuller, a Baptist minister, Habitat recognizes that building houses is only a part of the solution for homelessness. Lasting justice and shalom derive from God alone and will visit a home and a community only when the inhabitants discover themselves to be recipients of God's love and righteousness as well.

To that end, Habitat's witness is intentional. I quote a portion of its mission statement: "Its purpose is to further the goal of eliminating inadequate and poverty housing as a witness to the Gospel of Jesus Christ..."

My church participates in the Charlotte, N.C. Chapter of Habitat, which holds the distinction of building more homes than any other chapter, anywhere. Recently, Jimmy Carter was on hand to help build a home and to present our chapter with a much deserved award. I have personally seen the lives of many people changed because of Habitat homes and because of Habitat volunteers who incarnate God's love and mercy through the time they give on the work site.

Thanks Those Who Helped With Granite House Car Wash

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

Speaking for the residents, families, and staff at Granite House, I would like to thank all those who contributed to the success of a recent car wash we held in Quincy.

We owe special thanks to the Citizens Bank at 77 Granite St. for the use of their parking lot and water. Elspeth Brown, branch manager, worked with us for a month to make this event successful and also donated some merchandise to our residents. Also coming through for us at the last minute was Rev. Luann Johnson of Covenant Congregational Church at 315 Whitwell St., who allowed us to access the church's outside water supply as well. We are very grateful to them both.

I would also like to thank The Big Party at 100 Granite St. for donating helium balloons which added to our promotional effort, and to Papa Gino's, also at 100 Granite St., for donating a number of pizzas at the restaurant after the car wash for our residents, their family members, and other volunteers.

Granite House is a long-term residential school and treatment program for adolescents ages 12-18 from Quincy and other communities in the Massachusetts Department of Mental Health MetroSouth area. Our parent agency is Bay State Community Services at 15 Cottage Ave. in Quincy Center. We plan to use the monies raised and monies previously donated to purchase a new stove for our facility.

Again, I offer my thanks to all the Quincy residents and businesses who supported us, and to our hard-working staff members who volunteered their time on a day off.

Council Adopts Govt. Center Plan

By PAUL HAROLD

The City Council adopted the formal framework for a Quincy Government Center complex planned for the site adjacent to City Hall.

The legislation was proposed by Mayor James McIntyre and was recently signed into law by Gov. Francis Sargent, but required local approval.

Proposed for the Hancock St. block housing McGilvary's Drug store and other businesses, the 10-12 story building with an atrium would cost an estimated $10 million.

SWING BRIDGE FOR FORE RIVER REJECTED

The state Department of Public Works rejected the city's plea to widen the horizontal clearance of the Fore River Bridge and said it would end any further study.

The study was requested to keep the General Dynamics yard competitive by allowing it to bid on larger and wider tankers and other ships. The swing plan would have used on of the spans to "swing" open the bridge, allowing for wider clearance, but would have produced stress beyond the bridge's current capacity, according to the DPW.

The DPW also noted the cost was estimated at $6.5 million, not the $5 million estimated by General Dynamics.

CASHMAN'S QUARRY TO BE USED FOR DUMP

Mayor McIntyre ended the debate on siting a new city dump by designating Cashman's Quarry (off Willard St. and west of the Southeast Expressway) for a one and a half to two-year operation.

McIntyre said he was open to any long term solution to the dumping problem, including either sanitary landfill or incineration at Pike's Peak near the Milton line and the Blue Hills Reservation.

The mayor also expanded the committee studying the disposal issue to include representatives from the St. Moritz Association and residents of Minihan's Lane.

Three Sterling Students Create Title I Banner

Three Title I students at Sterling Middle School recently worked with their teacher, Patricia O'Brien, and the school's art teacher, Paula Campbell to put together a new banner for the Title I Program of the Quincy Public Schools.

Sarah DeFrederico, Joe Vo and Karol Stryjewski designed a flag that explains the Title I theme, "Learning is a Lifetime Commitment." A small figure with a mortarboard on his head sits on a high pile of books and papers studying a Math book.

Title I Director Alicia Coletti said, "This banner was displayed with others from across Massachusetts at the Title I Conference this month in Hyannis. Very few flags were made by students and we were so proud that Title I students showed such commitment and artistic excellence in putting this one together."

Officers for this year are John Noonan, chairman; Trudy Buckley, vice chairperson and Mary Kay Bamford, secretary.

Noonan has been a member of the board for the past 24 years and served as chairman for 13 consecutive years. Last November, South Shore Elder Services presented Noonan with the Edythe B. Last year, Noonan received the "Producer of the Year" award presented by Quincy Continental Cablevision Community Television and the top award in the senior category for his monthly "Senior Beat" magazine local cable program in statewide competition sponsored by the Massachusetts Cable Commission.

Noonan and COA Executive Director Brian Buckley were appointed alternate delegates to the 1995 White House Conference on Aging and attended the four-day conclave in Washington, D.C. last May with delegates from all 50 states to set national policies on aging for the next decade.

Buckley has been a longtime member of the COA board and is also a founder of the Quincy chapter of the AARP. She also serves on the Quincy Hospital Board of Managers and has been instrumental in raising funds for nursing scholarships amounting to thousands of dollars.

To Find Missing College Student Sheets: City Would Assist In Drainage Of Quarry

Mayor James Sheets said the city will co-operate if Gov. William Weld decides to drain the Granite Rail Quarry in Quincy to find the body of a missing 19-year-old man who disappeared two years ago.

P.J. McDonagh, a college student from Ireland who was in the United States visiting relatives, was last seen on June 26, 1994, by a friend, Mark Walsh, who has given police several different accounts of their parting.

One version Walsh told police is that the pair went to the quarry after drinking at a Dorchester bar. Walsh said he fell asleep, and when he awoke, McDonagh was gone.

Yet despite attempts over the weekend by State Police and members of the American Underwater Search and Survey Team who used a high-tech sonar camera to survey the quarry, as well as several previous efforts by dive teams, McDonagh's body has never been found.

Weld would have the final say on whether to drain the quarry, which is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC), in a final attempt. State Rep. James Brett of Dorchester has helped secure $1 million to have the job done.

Sheets said the city would offer any technical assistance necessary if that's what the governor decides to do.

"It must be extraordinarily difficult for the family," he said.

But Sam Campbell, a spokesman for the MDC, said the State Police still have not completed their investigation. While the MDC will have the quarry drained immediately if that is what Weld orders, Campbell said at this point that can only be viewed as "Plan B."

"We have to take it one step at a time," he said. "We have to check our other options before draining it."

Officially, McDonagh is still considered a missing person. A $25,000 reward has been offered for information that provides clues to help solve the case.

Family Commission Info Line Receives 226 Calls In First Week

In its first four weeks of operation, the Commission on the Family's CENTREX Information Line received 226 calls to its main number, 376-1420, according to Linda Stice, executive director of the commission.

"The messages most frequently accessed were those on 'The Basics: Food, Shelter, Clothing, Fuel Assistance, Emergency Financial Assistance, and Legal Assistance' and 'Services for Families with Children'," said Stice. "In addition, about 40 individuals, families, and service providers requested print-outs of the information on the CENTREX Line."

NYNEX will provide a usage report to the city each month showing how many calls the Information Line receives.

The Information Line provides recorded telephone messages 24 hours a day on 30 different topics ranging from pre-natal care for expectant mothers to housing for senior citizens.

"We researched the services of over 130 local agencies and condensed the information into 30 three-minute messages that we think can be helpful to Quincy residents," Stice said. "Any person can call me at 376-1421 to get help with specific problems, but the Information Line is different. It's there 24 hours a day and it's anonymous. That can be really important to people."

The commission is working on a booklet that will describe educational and recreational activities for Quincy children.

"There are so many great activities for children, but no place that we know of that lists all of them. We'd like to put together a booklet that will be ready for parents at the start of the school year in September," Stice said.

Any organization wishing to be included may call Stice at 376-1241.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Here's What The Potential Home Buyer Looks For

As a homeowner and potentially a home seller, it's important for you to keep informed about what's going on in the residential marketplace, according to Vincent Moscardelli of ERA Central Real Estate, 128 McGrath Highway, Quincy.

Moscardelli said the National Association of Home Builders (NAHB) recently assisted a research firm in compiling information about potential new home buyers' preferences and wants. Here are some of the highlights from their findings:

•The "typical" new home shopper has a median age of 39 and a median combined household income of $64,394. More than 75 percent of those polled already own a home and 77 percent are married.

•Most of the trade-up buyers want 2,200 square feet in their next home. The median size of their present home is 1,700 square feet.

•A two-story home ranks above a single-level home: 49 percent vs. 40 percent respectively. The rest were introduced in a split-level.

•An overwhelming 80 percent want nine-foot or higher ceilings on the first floor. Close to 50 percent want nine-foot ceilings on the second floor.

•A kitchen separated with a half-wall from the adjacent family room is a must for the majority. Another 31 percent prefer a completely open kitchen and family room (sometimes known as a hearth room). Only 10 percent think the two should be separate rooms.

•More than 50 percent of those polled prefer four bedrooms; 39 percent choose three bedrooms.

•Nearly 40 percent want a three-car garage; the rest prefer a two-car garage.

•In order to make their "dream home" more affordable, here are what potential buyers would agree to: unfinished space, such as a basement or bonus room that could be finished later--45 percent; live farther from shopping and entertainment--34 percent; smaller lot size--34 percent; "expandable home" floor plan--32 percent; and less square feet in home--24 percent.

•Here are the most popular features in the kitchen: ample counter space--95 percent; double sink--89 percent; room for table and chairs--85 percent; walk-in pantry--84 percent; and Corian (or other solid surface material) counters--61 percent.

•The most popular specialty rooms for potential new home buyers are a laundry room, formal dining room, den/library, and home office. Less popular are a media room and an exercise room.

•One master suite and three standard bedrooms is preferred by the majority over two master suites. Sixty percent want the master suite on the second floor.

•Other desirable amenities include: built-in shelving, fireplace in family room, skylights in bathroom/kitchen, bay windows in living/dining room, brick exterior in front, and a lot with trees.

For more information about the new home market and resale values in your area, call Moscardelli at 328-1312.

the hospital. A second phase of the state investigation will concentrate on whether Quincy Hospital staff follow the state and federal regulations that govern surgery.

Upon completion of the state report in the next two weeks, those found responsible for the error during the operation will be reported to the appropriate licensing board for disciplinary hearings.

The state Board of Regulation in Medicine already is investigating the actions of the two surgeons, according to officials.

The state inspectors will send their findings on the hospital's adherence to federal regulations to federal officials who oversee spending in the government's Medicaid and Medicare programs. The hospital will have 10 days to respond.

The hospital, if it refuses to correct any deficiencies, could lose its state operating license or federal reimbursement for Medicare and Medicaid patients. The Department of Public Health spokesman said he does not anticipate that occurring.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Health Care Organizations, which sent a doctor to inspect the hospital last Friday, will decide next month whether to take action against the hospital. The commission could revoke the hospital's accreditation, put it on probation, or order specific improvements.

Quincy College Seeks Hancock St. 'Front Door'

tages: "The number of tenants in the 30,900-square-foot building would allow the college to "ease into the building" as tenants move out, making the transition period less complicated for the school. Among the current tenants are Century 21 Real Estate, TAD Temporary Services, several law offices, and others.

"The building's proximity to the existing campus would allow it to become a "prominent and elegant front door" on Hancock Street. "It would give the college a very nice image," said Ryan.

"The building is handicapped accessible and has a new roof, new elevators, and other modern features.

"By housing administrative/student services offices, the new property would allow the college to make a decision on what to do with the old Victorian-style house where those services currently are located. Ryan said the building could be used for other college purposes or simply vacated.

"Additional library space could be utilized without jeopardizing the possibility of a future collaboration between the college and the nearby Thomas Crane Public Library for similar purposes.

"Additional classroom space would allow the college to maintain its current number of classrooms in Coddington Hall. One previous plan called for that building to lose a number of classrooms in a reshuffling of space now available.

Indeed, Ryan sees classroom space as a major issue facing the college.

"I see the college growing in the future," he said. "I think we're going to need tons of classroom space."

Sheets agreed.

"Clearly, the college is growing," said the mayor. "It has to have more space, and it makes sense to have space in close proximity to the campus.

Yes, I think this is a time for them to act.

"Quincy College has a very positive impact on businesses. The more activity we have in the downtown and the college, the better off we'll be."

The home-rule petition that originally created the college prevents the school from owning any property, which means the city would have to bond for the purchase of 1212 Hancock St. Ryan said he would like the mayor to send a bond issue of $3 million to the City Council for consideration—$2 million for the building, and $1 million for renovations to the rest of the campus.

Sheets said he is willing to bond for both the new building and any needed renovations, but noted that such action could not be taken for one of the college's facilities—Saville Hall—because it is owned by Citizens Bank, not the city. Renovations to that building would have to be funded some other way, he said.

Developer: Wal-Mart Still Coming To City

site. "That's a considerable investment," he noted.

He added that he knows of a similar case where Wal-Mart bought a site in Northboro but did not begin construction for another three years.

MacKinnon acknowledged, however, Wal-

Mart's original date to begin construction has passed. He also noted that the Planned Unit Development (PUD) Wal-Mart received from the City Council expires in September, and the company will have to reappear before the council if it does not begin construction by the end of that month.

The planned Wal-Mart store would become part of the Granite Crossing shopping center already located at the site. The other major tenant, Roche Bros. Supermarkets, purchased 10 acres from Atlantic Development and already has built its store there.

George Burke Receives Honorary UMass Degree

Atty. George Burke of Quincy, former city councillor, state representative, and district attorney, recently received an honorary doctor of laws degree from the University of Massachusetts at Amherst.

The degree was presented by UMass President William Bulger during the school's graduation ceremonies.

A graduate of the UMass Class of 1956, was a star basketball player at the school who earned the nickname "Trigger" for his scoring prowess and wore No. 32 for the team before National Basketball Association Hall-of-Famer Julius Erving.

Burke was inducted into the UMass Hall of Fame in 1981. Two No. 32s, one with Burke's name and one with Erving's, hang from the ceiling of the Mullins Center where the team plays.

Burke is also a longtime supporter of athletic and academic programs at the school.

Following is the text of Bulger's presentation to Burke:

"Long before Julius Erving, long before Marcus Camby, long before a UMass Final Four basketball team, there was you. They didn't call you 'Trigger' Burke for nothing. But after your storied basketball career was finished at UMass, you continued to pull the trigger for the university, just as you did while taking your famous jump shot.

"As a state legislator, you led the campaign for your alma mater as it sought fiscal autonomy.

ATTY. GEORGE BURKE of Quincy (left) received an honorary doctor of laws degree from University of Massachusetts at Amherst President William Bulger during the school's recent graduation ceremonies. Burke, a graduate of the UMass Class of 1956 who was a star basketball player at the school, is a longtime supporter of its athletic and academic programs.

(Teresa A.B. Gauthier Photographic Services)

Later, while the campus

mushroomed from a sleepy cow college into a major university, you served as its outspoken advocate in the Legislature.

"Over time, you have continued to squeeze the trigger for the campus, contributing generously to various athletic and academic programs. It is no exaggeration to say that, here at UMass, you have made us 'Trigger-happy' with your numerous contributions to our quality of life.

"George Burke, by the authority vested in me by the Board of Trustees of the University of Massachusetts, I confer upon you the degree of doctor of laws, honoris causa. In accordance with the usual custom, you are entitled to all the rights and privileges which pertain to this degree here and elsewhere. In token thereof, we award you the diploma, and invest you with the appropriate hood."

Legion Baseball

Defeats Cohasset 6-2, Blanks Milton 4-0

Morrisette Wins Two After Opening Loss

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team, which last season finished third in the state for the second straight year, opened its 52nd season with a loss followed by two victories.

In a 3-2 defeat at West Roxbury, Morrisette starter Joe McCarthy gave up a three-run triple in the third inning after allowing a hit and two walks to load the bases. In the seventh inning, a double by Jeff Russell scored Tim Zaniboni and Matt McLaughlin to cut the lead to one run, but Russell was left stranded on second. Tim Cunio had the only other two hits for Morrisette.

Morrisette bounced back for its first win of the season, a 6-2 victory over Cohasset. Mike Kenney pitched an outstanding game, scattering six hits, striking out 11 and walking two. Kenney, who struck out the side in the fourth and seventh innings, also chipped in with two hits and an RBI.

Tim Zaniboni had a good game at the plate with two singles, a sacrifice fly and two RBIs. Eric Tegan went two for three with a walk, scored two runs and stole two bases. Also swinging hot bats were Jim Cunio (two for three), Brian Beaton (single, stolen base, RBI), Ray Cattaneo (double) and Jeff Russell (triple). Tom Cunio and Matt McLaughlin contributed singles to round out Morrisette's 13-hit attack.

For the second straight game, Morrisette received an excellent performance from its starting pitcher. This time it was Jeff Russell, who pitched a complete game four-hit shutout, striking out 10 and allowing no walks in a 4-0 blanking of Milton.

Morrisette took the lead in the second when Tom Cunio, who had singled, scored on a bases loaded walk to Eric Fagan. Morrisette scored three more runs in the fifth on Paul Marnikovic's two-run triple, which scored Tim Zaniboni and Mike Kenney, and a single by Tom Cunio which scored Marnikovic. Jim Cunio added a double in the inning.

Kenney and Tom Cunio finished with two hits apiece and Fagan, Ray Cattaneo and Matt McLaughlin each added one hit.

Morrisette was scheduled to play Quincy yesterday (Wednesday) at Adams Field and host Weymouth Monday. Both games are at 8 p.m.

This season marks Ray Cattaneo's 27th as manager of the Morrisette squad. Assisting Cattaneo will be Gus Russo, athletic officer, and longtime scorer and statistician Richard (Berger) Ryan.

Cattaneo also has two new coaches, Mark Kelliher and Tom Balzano, who as players led Morrisette to the state championship in 1992. Kelliher and Balzano will attempt to fill the void left by the departures of nine-year head coach Dave Perdios and six-year pitching coach Tom Malvesti. Perdios left to take the head coaching job at North Quincy High School.

Seven players return from last season's team: Brian Beaton, Tom Cunio, Tim Zaniboni, Mike Kenney, Jeff Russell, Joe McCarthy and Paul Marnikovic.

BOOTING UP A CV JOINT

Constant velocity (CV) joints are flexible joints used in front-wheel-drive (FWD) automobiles to permit smooth application of power to the wheels. In the event that a FWD car should display clicking noises coming from the front of the car during turns, it may be due to a worn outboard CV joint. Each side of the car has an inner and outer joint, both of which are covered by protective seals known as "boots." If there are no unusual noises coming from the front of the car and there is no shudder or vibration, but the boot is torn, only the boot needs replacing. If this bit of maintenance is performed immediately, it can prevent the destruction of the CV joint and its costly replacement. For this reason, it is a good idea to make sure that the CV joint boots are inspected every time the car is lubricated.

Hint: A properly adjusted boot (over the CV joint) will stretch in accordance with changes in axle length as the cargoes over bumps, or else the boot will be subject to tearing.

Maintaining your car is important so that it will give you better service and last longer. At today's prices it is not wise to do anything else. To help you properly care for your car, come into the service department at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, where you will be offered the best service available by ASE certified technicians who are very knowledgeable about today's cars. We use the AllData CD-ROM based system to keep right up-to-date with the very latest in service and maintenance bulletins for all makes of cars. A Thought For The Week

We learn the words to the "Pledge of Allegiance" early in our lives. Yet many Americans do not know the history or the heritage of our flag. They are unaware that the first flag Day was in 1777. On June 14 of that year, the Continental Congress passed a resolution, legally establishing "the stars stripes." As a young nation, our new flag proved to be a symbol of strength and victory. We all link the name of Francis Scott Key and the then poem "The Star Spangled Banner." Key was held prisoner aboard a British man-of-war in Baltimore harbor during the war of 1812. The British were confident they would capture the Fort before sunrise. All through the night with the "rockets red glare" and bursting bombs the stars and stripes held fast. The Americans had been victorious.

In some cases, one flag can have many histories. Did you know that the same flag that flew over the U.S. Capitol in Washington on Dec. 7, 1941, at the beginning of World War II, was also flown from the mast of the USS Missouri during the final Japanese surrender on Sept. 2, 1945?

Let us on June 14 take time to remember our flag and be proud of what it represents to all of us...

BUSINESS

McKay Fried & Partners Wins Advertising Award

McKay Fried & Partners, an advertising and public relations agency which opened in Quincy in January 1995, was recently honored by the New England Newspapers Advertising Executives Association (NENAEA).

The agency was awarded second place in the best agency category for their Bank of Braintree advertising campaign, which was placed in The Quincy Sun and other local newspapers throughout 1995.

The series featured real bank clients with Bank of Braintree officials, and the copy included testimonials from the client regarding the service they receive from the bank. As a result, the advertisements achieved the bank's objective by defining it as a premier community commercial lending institution, and generating significant new business for the bank.

"We are extremely pleased with the campaign, and our marketing relationship with McKay Fried & Partners," said Bank of Braintree President/CEO Donald Olson. "Our business as a commercial bank has increased significantly, and this award only reinforces our strong feeling that the campaign contributed to this growth."

Additional clients include Syratex International, The Corcoran Jennison Companies, Bayside Exposition and Convention Center, Topor Ford/Dodge, The Family Research Council, and Car Call, among others.

"McKay Fried & Partners is honored to have received the NENAEA award and thanks The Patriot Ledger for recognizing and submitting our campaign," said President/CEO John McKay. "Our philosophy and number one priority is to build our client's business, and we've put together a terrific, integrated communications team to make that happen."

City Democrats To Rally June 25

The Quincy Democratic City Committee will sponsor a Rally for Democrats Tuesday, June 25 at the Fore River Clubhouse in Quincy Point.

The event will include a buffet at 6 p.m. and "The War Room," a documentary about the group that managed the Clinton campaign in 1992.

Representatives from the campaigns of President Clinton, U.S. Sen. John Kerry, Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt, who is running for Congress and City Councillor Timothy Cahill who is running for county treasurer will be in attendance. Prizes will be given to the ward with the most attendees and to those wearing the best political buttons.

Alicia Coletti, committee chairperson, said, "We are encouraging everyone to attend this event, even those not registered at Democrats, because we think it will be both enjoyable and informative for those wishing to vote intelligently in the fall."

Those wishing to reserve a spot should call their ward chairperson: Ward 1, Archie Wahlberg, 786-8261; Ward 2, Keith McCray, 328-9403; Ward 3, Mary Dawson, 479-9786; Ward 4, Bernice Mader, 773-6881 or Steve Hawko, 773-0276; Ward 5, Steve McGrath, 471-2199 and Ward 6, Joe Lydon, 328-5449.

For more information, call Coletti at 773-4235.

Horse-Drawn Carriage Could Arrive This Month

A new horse-drawn carriage that will transport tourists and residents alike around the downtown and some of Quincy's historic sites could be doing so by the end of the month.

The City Council granted Ned Murtagh of Boston Handsome Cabs a license to travel down city streets last week. Murtagh will appear before the Quincy License Board for final approval next week.

Jo-An Thomas, the city's tourism director, said Murtagh will utilize St. Moritz Stables in West Quincy as part of the new Quincy operation. Plans for call one horse-drawn carriage to begin operating this month, although the program could expand in the future, she said.

The initial horse-drawn carriage will transport patrons from a designated point in Quincy Center past the Quincy Homestead and the "Old House" affiliated with the Adams family before returning to the center, Thomas said. The route was chosen because of light traffic in that area, she noted.

Thomas, who said the horse and carriage will make its debut during the city's Flag Day Parade Friday, added that the horse and carriage, along with a driver dressed in period attire, will help make Quincy more "visible" as a tourist destination.

"We have not been visible to the tourists," she said. "We have to spread the general awareness of Quincy as a tourist destination. We're hoping this is the seed that's going to start the garden."

The final cost for the new service has not yet been determined, Thomas added.

Planning Board Hearings June 19

The Quincy Planning Board will hold two public hearings Wednesday, June 19 in the City Council Chambers at City Hall, 1305 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

The first hearing at 7 p.m. concerns the rezoning of land in Squantum from Planned Unit Development to Business C. The land is bounded westerly by land now or formerly of Jordan Servicercenter Inc., northerly by the existing zoning district boundary line by Business C and the PUD District, and southerly by the northerly boundary of Lot 24 shown on Land Court Plan 27744J.

The second hearing at 7:30 p.m. concerns the application filed by Avalon Properties Inc. and pending before the City Council for a PUD Special Permit for the property at Lot A, Falls Blvd., Quincy Point. The project consists of 171 apartments to be contained in six three-story structures and a single-story community center with 310 parking spaces including 250 surface spaces and 60 spaces in detached garages.

A map outlining the zoning change and copies of the Avalon proposal may be examined at the Office of Planning and Community Development at City Hall weekdays from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

Mounted Police Detail Gets Council Funding

The Quincy Police Department's mounted police program will soon be operational now that it has received funding from the City Council.
 The council appropriated $72,438 Monday night from the department's equipment budget. City Auditor Robert Foy said the money already was available because it was left over from the purchase of police radios last fall.
 Police Chief Francis Mullen said about $52,000 will go toward the purchase of two horses and a tow vehicle to transport the animals as well as saddles and additional expenditures, while the balance will be used for the purchase of various unrelated police equipment.

 Mullen said he hopes to have the mounted police on city streets by July. The horses likely will be utilized on a seasonal basis, he noted, although they may be used in the winter if the weather is cooperative.
 The chief said the horses will be a useful tool for getting into areas police cars, bicycles and motorcycles cannot easily access, such as various wooded areas and parks and some parts of Quincy Center.

 "I think it will be effective," said Mullen.
 Councillor Michael Cheney said he wants the city to proceed cautiously with the mounted police program, since horses are far more unpredictable than motor vehicles or even police dogs. He asked the chief to present an evaluation of the

Held In Committee On 5-To-4 Vote

Heated Council Debate Over Site Plan Review

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The City Council engaged in a lengthy, heated debate about a proposed site plan review Monday night but ultimately left the matter hanging in committee.

The council voted 5-4 to delay a vote on the matter until it resumes meeting in September. In the meantime, a special task force appointed by Council President Peter Kolson composed of councillors and representatives from the Quincy Planning Board and the business community will meet over the summer to come up with a form of the plan that satisfies everyone.
 The site plan review, proposed by Ward 2 Councillor Daniel Raymondi, would require that all new structures in the city measuring 10,000 square feet or more require a Planning Board special permit. Originally, Raymondi had proposed 5,000 square feet, but the council two weeks ago amended the proposal to double the size. Single-family homes would not be affected by the plan.

 A number of small business owners have expressed opposition to the plan in its current form, saying it will discourage businesses from moving to the city and prevent smaller Quincy establishments from expanding. They have expressed interest in finding some kind of compromise through the task force, however.
 Raymondi became infuriated when Councillor

Michael Cheney made a motion Monday night to bring the matter out of the council's Ordinance Committee. He said the council agreed to appoint a task force and that the matter should be left in committee until the fall.
 Raymondi added that Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton has expressed concerns about plans by Shaw's Supermarkets to build a new store on Quincy Ave.--the main reason Raymondi has proposed a site plan review--because of the impact it will have on nearby traffic.

Council Approves $143.1M City Budget

The city's Fiscal Year 1997 municipal budget totaling $143,160,492 was passed unanimously by the City Council Monday night.
 As a result, city spending under Mayor James Sheets' FY97 plan will increase nearly 3 percent or about $4 million. Most of the increase will fund raises for city workers and a $1 million increase in the cost of water and sewer service.
 Councillors said Monday night that the increase in the budget likely will result in a small tax increase, something that has not happened in the city the past two years. Neither Sheets nor City Auditor Robert Foy would speculate on the amount of the increase.
 A $500,000 reduction in the Department of Public Works budget was the only major cut the council made in the city budget. The savings was the result of a newly-renegotiating rubbish and recycling contract with Browning-Ferris Industries.

 The council voted to hold a mid-year review of the budget in order to keep a better account of spending during the new fiscal year, which begins July 1. Councillor Michael Cheney, chairman of the council's Finance Committee, also pledged to provide fellow council members with a redesigned budget book that will outline the responsibilities of all city departments and how much money should be spent while meeting them.

 The FY97 municipal budget includes $46,934,259 for the school department, or $3,789,479 less than what originally was requested by school officials. School Committee members reduced the school budget by eliminating

Seniors Could Move Into Squantum Naval Site By September

By MICHAEL WHALEN

The city is planning to begin moving senior citizens into the apartments at Squantum Gardens and Naval Terrace in Squantum by September, according to Mayor James Sheets.

The mayor said Tuesday the city is negotiating an interim lease with the Navy, which currently controls the property, that would allow seniors to begin moving into the apartments in the fall. All Naval personnel, who must leave the 105 units at the site because of the closing of the South Weymouth

Naval Air Station, are expected to be gone by September, he added.

"We don't want those apartments to be empty for any period of time," said Sheets. "We need a presence there."

Although Sheets said the Navy plans to eventually transfer the land to the city-making Quincy the permanent owner--that transaction likely will not take place for about a year. Therefore, an interim lease is necessary if the site is to remain populated.

Further details of the plan are being worked out, the mayor said.

On Monday night, the City Council passed a home-rule petition introduced by Sheets that will allow the city to establish a special operations account to charge rent to the future residents at the site. The petition must now be approved by the state Legislature.

"We need Legislative support to operate out of the revenues we collect," said Sheets. "It's our intention to operate out of our own revenue so the city won't have to pay for it (running the site) out of the annual municipal budget."

Parking Approved

Water Works Expected To Open By Friday

Ed Kane, owner of the Water Works and the Tavern entertainment complex at Marina Bay told the License Board Tuesday he hopes to be open by Friday.

The major obstacle was cleared Tuesday afternoon when the board, in a visit to the site, approved the parking lot which had been a key issue.

"Just a few routine matters are left to be completed for the occupancy permit to be issued and that should be done in time for Mr. Kane to open by Friday, possibly Thursday," said City Clerk Joseph Shea, board chairman.

Kane, anxious to open no later than Friday and hopefully by tonight (Thursday), told the board he had "about 11 weeks of good weather left."

There have been a number of delays since Kane first applied for the Water Works. And, for awhile Tuesday it appeared there would be another one because of the absence of board member Matt Mulvey, city building inspector.

But at the request of Kane's lawyer, Atty. Dennis Harrington, Shea set up a special meeting of the board for Tuesday afternoon at the site to inspect the parking lot.

Raymondi Seeks Consistency Policy On Liquor Licenses

The Quincy License Board took under advisement a request from Ward 2 Councillor Dan Raymondi to establish a policy of consistency pertaining to the revocation or suspension of a liquor license.

The three requests are as follows:

- Establish a policy not to automatically stay any suspension or revocation of a liquor license.

- Establish a policy that no stay of any suspension or revocation be granted.

- Establish a policy that if any stay or any suspension or revocation is to be considered by the License Board that said matter only be considered by the board after a public hearing allowing the residents and concerned citizens of the area to be heard for and against.

Chairman Joseph Shea told Raymondi the board will discuss it at next week's meeting.

Organizers Want
Senior Conference Held Annually

If the city's first Senior Conference, planned for Sept. 21, is a success, its organizers, Quincy's Council on Aging and the Commission on the Family, hope it will become an annual event.

The suggestion of a local conference held specifically for Quincy's older citizens came from John Noonan, chairperson of the Council on Aging's Board of Directors. Noonan and Brian Buckley, director of the Council on Aging, attended the White House Conference on Aging in 1995. One of the ideas they brought back from Washington was the importance of holding a local conference.

Noonan brought up the possibility of a day-long event to Mayor James Sheets, who endorsed the plan as an excellent way for the City to contribute to the lifelong learning of its senior citizens.

"Learning doesn't end with formal education" said Sheets. "We want to provide a day of learning that is stimulating with topics of special interest to our senior population."

Frank Ollivierre, secretary of elder affairs for the Commonwealth of Massachusetts will be the keynote speaker at September's conference, to be held at the Beechwood Knoll School. Fourteen different workshops are planned, with experts presenting topics such as "It's Never Too Late: Becoming an Athlete at Any Age," "Understanding Alzheimer's Disease,"

"Delicious and Nutritious: Cooking Great Meals for One or Two," "Caring for Your Aging Parent," and "Grandparenting in the 90's."

Buckley and Linda Stice, executive director of the Commission on the Family, are planning the conference with the help of the Family Council, Americorps, and Impact Quincy. They hope to attract 200 seniors to the event, which will include a luncheon and musical entertainment.

For more information, call Buckley at 376-1424 or Stice at 376-1421.

GIVING LIP SERVICE

The lips may be the most delicate, vulnerable parts of the body that have to face hazards of the outside world. Without the tough layer of skin that protects the rest of the face, the lips are easy targets for sun burning, drying and chapping. Lip balms can help. When applied before going outdoors, before lips have a chance to become irritated, lip balm may supply an effective sun screen (be sure to check the labels) as well as seal in moisture to prevent chapping and cracking. Although they usually give the sensation of lubricating lips, lip balms and lipsticks do not actually moisturize. As a product wears off, that "moist" feeling goes with it, and well-being is our primary only making the lips feel dry by comparison. P.S. Licking your lips causes drying and irritation partly because the digestive enzymes in saliva.

In the full blossom of summer, don't let the sun turn you into a rose! Take care of your skin with the appropriate protective sunscreens. Danny And 'Ferrazzi's Folly'

Draining a Quincy quarry in search of a missing person may sound like an extreme investigatory step, but it has been done before.

And, with success.

Gov. William Weld will make the final call on whether the MDC-owned Granite Railway Quarry should be drained in the case of P.J. McDonagh, the 19-year-old college student from Ireland who disappeared two years ago this week. A friend placed him at the quarry shortly before.

If Weld is wondering whether it is worth trying--or worth the cost--he might consider the tragedy of little Robert (Danny) Matson 45 years ago.

The four-year-old vanished from the yard of his Cranch St. home Jan. 19, 1951 during a spring-like thaw.

For his parents, Robert and Edna Matson, it was agony as nearly 23 months went by without a trace of him. There were only theories: he had been kidnapped or slain.

A nation-wide search produced nothing except a few reports now and then that a little boy that looked like Danny was seen in one state or another. But nothing concrete.

Police Chief William Ferrazzi thought the secret to Danny's disappearance might be closer to home. The nearby quarries should be searched, he said. Divers went down, but found nothing. But it didn't discourage Ferrazzi. "Drain them," he said. "They should be drained. That's the only way we can eliminate quarries."

Finally, in August of 1952, half of the Field & Wilde Quarry--just some 1200 feet from the Matson home--was drained. But still no trace of Danny.

Funds ran out and the operation came to a standstill. But Ferrazzi wouldn't let go. In November he went before the City Council and obtained a $1,000 appropriation to finance the completion of the Field & Wilde project and the draining of two other quarries in the spring if necessary.

(The legislature has set aside $1 million for the Granite Railway Quarry draining if needed. That's a lot more money than what was spent at Field & Wilde but back then $1,000 was a lot of money.)

Ferrazzi had his critics. A waste of money, some said. Others laughed and called it "Ferrazzi's Folly." But he ignored them and the draining resumed. Then, one night in December, as the water in the other half of the quarry was lowered, the body of little Danny was found wedged on an underwater ledge.

"The body would never have surfaced," said Associate Medical Examiner Frederic Tudor, who after an autopsy, ruled the death an accidental drowning.

Danny, on that warm winter day, had wandered away from his yard and fallen through the thin ice.

If it hadn't been for Ferrazzi's insistence that the quarry be drained, Danny's disappearance would still be an unsolved mystery today.

Draining the Granite Rail Quarry might solve another one.

According to the American Medical Association, most people should be able to walk up three flights without having to pause for breath.

DON GOHL, one of Quincy's all-time popular bankers, is like the Energizer bunny: he keeps going and going.

Don recently marked his 50th anniversary in the banking industry with family and friends at a get-together hosted by his wife, Helen, at the Neighborhood Club.

Mayor James Sheets proclaimed the day "Don Gohl Day" and issued a special congratulatory citation which was presented by City Council President Peter Kolson.

Don and Peter love to sing and are good at it. So, to the delight of those attending, the pair teamed up as a harmonizing duet and entertained them.

Banks may change names but Don remains the same: a genuine ambassador of good will.

He began his career with the Quincy Savings Bank in May, 1946 after returning from the Pacific where he saw action with the Marines including the bloody battle for Guadalcanal.

In 1978 he joined the Quincy Cooperative--(wooded away by John Herbert who was then president.)

That bank became The Cooperative and then, and now, the Bank of Braintree. You'll find Don at the 85 Quincy Ave. office--when he's not out making house calls to senior citizens.

THINKING OUT LOUD: Quincy's elected officials have one thing in common to be grateful for: Bob Curry decided to go into the hardware business instead of politics.

Curry, who registers high on any popularity scale, would be a strong candidate for elective office. But he's not interested in running for anything. Not right now, anyway.

(But if he ever changes his mind, would Ed and Joan Keohane be his campaign coordinators?)

WHEN YOU THINK of the name Joseph LaRaia, you think of a mayor, councillor and now, city assessor. But did you know there is also a Rev. Joseph LaRaia?

He recently celebrated the Golden Jubilee of his ordination to the priesthood at a Mass of Thanksgiving at St. Catherine's Church in Westford.

And on hand for the occasion were Joseph LaRaia and Joseph LaRaia from Quincy--the former mayor and his father who is Rev. LaRaia's first cousin.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 POSTCARD view of the sewerage pumping station in Merrymount Park. Located behind the tennis courts off Fenno Street and somewhat hidden from view even with its 80 foot chimney, this building was built in 1898 by the city. In 1902 it was sold to the newly formed Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board to serve as part of the new sewer system serving the greater Boston area. Now after almost 100 years, the MWRA plans to build a new pumping station in Merrymount and demolish this handsome old one. They probably won't be publishing any postcards to show off the new facility.

They Are Not Forgotten, They Are Remembered

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

In response to Mr. Morris' letter in The Quincy Sun June 6:

As a president of Unit 380 Womens Auxiliary, I have had the honor many times of walking in front of Post 380's color guard. Each year they march to 10 memorials in Merrymount, Adams Shore, Germantown and Houghs Neck, the day before Memorial Day. They replace the flags and place a wreath on each one. As the color guard stands at attention, the American flag is then dipped and a hand salute is given in tribute.

They then march back to the sidewalk and fall out.

I think if next year Mr. Morris would get in touch with the American Legion a few days before Memorial Day, they could give him the time they would be at Fred Murphy's boulder memorial at Sea St. and Samoset Ave.

I hope this lets Mr. Morris know that his friend and many others are not forgotten; they are remembered! Not just on Memorial Day, but many other times during the year.

Boorda Death Should Serve As A Reminder

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

"Gossip, like fertilizer, when spread around will always help lies grow. When such gossip is responsible for the taking of one's life, then someone should be punished," reasons author Joseph S. Salzburg, a frequent visitor to this state. He was referring to the May 16 suicide of Admiral Jeremy Michael Borda, Chief of Naval Operations for the U.S. Navy.

In weeks passed the former enlisted man has been praised by his shipmates with and without rank. His death paralleled the 1949 death of the nation's first Secretary of Defense, James Forrestal, who jumped to his death following attacks on his military policies.

Admiral Boorda took his own life just before being interviewed by Newsweek magazine about his alleged improper wearing of war combat medals which he reportedly earned.

His accuser, a "shipmate" of lesser rank who was relieved as skipper of a guided missile destroyer after three months for being abusive to male and female crew members was, according to news reports, trying to run his ship through fear and intimidation.

Commander John Carey was relieved by Vice Admiral John Redd, the Commander of the U.S. Fifth Fleet, and not by Adm. Boorda.

Former Secretary of the Navy John Lehman, who served under President Reagan, attributes the suicide to the media's treatment of Navy scandals with which Adm. Boorda was besieged.

Salzburg, who served in Vietnam for nine years as a refugee officer, in a recent interview disclosed the impact on Boorda's death as seeming unanimous worldwide. While speaking with the Headmaster of the Regional High School System in Maryland, Salzburg reports on this conversation: "When I asked Thu Huu Bui about Admiral Boorda's death, he could not speak immediately, but instead broke into tears."

Dr. Bui was the Chief of Naval Operations of the Republic of South Vietnam when he first met Commander Boorda in Vietnam. "Mike was an outstanding officer who was respected by his men."

Admiral "Mike" was 57 years old and served 40 years in the United States Navy when he died May

16. At his public memorial service at the Washington National Cemetery Cathedral, before a throng of 3,000 service members, dignitaries and friends, many of whom attended the private service the day before at Arlington National Cemetery. President Bill Clinton recalled the four-star officer's career. He said of Admiral Mike, "...his commitment to give sailors a chance to be the very best they can be; his deep sense of honor...is his legacy."

"He was a seaman who became an admiral, and an admiral who never forgot he was a seaman," added Secretary of the Navy John Dalton.

The late Chief of Naval Operations left the country with a message, however, a warning that should not be taken lightly. In speaking before the Senate Confirmation Hearings in April 1994, Admiral Mike told this body that "Navy people are the heart and soul of everything we do. We must take care of them. If we don't, the best ships and aircraft, the smartest weapons, will not help prevail when we really need them. People make it all work."

The death of Admiral Jeremy "Mike" Boorda should serve as a reminder to all, that not all news headlines are true, not all stories tell the truth, and we can find more truth in our hearts than in print. Gossip kills! It killed Admiral Boorda!

New Parish For Germantown

By PAUL HAROLD

A new Catholic parish was established this week in Germantown, with the name of St. Boniface. Rev. Richard McHale, assistant pastor at St. Joseph's, was named pastor.

Land was acquired at the corner of Palmer and Shed Streets for the construction of the new church, but in the meantime, masses would be celebrated at the Snug Harbor School.

The new parish would serve 600 families in the area, who were then attending mass at Blessed Sacrament in Houghs Neck.

WIDER ACCESS FOR POLIO VACCINE BACKED

City Health Commissioner Dr. Richard Ash called for wider access of the Salk vaccine by making it available for family physicians and in drug stores.

He pointed out the difficulty in running city-wide clinics with so many children on vacation. "Remember most families take a vacation, but also remember polio does not," he said.

APPROVAL OF DREDGING FUNDS SEEN

Cong. Richard Wigglesworth predicted that President Eisenhower would sign two bills in the $25 million public works package for New England that included $300,000 for Town River and $500,000 for Fore River in dredging funds.

The half million dollars for Fore River was the first phase of a $5 million dredging project that would give ocean craft a new channel southerly and easterly of Peddocks Island to the headwaters of the Fore River. The new channel would cut the distance and sailing time from Nantasket Roads to the Fore River shipyard, Procter and Gamble and the Cities Services terminal.

SPOTLIGHT ON BUSINESS

Coffee Break Cafe A One-Stop Success

By LIAM FITZGERALD

Ever stop at four different places for a coffee, a muffin, a newspaper and cigarettes on your way to work?

Jenn Probert did on numerous occasions, so along with friends Erin Connors and Donny Ormond, she was determined to do something about it.

Following months of discussion and planning, the trio recently opened the Coffee Break Cafe in Wollaston.

"We saw a necessity for a good coffee shop in this area, and all three of us have wanted to do this for a long time," said Probert, 26. "We all love coffee and have talked about opening a business for a while. We also wanted to do this on our own—and we did."

"We all met at Lombardo's in Randolph, where Jenn and I were waitresses and Donny was a cook," said Connors, 24. "Then, when Jenn and I were waitresses at Tullio's in North Quincy, we talked seriously about opening a place."

Once the trio decided to open a coffee shop, they had to find a place to open their business. Accidentally, they fell upon their present location en route to another building.

"We were on our way to look somewhere else, but we cut down this street, stopped by this place and fell in love with it and the location," said Probert. "This is a really good location."

Once the trio signed the lease last December, the space had to be renovated, which took nearly three months. Finally, on March 3, they opened for business and have enjoyed it ever since.

"We only started talking realistically about opening a place in November, and figured it would take a year, but it only took a month before we had signed the lease," said Connors, who along with her two partners has 10 years of experience in the service industry. "It's been excellent so far."

In just over two months, the cafe has developed a strong clientele who enjoy the cafe's relaxed, comfortable environment and the array of gourmet coffees on the menu.

"It [the clientele] really varies, from senior citizens to high school kids and everyone in between," said Ormond, 28. "We're lucky not to have aimed at a certain age group, because everyone feels comfortable here. We've had nothing but compliments from our customers, and every day it just gets better and better."

"We also have Jamaican Blue Mountain

COFFEE BREAK CAFE proprietors, from left, Donny Ormond, Erin Connors and Jenn Probert, opened the cafe at 12 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, just over two months ago and have already developed a strong clientele. In addition to 16 gourmet coffees, the cafe also offers a variety of specialty drinks, pastries, cigarettes and lottery tickets and provides a relaxed, enjoyable environment for its patrons.

coffee, which no one else seems to have," added Ormond. "People who have been to Jamaica come here and have the Jamaican Blue and love it."

In addition to the gourmet coffees, the cafe offers a variety of specialty drinks, bagels, pastries, cappuccino, cigarettes, newspapers, and lottery tickets, an item few coffee shops offer, said Ormond.

"This is not your typical coffee shop," said Ormond. "We offer a relaxing, inviting atmosphere, which is what most people notice about the place. It's more comfortable, more homey than other places they've been. We also sell lottery tickets and allow smoking. That's what were going for—something not too sterile."

Connors said non-smokers should not be bothered because the Cafe has installed a Smoke Eater, which gets rid of the smoke.

"So far, it's made both sides happy," said Connors.

What will also make coffee lovers who visit the cafe happy are the paintings, drawings and other artwork devoted to coffee, including an ode to coffee which begins: "All I need to know about life I learned from drinking coffee."

"Basically, we wanted it [the decor] to revolve around coffee," said Probert.

Perhaps another reason the cafe has been so successful is the extensive research the cafe's proprietors did to secure quality products for their customers.

"We wanted the products to be the best, and the coffee is the most important product, so we sampled everything to make sure it was something we wanted to sell here," said Probert.

Did the trio expect to be this successful so soon?

"I was a little surprised, since we don't have the most visible location," said Ormond. "But we do get a lot of traffic with the trains in the mornings."

"We also wanted to see how word of mouth went, and so far it's been great," said Connors. "We like the way it is, but we're also open to suggestions from our customers."

Probert noted the convenient parking that customers will find when they visit the cafe, including the four spots on the side of the building.

"If you're in a hurry, you can also just pull up front, run in, get what you want and go," said Probert.

Regarding prices, Probert said the cafe's are similar to those of other coffee shops in the city.

"Our prices are pretty competitive," said Probert. "We have larger-sized cups, and our prices are similar to other coffee shops, and many people have said they will go nowhere else after coming here. They don't want to go back to places they always went to before we opened."

The cafe also sells T-shirts, tank tops, coffee by the pound and on special occasions will prepare gift baskets for customers, who can choose the items to include in the basket.

The Coffee Break Cafe is located at 12 Old Colony Ave., Wollaston, just off Beale St. across from the Wollaston MBTA Station. It is open Monday through Friday from 5:30 a.m. to 8 p.m. and on Saturday and Sunday from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Fr. Bill's Place is seeking volunteers to assist with direct care services to homeless guests in local shelter. Variety of hours available: mothers hours, early evening hours, weekends. We are building our resources of personnel for fill-in shifts and upcoming special events. No experience necessary. Please call April after 6:00 pm at 617-770-3314 for more information or send letter of interest to QISC, Dept V, 38 Broad St., Quincy, MA 02169

July 27 At Stadium

Korean War Veterans Memorial Dedication Set

By MICHAEL WHALEN

A new Korean War Veterans Memorial will be dedicated during a special ceremony Saturday, July 27 at noon in front of Veterans Memorial Stadium, Hancock Street and Southern Artery, Quincy.

The memorial will stand as a permanent tribute to the 38 Quincy men who died in what is sometimes referred to as "the forgotten war."

For John "Butch" Mahoney, chairman of the committee behind the memorial and social health coordinator for the Quincy Public Schools, the event will mark the end of three years of tireless effort that helped make the memorial concept a reality.

"After July 27, I won't know what to do," he said with a grin during a recent interview.

Mahoney said the keynote speaker at the ceremony will be retired Marine Corps Col. Frank Colleton, a North Quincy native and 1945 graduate of North Quincy High School who did two tours in Korea and three tours in Vietnam. City officials, including Mayor James Sheets, also are expected to attend.

Mahoney praised the mayor, who is honorary chairman of the memorial committee, for his support during the fund-raising effort.

"It wouldn't have been done without him, I'll tell you that," he said. "He's more than an honorary chairman, he's more of a co-chairman."

Mahoney also commended his fellow committee members Jack Beaton, Ken Lotterhan, Dan Mahoney and Larry Norton for their work on the project. But there are many others who helped in some way or another, he added, whose names are too numerous to mention.

"There are a lot of unsung heroes," he said. "People who really care, and who do it quietly, just because they want to. Just a bunch of nice, caring people."

Mahoney said proceeds for the project were derived from a number of sources:

•A total of 300 chances on a 1995 Harley-Davidson 1340 motorcycle were sold at $100 apiece. Although $17,000 was spent on the purchase of the bike, the memorial committee netted $13,000.

•A Korean War Golf

Tournament held May 13 at Presidents Golf Course in North Quincy raised more than $5,000.

•Three flagpoles and eight benches that will help beautify the area around the memorial were sold, respectively, at $1,500 and $1,000 apiece.

•Sixty bricks that will form a memorial "Walk of Names" at the site have been sold at $100 apiece as well as a number of key chains and T-shirts at $10 apiece and lapel pins for $5 each. Bricks, key chains, shirts and pins are still available.

Mahoney estimated that in all, about $40,000 has been collected. Although the cost of the memorial originally was estimated at $60,000, he said the money raised, combined with a number of volunteer in-kind services, will be enough to make the memorial project come to fruition. Among those who are assisting with the project, he noted, are union bricklayers and ironworkers, a local landscaping firm, and others.

Additional monies raised will be used to help defray "hidden costs" and to maintain the upkeep of the memorial site, Mahoney added.

The planned 10-ton black granite memorial was designed by Jack Monti of A. Monti Granite Co. of Quincy. A model of the finished project was unveiled in front of the stadium during a groundbreaking ceremony on June 25, 1994, the 46th anniversary of the day the Korean War started.

The foundation for the memorial recently was put in by Derbes Bros. of Quincy, Mahoney said.

The memorial will be dedicated on the anniversary of the armistice which ended the war, which was signed July 27, 1953. Mahoney noted that the official Korean War era, however, did not end until Jan. 31, 1955.

Originally, the Korean War Veterans Memorial Committee had hoped the ceremony could, like the 1994 groundbreaking, take place on June 25. For various reasons, however, July 27 was eventually chosen as the date for event.

Mahoney, a Korean War era veteran, said he thinks it is a fitting tribute to the 28 men from Quincy who were killed in the war.

"Korea was really the first stand against Communism, and they did their part," he said. "They sent a message, and hopefully, it stands up today. So this (memorial) is a payoff."

"I think the location is just perfect," he added. "Everybody driving down Hancock Street is going to see it. I'm more than excited. It's going to be beautiful."

Horse And Carriage Tours Get Go-Ahead

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

The Quincy License Board voted unanimously at Tuesday's meeting for a horse-drawn carriage service in Quincy, starting in July. It also received approval from the City Council last week.

Owner by Ned Murtagh of Boston Hansom Cabs, the horse from the carriage will be housed at St. Moritz Stables, 629 Willard St. and be driven to the starting point at McIntyre Mall at City Hall.

The tour will transport tourists and residents around the downtown and some of Quincy's historic sites including the Church of the Presidents, the Adams Mansion and other points of interest in the city. Cost will be $20 for two persons. The carriage will be allowed to carry two adults and four children or two children and four adults. Murtagh said the tour would take about 25 to 30 minutes.

He said the horse and carriage would also be available for weddings and parades and other special occasions.

Council President Peter Kolson said he had been trying for a few years to attract tourism in the city by way of a horse and carriage and said the approval of the board would help "make tourism an integral part of the city." He added it would "highlight the importance of our historical richness."

Kolson said that in addition to tourists enjoying the horse and carriage, that Quincy residents will also have a "great opportunity to view the historic sites as well."

Murtagh said he plans to sell uniquely designed

THIS HORSE-DRAWN CARRIAGE, which officials say will become part of the Quincy scene in July, made its debut during the city's annual Flag Day Parade.

T-shirts and be able to take pictures as well. He told the board that the horse will have a catch bag and be cleaned on a regular basis.

Farmers' Market Opens Friday For 14th Season

The Quincy Farmers' Market will start its 14th season Friday, June 21 at 11:30 a.m. at the Hancock Parking Lot, across from Quincy District Court on Chestnut St.

The market will continue through the summer months every Friday at the same location in a section designated for the market.

Many of the previous years' farmers will be returning this season.

"We are looking to another good season, and the return of the farmers to our historic city of Quincy, home of John Adams, who was one of our premier farmers," said Harry Johnson of Quincy, who assists the farmers weekly.

Several new farmers also will join the market this year, including Kim Rawlings of Kim's Country Herbs of Upton. She is a herbalist with a degree in nutrition.

Among returning local farmers are Al Sullivan, who farms on an estate in Milton and specializes in peas, swish card and sweet beats; Jeannette McKenzie of Duxbury, who specializes in herbs; Glenn Stillman of Lunenburg, who has a full line of fruits, vegetables and melons and Freitas Farm of Middleboro, which specializes in blueberries, cranberries and sweet potatoes.

The market invites local gardeners to take part in the weekly activity. To register, call 479-1601. A small fee is charged to pay for the insurance and expenses occurring in managing the market.

The Quincy Farmers' Market is supported by the mayor's office, the Planning and Community Development Department, Quincy Council on Aging, local media, Quincy Center Business and Professional Association and local residents who visit weekly.

Food Stamps may be used at the Quincy Farmers' Market.

formation about the vaccination will be sent to parents of children entering the sixth grade the aforementioned schools this fall. The Hepatitis B vaccination has been offered by school nurses to students entering the sixth grades in Quincy public schools this past year and will again be offered to sixth graders this fall.

Hepatitis B attacks the liver and in some cases can cause severe, debilitating illness. The American Academy of Pediatrics, the U.S. Center for Disease Control and Prevention, and The American School Health Association recommend that schools offer immunization programs to sixth grade students.

The vaccination will also be a requirement for all Massachusetts children entering kindergarten who were born on or after Jan.

1, 1992, beginning this fall.

The Hepatitis B vaccine as well as vaccines for infants--measles, mumps, rubella, whooping cough, polio, tetanus, HIB and diphtheria are offered free to health care providers in Quincy through the health department's Vaccine Distribution program. Germantown To Begin 'Together We Can' Effort Quincy's Germantown section is using the nationally-known framework for community action called "Together We Can" to construct a mission for the protection of its neighborhood children.

The Germantown Neighborhood Council will present its plan to residents Monday, June 24 at 6:30 p.m. at St. Boniface Parish Hall. The plan outlines steps that can be taken to reduce the risks facing children in Germantown as well as the entire country.

The effort is being undertaken with the support of Impact Quincy and the Atlantic neighborhood, which has already participated in the program.

Steve Ward, community coordinator for Impact Quincy and facilitator to the group, said, "Fifty years of prevention efforts have taught us that relying on outside sources to solve inside problems hasn't worked. It doesn't work for the addict who looks to drugs and it doesn't work for the community that depends on outside funding.

"Drug abuse, violence and AIDS are not someone else's problems, they are our problems. Our number one priority as a community has to be our kids. Our kids, our future, our solutions."

For more information, call Ward at 472-6027.

REAL ESTATE MARKET

Sprucing Up Your Home Will Help The Sale

Whether you are sprucing up your home as a sale, there are some tried and true tips to help you gain the most from your efforts.

Mary Dawson, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors, reminds homeowners that some of the most important fix-up projects can be accomplished on little more than elbow grease, and they can help speed the sale of your home.

A thorough cleaning, a fresh coat of paint, and yard grooming are the ABC's of preparing for a sale. First impressions are important and a neat, clean look gives a good first impression to buyers.

Some additional ideas you may want to consider:

- Plan a yard sale or a tax-deductible donation to remove old furniture and toys, appliances and other clutter material. Your attic, garage, closets, cupboards and storage space will look so much bigger, and moving will be easier for you.

- A newly-painted wall (in a light or neutral shade) is a canvas to the eye of prospective buyers, and clean windows brighten and enlarge each room.

- A well-clipped yard-- free of scattered toys--allows viewers to focus on the neatness of the home.

- Fix dripping faucets and repair any caulking cracks. Bathrooms are a key selling point.

If you are prepared to invest some money to improve your home's presentation, start with the most cost-effective projects and remember to keep a journal of jobs and receipts. Home improvement costs are often deductible (when costs incurred 90 days before the sale and paid within 30 days after the sale).

While lawn-mowing and weekly cleaning bills do not qualify according to IRS regulations, new paint, a new water heater, or new gutters usually do apply. Some hints:

- Replace broken gutters and shutters.

- New paint indoors or out is usually approved by the IRS for deduction is completed and paid for near the time of sale.

- New floor coverings (in neutral shades) on kitchen and bathroom floors may be another affordable investment which can speed a sale by appealing to buyers' desire for a property that is "ready to move in," particularly if the current style of colors are dated.

- Repair broken woodwork, loose planks, and creaky stairs. No buyer wants a home that needs structural repairs.

- Hardwood floors are a plus. If you have hardwood floors, consider removing the floor covering, especially if the carpet is worn.

You may want to reconsider more ambitious jobs, however, if you are thinking of selling the home anytime soon.

While bathrooms and kitchen upgrades generally help appreciation, not all home additions will add value to the property--other than the value which you personally enjoy. Not everyone wants a swimming pool that could be a safety hazard for young children, or an island kitchen design that restricts kitchen traffic flow. A new deck may recoup its installment costs, but new kitchen cabinets come in a variety of designs and styles that the buyer should choose.

Talk to your Realtor about the improvements most appropriate in current market conditions and you will do your share to speed the sale of your home.

The Quincy College Paralegal Program celebrated its 10th anniversary during a recent special series of Law Day events. The day was capped with a reception and presentations to participants.

Quincy Atty. Neil Kerstein was honored for his work in helping establish the degree and certificate program at the college nearly a decade ago. Also honored, but not present, was Mayor James Sheets, who as a faculty member developed the appropriate curriculum for the college.

The events included two series of workshops on topics such as job interviewing, using computers in the law office, and the Family and Medical Leave Act. Graduates of the Paralegal program, along with instructors and members of the advisory board, assisted in developing the anniversary event. Among those in attendance were Quincy College President Jeremiah Ryan, Daniel Raymond, chairman of the college's Board of Governors and Instructor Sandra Smales.

The college offers a degree and certificate program in Paralegal Studies.

Six Champs Crowned; N.E. Revolution Players Appearance Among Highlights Players, Fans Get 'Kick' Out Of City Soccer Tournament

By LIAM FITZGERALD

The recent President's City Tournament, the first of its kind in Quincy, went off without a hitch, according to Mike Linnane, a member of the Quincy Youth Soccer board of directors.

"I'm thrilled. It couldn't have gone any better," said Linnane. "There were no problems whatsoever. We played soccer from six o'clock Friday night until 3:30 Sunday afternoon, and everyone had a good time."

"Full cooperation from everyone involved really made it work. I want to thank all who helped out, including the Quincy Police Department, which helped direct traffic and made sure it all went smoothly."

Celebrating 15 years of soccer in the city, the tournament attracted teams from all over Massachusetts and other states as over 500 boys and girls from 30 teams participated in three age categories (U-10, U-12, U-14).

Six champions were crowned, including two teams from Quincy (U-12 Girls, Quincy Herlihy (Quincy) Jane Miller, runner-up) and U-14 Boys, Quincy Dano (Quincy) Acton, runner-up). Quincy Eaton (U-14 Girls runner-up) and Quincy Don Martin (U-10 Girls runner-up) also excelled in the tournament.

What also pleased Linnane was the response from the out-of-state teams, particularly those from Portsmouth, R.I., who were "amazed with the condition of [Quincy's] fields."

"I heard that some of the teams were really impressed with the facilities, which is great to hear, since so much work was put in to make sure the fields looked their best," said Linnane. "I'm pleased to hear such a positive response, especially since this is the first time we've organized a tournament of this size. The positives outweighed the negatives immensely."

Linnane said QYS also received compliments on its organization, level of play, overall conditions and hospitality throughout the weekend.

Volunteers and QYS members pitched in to break down all the nets and clean the fields, leaving them in the same condition as they were before the tournament, said Linnane.

There was only one glitch all weekend, according to Linnane, which was soon resolved. A Babe Ruth team which had a game scheduled at Upper Merrymount Friday night was "gracious to reschedule" and allow the soccer tournament to continue without interruption.

One of the weekend's many highlights were the three New England Revolution players--forwards Welton and Victor Mella and midfielder Alberto Naveda--who signed autographs for players and spectators at the tournament.

"The Revolution players signing autographs was a huge hit," said Linnane. "A long line of people waited to meet the players, who signed for about an hour. Some of the kids even had their shirts signed by the Revolution players."

Reaping the benefits of the successful tournament were the North Quincy High School and Quincy High School Soccer Boosters, who ran out of food a few times during the weekend.

Creative Cakes, 529 Washington St., provided a large dessert in the form of a big tournament cake that was distributed among the teams before the playoffs.

Merrill Lynch, NYNEX and Verc Car Rentals were the tournament's official sponsors. Communications were provided by Bell Atlantic/NYNEX Mobile. American Medical Response provided ambulance service.

Since the tournament

TWO U-10 BOYS TEAMS, Milton and Wareham, compete in the President's City Tournament held recently in Quincy. The two teams were part of a tournament which drew approximately 500 boys and girls from 30 teams across Massachusetts and from out of state.

went smoothly and everyone involved enjoyed themselves, will QYS look to hold a similar tournament next year?

"Well, we'll have to go back to the board and see if we get a positive response," said Linnane. "If we do, it's possible we'll do something like this again in the future."

Hershey Track, Field Youth Meet June 24-25

Recreation Director Barry J. Welch announces that the Quincy Recreation Department will sponsor the Hershey National Track and Field Youth Program by hosting a community meet June 24-25 open to all boys and girls ages 9-14.

Participants must provide the sponsoring agency with proof of age before they will be allowed to compete in the meet, which is also open to participants from surrounding communities. There are no entry fees and spikes and starting blocks are prohibited.

Registration for the boys' meet will be held June 24 at 5:30 p.m. at Veterans Memorial Stadium with the meet to follow at 6 p.m. Registration for the girls' meet will be held June 25 at 5:30 p.m. at the Stadium with the meet set for 6 p.m.

Both boys and girls will compete in three age categories: 9-10, 11-12, and 13-14. Those youngsters currently 8 years old who will turn 9 before December 31 may compete in the 9-10 age group. Youngsters currently 14 years old, who will turn 15 before December 31 are not eligible.

The events are as follows:

Boys and girls, ages 9-10: 50 yard dash, 100 yard dash, 200 yard dash, 4x100 yard relay, standing long jump, and softball throw.

Boys and girls, ages 11-12: 100 yard dash, 200 yard dash, 400 yard dash, 800 yard run, 4x100 relay, standing long jump, and softball throw.

Boys and girls, ages 13-14: 100 yard dash, 200 yard dash, 400 yard dash, 800 yard run, 4x100 relay, standing long jump, and softball throw.

Each participant may compete in up to three events. If three events are chosen, one is required to be a field event.

"The philosophy of this program is to stimulate participation of all eligible children," said Welch. "It is no way to be construed as an all-star program. The event is run in cooperation with the National Recreation and Park Association and the President's Council on Physical Fitness and Sport."

"Our own Olympic bronze medal winner, Karen Cashman, was a five-year national championship participant starting in the Quincy competition. I encourage our residents to take advantage of this excellent program."

The meet will be the first step in a competition which could result in a local athlete advancing to the National Championship in Hershey Park, Pa. New England champions will be awarded an all-expense paid trip by Hershey Chocolate, the national sponsor.

Pineo Saves Best For Last At N.E. Championships

North Quincy High School senior Jen Pineo completed her high school track and field career with a fourth place finish in the shotput at the recent New England High School Championships at Brown University in Providence, R.I.

Pineo's toss of 38'1/2" on her second attempt was her best performance of the outdoor season.

The Red Raiders captain, she completed a year which included undefeated indoor and outdoor campaigns in OCL competitions as well as runner-up positions indoors and out in Class B and All-State meets.

"Jen always peaks at the biggest meet," said North Quincy coach Maureen Roche, a former two-time state shotput champion at Archbishop

This was Pineo's fourth time competing in the New England's (two indoor, two outdoor) and she has never failed to place in the top six. Her personal best is 39'6" at the All-State Indoor meet.

Pineo will attend Wheaton College, an up and coming Division III squad, this fall. North Quincy Coach Geoff Hennessy, who helped lead UMass-Boston to four NCAA Division III titles as an assistant in the mid-80's, is excited for his best thrower.

"Jen had some injuries, but she put those behind her," said Hennessy. "She's been a good leader to our younger throwers and our dominance in the field events is attributed to her example."

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Downs Quincy, Canton To Improve To 4-2

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team won two of three games, including victories over Quincy and Canton, to improve its record to 4-2.

In a 7-2 win over Quincy, Ryan Herlihy earned his first Legion victory, allowing two runs on eight hits, walking none and striking out eight. Chad Feetham pitched an inning and a third in relief to close out the game.

"Ryan's a really good pitcher," said Morrisette manager Ray Cattaneo. "He pitched real well in his first start and was able to get the win. He'll definitely be starting a lot for us this season."

Leading 2-0, Morrisette put the game out of reach in the fifth inning as five runs crossed the plate. Matt McLaughlin's two-run single was the inning's big hit, as Tim Zaniboni (RBI single), Tom Cunio (sacrifice fly) and Jim Cunio (RBI singles) drove in the other three runs.

McLaughlin, Jim Cunio and Ray Cattaneo (double) each finished with two hits apiece. Tim Cunio, Mike Kenney and Brian Beaton each added one hit.

For Quincy, David Rowell and Justin Elwood each had an RBI single and Kevin Nichol and Ken Hannaford each collected two hits.

Morrisette took an early three-run lead in the first inning and held on to edge Canton, 3-2. After a single by Eric Fagan and walks to Mike Kenney and Paul Marnikovic, Tom Cunio drove in two runs with a single and Ray Cattaneo followed with an RBI single for a 3-0 Morrisette lead. Fagan, Cattaneo and Beaton each had two hits and Jim Cunio added a hit. Kenney picked up the win in relief of Joe McCarthy, allowing two unearned runs on one hit and striking out four in four and a third innings of work.

"Mike is a veteran pitcher, so he knows a lot of the hitters and has pitched well for us," said Cattaneo.

Morrisette fell victim to a strong performance by Weymouth pitcher Jay Estano, who struck out 14 and allowed only one hit in a 3-1 Weymouth victory.

Mike Kenney's double drove in Eric Fagan with Morrisette's only run. Jeff Russell pitched well in a losing effort, allowing two runs on eight hits, walking two and striking out eight.

"Russell has been pitching great," said Cattaneo. "He pitched well against Weymouth, but their pitcher was even better. We only had three baserunners, which is not enough to make things happen. We got that one hit in the first inning and couldn't get any the rest of the game."

"He [Estano] had command of all his pitches and got stronger as the game went on," said Morrisette head coach Mark Kelliher.

Six games into the season, Cattaneo and Kelliher are thrilled with the team's strong pitching and solid defense, but are concerned with the team's lack of offensive punch.

"We need hitting," said Cattaneo. "We have good pitching and good defense, but the hitting is a little slow at this point in the season. Once the hitting comes around, we'll be O.K."

"We've had phenomenal pitching and great defense, which wins games, but we also have to focus on scoring more runs to win these close games," said Kelliher. "We don't have the sticks we've had in the past, so we have to live on defense and steal, hit and run, and do whatever it takes to score enough runs to win."

In six games, Morrisette's pitching staff has been excellent, not allowing more than three runs in any one game.

"I knew heading into the season that we had tons of pitching," said Kelliher. "We have seven or eight pitchers who I feel are on the same level. I wouldn't hesitate to throw any one of them against any team. Pitching is definitely not a problem for us."

However, Morrisette is averaging less than four runs a game, though Kelliher says this lack of offense will eventually be a thing of the past.

"I've been impressed by the team's work ethic," said Kelliher. "They all work hard every day, and the hitters are taking extra swings before and after games. I think the hitting will start to come around eventually."

"Besides, we've faced the best pitcher of every team we've played so far and have won four of six games. That should help us down the stretch, knowing we can beat the other team's best pitcher."

Morrisette was scheduled to play at Braintree yesterday (Wednesday) at 7:30 p.m. The team hosts Randolph tonight (Thursday) at Adams Field at 8 p.m. and travels to West Roxbury Friday for a game at 8 p.m.

In a 19-11 victory over Thrifty Rental Car, Kenny's Lock starter Steve Romanowski picked up his third win of the season, striking out 8 and helping himself with 2 hits. Brendan McNeil collected 4 hits, Tim Coughlin added 3 and Ryan O'Shea showed his defensive skills for the victors.

Locker Room posted an 8-run first inning en route to a 22-5 victory over Thrifty Car Rental. Isaac Guertin and Frankie Feeley pace Locker's offense as each went 5-for-5 and combined for 9 RBI. Adam Terlaje added a 3-run homer and catcher Ian Jorgensen and outfielder Timmy Smith played solid defensively. Marc Bertrand went the distance, allowing 4 hits and striking out 10 for the win.

Ryan McHugh and Joe Maloney both played well for Thrifty.

Patrick Losi pitched a complete game 1-hitter to lead CNA to an 18-0 blanking of Kenny's Lock. Losi walked 2 and struck out 10 and faced only 20 batters over 6 innings. He gave up a scratch single to Sean O'Keefe in the sixth and allowed only one baserunner to reach third.

Supporting Losi defensively were Tyler Lagrotteria, who started a double play and had 2 other assists, and third baseman Billy Eastwick, who made 2 sparkling plays. Lagrotteria and Eastwick also scored 2 runs apiece. Billy Cox also scored twice and belted his first homerun of the season. Center fielder Craig Flanigan added 2 hits and catcher Dave Grogan scored 3 runs and called a great game.

For Kenny's Lock, starting pitcher Chris Haldoupis struck out 6 before tiring, but it was Lock's defense which kept the game close until CNA broke it open in the late innings. Lock catcher Ryan Kirby threw out a runner and made two putouts, one on a perfectly-executed relay from center fielder Dan Sullivan to shortstop Pat McGillicuddy. First baseman Lee Sheehan also played well in the field.

Junior League

Burke Club Maintains First-Place Lead

The Burke Club continued its hold on first place, improving its record to 13-2 with two victories in recent Quincy Junior Baseball League action.

Pat Bregoli threw a 2-hitter with 8 strikeouts to lead the Burke Club to a 7-1 win over the Elks. Pete Turowski ripped a two-run triple and an RBI single to give Burke a 4-0 lead in the third. Sean Moriarty, who had 2 hits, also singled in a run. After a double, Moriarty scored on Brian Rooney's single.

Justin Hall struck out 14 in an 11-1 win over South Shore Buick. Hall allowed only 2 hits, both to Kevin Holleran.

Burke took a 7-0 lead after two and never looked back. Dan Duggan, who had 3 hits, was the sparkplug early, singling twice and scoring twice. Pat Bregoli drove 2 walks and scored twice and Hall singled twice and scored 2 runs.

Pete Turowski (triple, 3-run homerun) also had a big game, going 3-for-3 with 5 RBI. Joe Sudak drove in 3 runs, Bill Cosgrove and Steve O'Brien added hits and Mark Dondero had an RBI.

In other action, Beacon Sports captured two victories and The Jaehnig Chiopracitic Club and Rotary each won once.

Billy Croke hit for the cycle and knocked in 6 runs to lead Beacon to a 19-11 win over Rotary. Croke's 275-foot blast to deep center capped an outstanding day for the 12-year-old. Tom Hughes struck out 10 in going the distance for the victory. Mike Feetham, Ryan Feldhoff, Matt Grazioso and Chris Lacorte each had 2 hits.

Mike Ryan had 2 solid hits for Rotary and Jack Liuzzo contributed 3 singles.

Tom Hughes and Billy Croke each hit homeruns in the Beacon's 10-5 victory over the Elks.

Croke also added a double. Mike Feetham recorded 7 strikeouts while notching the complete game win. Ryan Feldhoff chipped in with a key two-run single and Keith Austin added 2 hits.

Phil McGillicuddy led the Elks with 2 homeruns, Mike Conley ripped a triple and Will Gardner made some solid plays in the field.

Patrick Jaehnig pitched a masterful no-hitter, striking out 13 and allowing no walks to lead the Chiopracitic Club to a 1-0 shutout over the Police. Jaehnig also knocked in the game's only run with a clutch two-out double off the fence at McCoy Stadium. Chris Ham, who added 3 singles, scored the winning run and made a couple of nice plays at second base.

Kyle Cormody saved the no-hitter with an outstanding diving catch of a twisting fly ball in right field. Derek Keezer and Tom Buckley also had base hits while Marc Tobin executed a perfect sacrifice bunt.

James LaFleur was the tough luck loser for the Police as he struck out 6. James Caslins, Paul MacAtter and Sean Richardson played strong defensive games.

Pitchers Mike Ryan and Steve Pizzi combined to lead an improving Rotary Club to a 4-1 win over the Chiopracitic Club. Ryan added 2 singles, Pizzi also singled and Jordan Virtue and Patrick Duff each blasted doubles to drive in runs. David Benn hit a solid single and played flawless defense. Jackie Luizzo and Mike Maloney also played well in the field.

Jeff Butts led the Chiopracitic Club with a double and several nice defensive plays. Mark Maher singled and made 3 putouts from center field. Patrick Jaehnig stroked an opposite field double. Chris Ham (single) once again got no offensive support and took the loss despite pitching well. Patrick Maxey, Steve Kelley, Patrick O'Brien and David Buttomer played strong defensive games.

Standings: Burke Club (13-2), Kiwanis (11-4), Keohane's (10-5), Police (9-6), Jaehnig Chiopracitic (9-6), Lions (9-6), Buick (7-8), Rotary (7-8), Colonial Federal (5-10), Elks (4-9), Beacon (3-11), Burgin Platner (2-11).

In an 11-3 victory over the Police, Mike McEvoy collected 2 hits and pitched a strong game to lead Granite City. Matt Rodenhiser (4 hits), Paul Makarian (triple, single), Brian Doyle (double, single), Jeff Glynn (2 singles) and Jason Oriola (single) paced Granite's offense.

Mark Dunn made the defensive play of the game with a strong throw from the outfield to stop the Police.

Brian Doyle and Jeff Glynn each singled and tripled to lift Granite to a 9-5 win over Local 1139. Chris Conte added 3 singles and Brian Smith, Joe Flynn, Jason Oriola and Matt Rodenhiser (winning pitcher) each chipped in with a single.

Jake Dugas' running catch in the outfield for Granite was the game's best defensive play.

Ryan Murray (double), Jose Diaz (single) and Mike Reidy (single) had hits for Local 1139.

Matt Rodenhiser tripled and singled twice to pace Granite past Morrisette, 17-11. Granite's Jason Oriola (triple), Brian Doyle (double) and Chris Conte (double) had extra-base hits and Matt Millerick, Mike McEvoy, Paul Makarian, Joe Flynn, Brian Dunn and Matt Nicklas all added singles.

Conte's excellent relief pitching and a leaping catch by Nicklas to stop a Morrisette rally allowed Granite to hold on for the win.

Jesse Winter doubled twice to lead Morrisette offensively.

In other action, Barry's Deli and Local 1139 picked up victories.

Barry's Deli defeated Morrisette, 9-3, behind the terrific pitching of Michael Shaw (14 strikeouts).

Catcher Didier Alther, who led Barry's offense with 2 hits, also turned in another excellent defensive performance. Sean Lefebvre, Matt McCann, John Cooper, Conrad Leger and David Centrella contributed base hits and Jarrod DeCelle chipped in with a line-drive double.

Barry's infielders--Shawn Manning, Shawn Boostrom, Cooper and McCann--provided strong defensive support behind Shaw.

Shortstop Chris Duffy played extremely well for Morrisette.

Mike Reidy, who struck out 6 and picked up the win, broke a 1-1 tie with a single in the bottom of the seventh to lift Local 1139 to a 2-1 win over Sons of Italy.

Peter Dawidow, who singled, stole second and scored Local's first run on a Jeff Russo double in the first, singled and stole second again and scored on Reidy's game-winning hit.

Ron DeNapoli was the tough luck loser, striking out 6 and walking none for S.O.I. In the sixth, S.O.O. tied the game at 1-1 when Jody Bravo singled to Kyle Piazza, who had singled to break up Reidy's no-hit bid.

CONDENSED READING

The advent of warm weather should prompt a trial run of your car's air conditioner to assure that it will work properly when hot weather strikes. If it is noticed that the system is not cooling properly, a simple fix may remedy the problem. It may be that the condenser is clogged with leaves, bugs or road debris to the point that its ability to cool the refrigerant is seriously compromised. The condenser works in a manner similar to the car's radiator in that it removes heat from the refrigerant. The result of a dirty condenser is lower cooling capacity, higher pressure inside the air conditioner and greater wear on the compressor. To avert such problems, look for the condenser in its position mounted in front of the radiator and clean it with compressed air or pressurized water. If problems persist, they are likely caused by something that can only be diagnosed and corrected by a trained

HINT: Run the air conditioner for a few minutes from time to time to help ensure the maximum life of the seals.

Here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, we understand that auto technology has actually become very advanced and sophisticated today. For example, new cars have non-freon type air conditioners. Whether you have a question about your AC or need to have major or minor work done, trust it to our ASE Certified, professional technicians who keep up to date with all the latest industry developments. Stop by and see us at 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree (943-1550). "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Hours: Mon-Fri 6am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Someone once asked, "Must the mood, manner and motives of youth fade away with the years?" Before you answer quickly - look around...

You will see plenty of proof that youth is not always measured in years. Youth need not be a time of life. It should be a state of mind. Youth, regardless of years, should be an adventure in life. When enthusiasm for life exists, wrinkled skin will not wrinkle a mind. Youth only fades away when worry, doubt, distrust, fear and despair burden the body and bow the head. Youth remains when life is faced cheerfully; when a mind wonders and is amazed with the stars, the sun, the moon and the grandeur of God's world. Youth stays on with an attitude of today is another day and what can be done with it.

Youth is faith and hope. It is enjoying beauty, being of good cheer. Cast these out and youth and maturity are gone. Retain them and youth remains. Faith, hope, appreciation of beauty and good cheer... all can be regained.

Yes, the fountain of youth can only be found in state of mind... no other place...

Heated Debate Over Site Plan Review

To kill the plan without further discussion, he said, would be a "diservice" to the public and would give people one more reason not to trust their elected officials.

"When are we going to wake up, gentlemen?" he asked.

Under current zoning laws, Shaw's needed only to obtain a permit from the city's Building Department to go forward with its project.

Cheney, who has voiced opposition to site plan review, acknowledged that he wanted to "kill" Raymond's current proposal, but only so the council could, in the fall, move right into discussion of whatever version the task force comes up with over the summer.

He also pointed out that a new site plan review proposal would require two more public hearings--the public hearing process for the current plan already has been satisfied--and said he was "insulted" that Raymond would accuse other councilors of trying to "ram the plan through" in a hurry.

"I'm insulted when someone says we're trying to rush something through," said Cheney.

Councillor Timothy Cahill, who said he opposes the current plan but would likely support site plan review in some form, agreed.

"We're not doing a disservice to anybody," he said.

Cahill also said, as he did two weeks ago, he did not like the idea of the proposal being amended to 10,000 square feet for one business. The plan was changed so that Bob's Speed Shop could relocate from Wollaston to West Quincy, a move that had been placed in limbo after Raymond came up with his original proposal.

Other council members, however, sided with Raymond, saying they were under the impression the matter was to be left in committee until the fall.

"The issue here is one of process," said Councillor Paul Harold. "There's great credibility at stake here, and it's ours."

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico agreed.

"I think credibility is at stake," he said. "Taking it out of committee would be irresponsible."

Raymond was joined by Kelson, Harold, D'Amico and Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, the Ordinance Committee chairman, in the vote to leave the matter in committee. Those joining Cheney in voting to take it out of committee were Cahill, Ward 3 Councillor Patrick McDermott and Ward 6 Councillor Bruce Ayers.

Councillors who will serve on the task force formed to examine the issue are Raymond, D'Amico, Durkin and Ayers.

Council Approves $143.1M Budget

nating proposed new positions for extra art, music and physical education teachers. In addition, other teachers could be moved between buildings to further cut expenditures.

Councillors balanced the city's books before approving the budget, transferring more than $4 million out of several reserve and stabilization funds. Most of the funds will fund the employee raises, while an additional $1.5 million will pay for snow and ice removal expenditures from the past winter and $745,000 was applied toward a deficit in the school department's special education budget.

Ultimately, despite all the expenditures, Sheets said he expects a surplus of approximately $3 million for the city that will be "rolled back" into its general fund.

In an unrelated matter last night, the council authorized the mayor to spend the city's federally-funded FY97 Community Development Block Grant budget of $2,566,000 which will benefit various city programs. Michael McFarland, Sheets' executive secretary, said the amount is down slightly from the FY96 CDBG budget of $2,639,000 because of federal cuts.

program to the council at the end of its first year.

Councillor Timothy Cahill voiced support of the program, saying it complements other aspects of "community policing" the department has begun in recent years.

"Any opportunity we have to get the police officer out of the car and more in touch with the people, whether they're law-abiding citizens or lawbreakers...I think it works," said Cahill. "The real benefit is for public safety."

NEWSCARRIERS WANTED

Here's a chance to earn extra money by building a Quincy Sun home delivery route.

Telephone: 471-3100

An Open Letter to the Quincy City Council

The Marina Bay Neighborhood Association thanks you for your attention and patience in listening to our neighborhood's opposition to Thorndike Development's proposed Housing Project. More than 180 residents have joined our association to oppose this project. More than 120 residents have called our ward councillor to voice their opposition. At your public hearing, the neighborhood that is impacted by this plan opposed it. And with solid, supportable reasons. You have heard them. We now ask that you vote to deny the special permit.

The developer did not agree to preserve the Public Promenade Perpetual Covenant as recorded in Land Court Certificate Title number 117465. We believe the Council will not give away this public easement to a private developer. The walkway to the waterfront must be preserved; not just for our neighborhood but for use by all of Quincy's residents. There are many other reasons this special permit must be denied. They include the fact that the standards already approved for this development area by the City Council are not preserved in Thorndike's plan.

We want to see this parcel developed as housing but developed with a good plan with good architecture and adequate open space. The current plan provides for density about 2 1/2 times greater than the adjacent Harbourside development. More than 300 parking spaces are placed on-street while the plan already approved for this site requires almost all underground parking. The existing three developments meet this requirement or provide off-street parking.

Only one means of entrance and exit is provided to the site and that is onto a driveway that will be used by up to 1700 vehicles. And that driveway, which would be owned by the developer, must be widened and built to city street standards. When that is done, some of the Housing Project units would be as close as five to eight feet to the street.

The project may take five years or even longer to complete and there is no guarantee that it will be completed.

Chapter 40A provides guidance and it requires that the Council "...encourage the most appropriate use of land...prevent overcrowding of land, ...avoid undue concentration of population, ...facilitate the adequate provision of open space, ...and preserve and increase amenities".

This project does not deserve our support or that of our City Council.

Please join us and vote "NO!"

In Search Of Missing Student Divers Return To Quarry

By MICHAEL WHALEN

Divers were scheduled to return to the Granite Rail Quarry yesterday (Wednesday) to find out if an object discovered in the quarry by sonar equipment Monday is the body of missing college student P.J. McDonagh.

Norfolk County District Attorney William Delahunt said at press time Tuesday his office has paid about $2,000 to Gray Eagle Charters, a Yarmouthport-based commercial diving firm, to perform the search. Delahunt's office has been investigating the case in conjunction with the State Police and Quincy Police.

"I'm not very optimistic (about finding McDonagh)," said Delahunt. "But since we can't conclusively rule that it's not a body, we have an obligation to give it this last effort."

If McDonagh's body is not found, Gov. William Weld will have the final say on whether to drain the quarry--which is owned by the Metropolitan District Commission (MDC)--in a final attempt to locate the missing student. State Rep. James Brett (D-Boston)

Under $300,000 Quincy 2000 Program

'New Look' For 55 Storefronts

Fifty-five storefronts in the Quincy Center, Wollaston and North Quincy business districts will receive facelifts through the Quincy 2000 Corporation's Building Renovation Program.

Quincy 2000 officials announced Tuesday it has completed the initial application phase of the program, which will distribute about $300,000 in matching grants for exterior improvements to commercial properties in the city's three core business districts.

Funding commitments are to follow in the coming weeks and months, officials said.

Executive Director Joseph Mannarino said Quincy 2000 anticipates expending up to $300,000 during the program's first cycle of projects and looks forward to the effect the projects will have.

"The interest in this program has been overwhelming," said Mannarino. "Commercial property owners in Quincy recognize the opportunity to invest their capital in a program that financially assists them to improve the appearance of their storefronts. I expect the facade renovations to have a significant impact on the business districts and in the perception that people have about the vitality of the business community."

One of projects soon to be started includes five storefronts at the corner of School and Hancock streets in Quincy Center. The project was initiated by property owner David Goldman who said, "I'm looking forward to this renovation, thereby creating a significant upgrade and change to this vibrant crossroads."

Other projects ready to begin include buildings at the corner of Newport Avenue and Brook Street in Wollaston, 30 Chestnut

Coming From State:

$9.6M For Education, $6.7M In Local Aid

Quincy will receive about $9.6 million for education and $6.7 million in local aid from this year's $17.46 billion Fiscal Year 1997 state budget recommendation enacted by the Legislature last week, according to state Sen. Michael Morrissey.

The budget, enacted in the House and Senate and submitted to Gov. William Weld for his approval, was developed by a Conference Committee charged with resolving the differences between two versions of the budget. The governor has 10 days to veto particular sections of the budget, and any veto may be overridden with a two-thirds vote in both the House and Senate.

Morrissey said he was pleased with the Conference Committee's budgetary efforts.

"We are limited on what we can spend and I believe that we have spent it wisely," he said.

Among the monies earmarked for Quincy:

•$9,579,537 for education. The funds represent the fourth year the Legislature, with the Senate's lead, has fully funded the 1993 Education Reform Act designed to improve the caliber and equitability of primary and secondary education in Massachusetts.

•$6,671,156 in local aid through the distribution of additional lottery revenues, an increase of

Police To Direct Traffic At Sea St.-QSD

Acting Mayor Peter Kolson has asked Police Chief Francis Mullen to have a police officer direct traffic for 90 minutes every morning during rush hour at the corner of Sea Street and Quincy Shore Drive.

An officer will remain there daily until a traffic problem at the site is permanently resolved.

Kolson said at press time Tuesday the impact of an officer's presence at the intersection, which he termed "a traffic nightmare," was apparent after only one day.

"It (police traffic direction) worked pretty well this morning," he said. "It's been absolute chaos at that intersection before now."

Kolson said since the number of traffic lanes at the intersection has been reduced by the Metropolitan District Commission, traffic has been a problem because the streetlights there have not been properly synchronized in conjunction with the change.

Kolson, the City Council president, is serving as mayor while Mayor James Sheets is away on business. He said he planned to meet this week with state Rep. Stephen Tobin and officials from the MDC and Gov. William Weld's office to find a permanent solution to the problem.

Transmission Shop Told To Restore Curbs

By MARIE D'OLIMPIO

A curb cut made in 1987 at the Triangle Transmission, 62 Liberty St., South Quincy has come back to haunt the owner, Paul McNeely and angered his neighbors as he was told to put the curbs back.

McNeely appeared before the Quincy License Board Tuesday and told them he thought he was complying with all the stipulations for the area by placing "no parking" signs and painting a yellow line in place of the curbs.

The new rules include installing 99 feet of granite curb on Quincy St., remove a 12 foot granite curb and install 39 feet of granite curb at Penn St., and remove 6 feet of curb on Liberty St.

Ward 4 Councillor Michael D'Amico said he has received letters of complaints as well as phone calls from residents about a public safety problem, and said he is trying to make the area "pedestrian friendly."

Neighbors showed pictures of the unsightly area to the board and said when McNeely knows the board is going to inspect his place of business "it is immaculate", and added

"he only cleans up when he is brought before the board."

Chairman Joseph Shea said it was important to "set a limit on the number of cars parked outside the premises". The board voted to change the number of cars from 14 to 8.

The board plans to meet with the traffic engineer and the neighbors at the site and have another hearing July 23.

McNeely was represented by Atty. Joseph Cippola.

Should Reduce Chronic Problems

$3.8M Sewer Project Starts At The Strand

Officials kicked off the $3.8 million rehabilitation project for The Strand area of Wollaston during a recent groundbreaking ceremony.

Among those in attendance were Mayor James Sheets, Department of Public Works Commissioner David Colton, state Sen. Michael Morrissey, Ward 5 City Councillor Stephen Durkin, former Ward 5 Councillor Charles Phelan and Massachusetts Water Resources Authority Executive Director Douglas McDonald.

The project will include the replacement of the area's entire system of aging, leaking sewer lines and storm drains. Officials said it will give neighbors relief from their chronic sewer and flooding problems, although the problems will not be completely eliminated.

City officials also said the 15-month project will reduce much of the existing sewage pollution along nearby Wollaston Beach, which is sometimes fouled by discharges that flow from the houses into storm drains and then into Quincy Bay.

The digging up of the old lines and laying of the new ones is expected to begin in early July and be finished in September 1997, according to officials. As a side benefit, a number of streets are to be repaved after the new lines are laid.

The work is expected to cause off-and-on traffic problems for Strand residents for the next year, but should not tie up commuter and beach traffic on Quincy Shore Drive, officials said.

The work will be paid for by $1.5 million borrowed by the city, $800,000 in state loans and $1.5 million in Massachusetts Water Resources Authority loans and grants.

GROUND BREAKING CEREMONY was held recently for the $3.8 million sewer rehabilitation project in The Strand area of Wollaston. Among area residents and officials who attended were, from left, Delores Campanale, former Ward 5 City Councillor Charles Phelan, Thomas Mannion and his 2-year-old son Thomas Jr., Ward 5 Councillor Stephen Durkin, Christine Zupkofska, Madeline Falcetta, Dominic Falcetta, Joseph Campanale and Douglas MacDonald, executive director of the Massachusetts Water Resources Authority.

During Strand Project Groundbreaking MDC Begins Resanding Of Wollaston Beach

During the recent groundbreaking for The Strand sewer repair project in Wollaston, trucks from the Metropolitan District Commission began dumping tons of new sand onto nearby Wollaston Beach.

The resanding project, which is being implemented by MDC Commissioner David Balfour, will mean 22,100 tons of new sand for the beach. The new sand is part of the MDC's comprehensive restoration plan for the site which includes new benches, landscaping, and walkways over the next several years.

Backing both projects is The Boston Harbor Association, a non-profit public interest organization founded in 1973 to promote a clean, alive and accessible Boston Harbor. The group is the leading advocate for water quality and facility improvements at Wollaston Beach and beaches throughout Boston Harbor.

"Today marks a crucial turning point for the future of Wollaston Beach," said TBHA Deputy Director Joan LeBlanc. "The sewer repairs being implemented by the City of Quincy and the MWRA, combined with the MDC's beach restoration, will restore Wollaston Beach to its former glory over the next few years."

The Strand project, a joint effort between the MWRA and the city, includes replacing the majority of sewers in the Wollaston Beach area, constructing a new sewage pump, and completely separating the storm drain system from the sewer system.

Abigail Adams Statue Fundraiser To Be Held Friday

The Quincy Partnership will hold a fundraiser entitled "An Evening With Thomas Jefferson" to benefit a planned Abigail Adams Statue Friday at 7:30 p.m. in United First Parish Church, 1306 Hancock St., Quincy Center.

Tickets are $25 for the performance, $50 for the performance and a reception at 6:30 p.m. at the National Park Service Visitor Center at Presidents Place, 1250 Hancock St., Quincy Center. Tickets may be obtained by calling Maureen Rogers at the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, 786-1534.

United States history.

Proceeds will benefit the Abigail Adams Statue which will be placed in Quincy. Abigail Smith was born in Weymouth and subsequently married John Adams, second President of the United States. The mother of sixth President John Quincy Adams, she is the only woman in U.S. history to be a wife and mother of presidents.

The Quincy Partnership created the idea of raising funds for the statue, which will be sculpted by Lloyd Lillie of Brookline. Lillie's creates includes statues of the late Boston Mayor James Michael Curley and

POPPING IRON: BE CAREFUL

From ads for iron-fortified cereals to vitamins plus iron, the message seems to be that people need extra iron. It is true that many of us could use more iron in our lives; at least one in five women in the U.S. are anemic, for example. Before you start downing mega-doses, though, consider that too much iron can be a bad thing as well. Some people are predisposed to storing up high levels of iron in their bodies, which can lead to serious organ damage. Also, popping iron pills may mask a case of anemia that is actually a sign of a more serious condition, such as kidney disease or colon cancer. Before you decide to routinely take iron pills, talk to your doctor. Common causes of iron deficiency include blood loss, a vegetarian or weight-loss diet, colon cancer, colitis and taking an aspirin a day.

P.S. A grayish-brown tone to skin color is sometimes a sign of iron overload.

Before increasing your vitamin intake, check with your physician for advice. At COMPREHENSIVE MEDICAL CARE, Dr. Lisa Antonelli and I specialize in heart disease. I am affiliated with Quincy Hospital and South Shore Hospital. Hours by appointment. We're at 700 Congress St., in Quincy. Call me or Dr. Lisa Antonelli with questions at 472-2550. Doing It Up Big There's one thing you've got to say about Uncle Sam Rounseville: he does things up big.

Last Valentine's Day on bended knee at busy Beale

St. and Newport Ave. in freezing weather he proposed under an eight-foot sign proclaiming: "Jean Kenney I WANT YOU to Marry Me."

Jean, a mortgage executive at The Hibernia Savings Bank, said "yes."

They will be married July 3 at 6:30 p.m. in a ceremony at the Hatch Memorial Shell on the Esplanade in Boston. (Shifted from 7:30 p.m.)

Rounseville asked Gov. William Weld to do the honors. Weld says he will. And the best man will be MDC Commissioner David Balfour.

Jean by-passed the well-known in her choices. Her daughter, Lisa, will be her maid of honor and her son, Allan, will give her away. Both live in Keene, N.H. and Allan is a student at the University of New Hampshire.

The Yankee Doodle wedding will take place shortly before the Boston Pops Orchestra arrives to rehearse for the traditional July 4th concert.

With a little bit of luck, Keith Lockhart and the orchestra might be there in time to strike up "Here Comes the Bride."

A reception will follow in the Grand Hall of the State House.

Still doing things up big, Rounseville included Bill and Hillary Clinton among the 150 or so invited guests. Uncle Sam hasn't heard from Washington. But he says he knows there definitely will be Clinton representation.

"One of Jean's friends is going to be there," he says. "She lives in Clinton."

But for a guy who knows how to put things together, he still has one loose end: the wedding trip. He isn't sure where he's taking his bride.

UNCLE SAM and JEAN

ness Association, are co-chairmen. They are putting together a committee of community, business and political leaders.

Although it has been a long time since they earned their Eagle Scout badges, Joe and Chuck say then can still tie a pretty good square knot.

JOSEPHINE CARNALI, "who came for 30 days and stayed 36 years," was honored at a retirement reception by City Hall colleagues last week.

Josie, secretary to City Clerk Joseph Shea and to John Gillis before him, retired after a 36-year career in the city clerk's office.

She was hired by Gillis in 1960 for a 30-day stint to help out on census cards work. While she was doing that, a job opened, she was offered it and accepted. And stayed 36 years.

Gillis and former Asst. City Clerk Tom Burke were among those attending the reception along with their successors Shea and Maureen Hallstrom.

Josie, who during her 36 years was also the first woman clerk of City Council Committees, plans to do some travelling and spend time with the grandchildren.

But she will be coming back to City Hall now and then to help out when needed—especially during elections.

ELLIS HUGHES who died last week at age 89 is fondly remembered by those of us who regularly bought our suits from him, Ray Josephine and Russ Johnson in Remick's men's department. Now, sadly, all three are gone, as is Remick's.

BURKE

Atty. George Burke especially remembers Ellie, as he was known to friends, for what he calls "A Christmas Miracle."

It happened one Christmas Eve back in the 1960's when Burke was then Ward 5 city councillor. He was leaving to do some necessary last minute Christmas shopping when the children's 16-weeks old kitten was killed by a car.

The children, Joann, 1, Susan, 2, and Jeanne Marie, 5, didn't see it happen. And George and his wife, Sandra, decided not to tell them so their Christmas wouldn't be spoiled.

After taking care of the kitten, George sadly left to do that shopping that had to be done. He wound up at Remick's and told Ellie what had happened.

It was near closing time and Ellie told George to wait for him. He then took George to his home on Granite St.—the house where he was born and lived all his life.

"Look," said Ellie, pointing to a litter of kittens about the same age and size of the Burke kitten.

"And then," says George, "I couldn't believe my eyes. There in the corner was a kitten that looked like the identical twin to our kitten."

Ellie told him to take it home to the kids. George did. And on Christmas morning when the kids got up, the kitten was playing under the Christmas tree. And they couldn't tell the difference.

Years later when the kids were older, they were told what had happened and said they were glad they weren't told that night.

"Ellie gave me a Christmas miracle that night," says George. "I'll always remember it and him."

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1920's POSTCARD of the old wooden Methodist Episcopal Church built in 1874 in Wollaston. The present church is located in Wollaston Center but this building was on the corner of Safford and Beale Streets across from the old Wollaston School house. It was next to what is now St. Catherine's Greek Orthodox church. This was one of five wooden Methodist Episcopal churches built in the late nineteenth century in Quincy. They all have been demolished. The house on the left hasn't changed much but this corner property is now the home of a block of businesses including Robert Stone Realtors.

Thank You For Making Bishop's Field Rededication A Success

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

As Chairman of the Montclair/Wollaston Neighborhood Association's Bishop's Field Rededication and Family Day event, I wish to extend a litany of public acknowledgements and thanks to all those who responded in any way to my requests for donations of goods and services for this celebration.

There were countless hours spent in organizing and soliciting assistance which proved worthwhile because of the generosity of those who contributed to its success.

These benefactors include Stop & Shop for its provision of food and drink; Quincy PAL and Joe Kintios, who despite sustaining an injury to his hand requiring 20 stitches, made sure the cooking was done; Jim Mullaney, Bob Fitzgerald, and Quincy Kiwanis for their technical assistance on the Bicycle Safety Rideo and their providing bike safety helmets for sale below cost; my fellow Lions club members, Joanne Condon-Walsh, Dave Dennis, Frank Evans Jr., Roger Hamel, Steve Mansfield, Bill Shea Sr., and Don Uvanitte, who chipped in along with Tom Feenan to purchase a new bike provided at cost for the raffle by Bob Curry; Roger Hamel for providing the excellent condition used bikes also raffled; Rev. Laura Biddle for her wonderful face painting services for the children; Jim Wilson, Hank Logan and the QPS for providing use of the Montclair School and school yard; Dick Striano and the Montclair School Band and the Rock Band who all contributed musically; the Quincy Police, Fire and Emergency Management Depts. for their assistance; and the students of North Quincy High School's Thomas Jefferson Forum for their volunteer efforts.

The assistance of all of the foregoing capped the efforts exhibited by Tom Koch and all the crew of the Quincy Park Department, and the commitment of Mayor Sheets and the City Council in refurbishing the park in honor of Frederick Bishop and as a testament to Joe Gildea, who has given so much to this community and to the memory of Dick Koch who invested so much of himself in this city.

Praises Mariano For Efforts To Help MWRA Ratepayers

Editor, The Quincy Sun:

The MWRA Advisory Board would like to publicly thank Ronald Mariano for his efforts on behalf of ratepayers during this year's House budget debate.

As Vice Chairman of the MWRA Caucus, Rep. Mariano has been a strong advocate for MWRA ratepayers and has worked to secure state funding for the Boston Harbor Project.

Due to the efforts of Rep. Mariano and the MWRA Caucus, the FY97 House budget includes $39.1 million in debt service assistance for the MWRA. This funding will ensure that wholesale rate increased for the coming fiscal year are held to the single digits.

In addition to debt service assistance, several other pro ratepayer measures were included in the House budget including $500,000 to partially reimburse the MWRA for operating the Clinton wastewater treatment plant and $1 million to establish a water and sewer rate relief program for low income homeowners. Rep. Mariano also sponsored an amendment to the budget which will facilitate the sale of the Fore River Shipyard.

The Advisory Board

applauds the commitment Rep. Mariano has shown to MWRA ratepayers over the years and appreciates his work on this year's state budget.

Gillis Proposes Eight Ward Plan

By PAUL HAROLD

In the wake of a threatened lawsuit against the city's malapportioned wards, City Clerk John Gillis proposed a plan for eight wards in the fall election.

The addition of two new wards would allow the city to maintain the smaller wards in Quincy Point and South Quincy which were considerably smaller than the other four wards in the city. The number of at-large councillors would remain at three.

Tim Cardwell of Presidents Lane, one of the persons considering the suit, said the court action might try to stop the elections completely until the redistricting could be completed.

BLACK SWORN IN AS JUDGE

Quincy native Charles Black was sworn in as a special justice of the Brockton District Court by Lt. Gov. Donald Dwight.

At 43, Black was one of the youngest judges in the state. A graduate of Boston University Law School, he was a member of the corporate law staff at John Hancock Insurance. He was a longtime member of the Republican State Committee.

TAX RATE DOWN $1.10

Mayor Walter Hannon announced that the tax rate of $154.30 was $1.10 down from last year.

"The tax rate is down and we haven't cut any services," he said.

The reason for the decrease in the rate, despite the increase in city expenditures, was partly due to revenue-sharing money that was scheduled to be received in 1972, but was not available when the tax rate was set last year.

The city valuation of $250.4 million was up $9 million from last year. Elmer Fagerlund, chairman of the Board of Assessors, noted there was also new construction that added to the new values including State Street South, Kemper Insurance and Presidential Gardens.

Home Buyers Should Consider Interior Zoning

In the hustle and bustle of house-hunting, some buyers neglect to take the time to discover whether or not a home has a practical floor plan.

Although owners frequently seek to correct faults in their present homes, such as inadequate storage space, other faults may be overlooked because they are not obvious to the casual observer.

What kinds of faults? "A floor plan that funnels traffic through the middle of the living room, interrupting social activities, is one," says Mary R. Dawson, president of the South Shore Association of Realtors. "A single bathroom in a two-story house could be another."

Certain design faults might be considered merely annoying, others serious. In any event, many can be discerned in advance simply by sketching and later analyzing a rough floor plan of the prospective home.

You need not possess the artistic talent of a Leonardo da Vinci nor the serious technical training of an architect. All you need is a piece of paper and a pencil. It's a good idea to have a tape measure handy to obtain fairly accurate room dimensions.

Don't forget to mark locations of all windows, doors, closets, stairwells and major kitchen appliances. Include the garage, driveway and walkways in your drawing as well.

What should you look for when you analyze a floor plan? "A well-designed home should offer good interior zoning and direct routes between rooms," Dawson explains. "Rooms should be located logically, be large enough to space your furniture comfortably and be functional and flexible in serving intended purposes."

Interior zoning--the segregation of rooms by the activity that takes place in them--falls into three general categories: work (cooking and laundering), shared activities (dining and entertaining) and private activities (sleeping, bathing and reading).

Rooms should be separated into three distinct zones so that the activities in one zone don't interfere with those in another. In a two-story home, for example, good zoning dictates that bedrooms be located upstairs, so that activities in the rooms below don't bother sleepers.

Logical location of rooms is important. The kitchen, for example, should be centrally located. It should be near or adjacent to the eating area, but not far from the front entrance. Ideally, it should overlook an area where children might be playing.

On the other hand, the living room should be somewhat isolated. In too many homes, traffic flows from the front door directly into the living room, often interrupting ongoing activity.

"Traffic should flow through the house by direct routes," Dawson notes. "If traffic must pass through a room, it should pass along one end or across a corner, not through the middle."

Check traffic patterns in your improvised floor plan by tracing routes from room to room with a pencil. Find out if it's necessary to cross or take circuitous routes.

Rooms should be large enough to accommodate your furnishings. Use your floor plan to see if your king-size bed will fit into the master bedroom. You can also the floor plan to decide how to place your furniture.

The few extra minutes it takes to draw a floor plan could help you avoid years of inconvenience caused by a home that doesn't fit your needs.

The South Shore Association of Realtors is one of more than 1,800 local boards and association of Realtors nationwide that compromise the National Association of Realtors. As the nation's largest trade association, NAR is "The Voice for Real Estate," representing nearly 750,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Updating Your Home's Decor

[The following tip is from ERA Central Real Estate, 128 McGrath Highway, Quincy.]

Q. We just bought our first home and the decor needs updating. What guidelines should we follow if we plan to trade up to a larger house in three to four years?

A. It's no accident that you can easily match window treatments, wallpaper, floor coverings, and upholstered furniture. In this country, decorating trends and color palettes are agreed upon by fashion, textile and home furnishings manufacturers so that coordinating a decor is not difficult.

Because you know you'll be selling your home in a few years, choose neutral colors for the walls and carpeting, and opt for more colorful furnishings and accessories that will move with you to your next home. By the way, neutral does not mean choosing between white and off-white anymore. There is a wide range of new neutrals for your selection.

St., 9-21 Beale St., 1469-1489 Hancock St., 1495 Hancock St., and others.

In total, approximately 55 storefronts are planned to be renovated through the first phase of the program.

"This program will reestablish a traditional and historic-looking character to many storefronts which, over the years, have become a hodgepodge of materials and styles," said Mannarino.

"The program will also provide an opportunity to improve large blocks of store signs."

Interest has been expressed by all three business districts eligible for funding. With the expectation that the entire $300,000 budget will be expended over the next several months, Mannarino said he hopes that more projects will be funded in 1997.

Michael Rie, Quincy 2000 project manager, added, "Property owners and tenants who have already been in contact with Quincy 2000 and have begun the application process should be assured that they fall within the first funding cycle. However, the program has always been 'first come, first served,' so we urge applicants to get their materials finalized."

Rie added that although new applications are not being accepted, he will continue to meet with interested parties to encourage participation in later rounds of funding.

The Commercial Building Renovation Program provides an incentive for owners to invest in renovating their storefronts, officials said, since improving the aesthetics of the business districts will draw more shoppers and tenants to the commercial areas and increase property tax revenues for the city.

Funding for the program comes from the federal Community Development Block Grant (CDBG) program. The funds are allocated to Quincy 2000 for the design and implementation of economic development initiatives and are administered by the Quincy Department of Planning and Community Development.

$559,553 over FY96. "A partnership must exist between the state and local governments to provide basic services to all our residents," Morrissey said.

The budget includes numerous other statewide figures, including $23.3 million for a "Child Protection Initiative" to improve the foster care system, $6.8 million for sewer rate relief, $4.1 million for district attorneys and $1 million for community-based public safety programs. The amounts of those and other monies that have been earmarked for Quincy were unknown at press time.

Mayor James Sheets said last week he could not say how the city's recently-passed $143.1 million would impact has had $1 million in state monies set aside to fund the drainage.

Quincy's property tax rates until he finds out how exactly much state money the city will receive. The mayor was in Cleveland, Ohio this week attending the U.S. Conference of Mayors and was unavailable for comment.

Delahunt said he has learned through Weld's legal counsel that the governor is supportive of the idea. Mayor James Sheets also has said the city would offer any technical assistance needed to drain the quarries.

Delahunt, a Quincy resident, said "as a private citizen" he also thinks draining the quarry is worth the time, money and effort, whether or not McDonagh's body is found. "For public safety reasons, I think it makes sense," he said.

The quarry was searched Monday with sonar equipment used by Brett Phaneuf of Marine Sonic Technologies Ltd., who discovered a body-sized object he called "definitely incongruous to the material around it" on a ledge about 200 feet below the surface of the water.

McDonagh, a college student from Ireland who was visiting relatives locally at the time of his disappearance, last was seen alive June 26, 1994 and has been placed at the quarry by a friend.

Legion Baseball

Morrisette Wins Three, Improves Record To 7-3

The Morrisette American Legion baseball team won three games, including two one-run victories over Randolph, to improve its record to 7-3.

Despite two passed balls and a wild pitch in the seventh inning resulting in two runs for Randolph, Morrisette hung on for a 7-6 win.

With two outs and the tying run on third, reliever Mike Kenney uncorked a wild pitch, but catcher Tim Zaniboni recovered the ball in time and threw to Kenney covering the plate, who tagged the runner out to end the game and secure the victory for Morrisette.

Zaniboni went two for three and Kenney drove in two runs with a double to lead Morrisette offensively. Mark Kelly started the game, allowing four runs in four and a third innings before giving way to Joe McCarthy, who pitched two strong innings to pick up the win. Kenney relieved McCarthy and recorded the final two outs.

Mike Kenney threw a complete-game, five-hit shutout and also went two for four at the plate to lead Morrisette over West Roxbury, 10-0. Kenney struck out seven and walked none. As the team's designated hitter, Kenney has excelled, currently batting .367.

Tom Cunio went two for four with three RBI and now has driven in seven runs this season. Matt McLaughlin went two for three with a triple and drove in a run to pace Morrisette offensively.

Following Kenney's outstanding performance, Morrisette's Jeff Russell also pitched a complete game, allowing four hits, striking out six and walking none in a 3-2 decision over Randolph.

With the bases loaded and the game tied 2-2 in the bottom of the seventh, catcher Tim Zaniboni singled in the winning run with a line drive single down the left field line. Zaniboni, who is batting .379 with six RBI, finished the game with two hits in three at-bats and two RBI.

"Tim's always been a good hitter for us, all three years he's been on the team," said athletic officer Gus Russo. "He hasn't struck out yet this season, so we love to have his bat in the lineup."

In a losing effort, Randolph's Al Pierucci pitched an excellent game, allowing just three hits striking out 11 while going the distance. Two walks with two outs loaded the bases, setting up Zaniboni's game-winning smash.

At the midpoint of the season, Morrisette manager Ray Cattaneo said he is impressed with the team's pitching and defense, especially the excellent control of starters Russell (two walks in 23 IP) and Kenney (five

Quincy Downs Milton As Chagnon Goes Distance

John Chagnon went the distance, scattering five hits, striking out six and walking one to lead the Quincy American Legion baseball team to a 3-1 victory over Milton. Chagnon improved his record to 1-1 with the win.

"John has been working very hard, and he has gotten better with every outing," said Quincy's first-year head coach Larry Taglieri. "This was definitely his best outing so far."

Quincy scored all three of its runs in the third inning. Center fielder Bryan Linskey led off the inning with a double and scored on a triple by Justin Elwood. After Malachy Higgins walked, Kevin Nichol drove in Elwood with a double. Higgins scored the third run on a passed ball.

Nichol and Pat McGann turned in solid defensive performances for Quincy, which improved its record to 2-6 with the win.

"It was good to get this win, because we've had trouble scoring runs this season," said Taglieri, noting that three of Quincy's six losses have come by a single run. "Our 18's have been doing a good job leading the way, including Ken Hannaford, Kevin Nichol, Malachy Higgins, John Duffy and John Chagnon, but we have a young team and we just haven't scored a lot of runs so far."

Taglieri also said that Quincy's pitching has been strong and hopes that the hitting improves as the season progresses.

"It's been tough, but we keep having batting practice and the kids are really working hard to get better," said Taglieri. "We're just trying to win some games. The kids have been enthusiastic and have kept a great attitude about everything. As long as they keep battling, the offense should come around."

Quincy was scheduled to play against Canton at Canton High yesterday (Wednesday) at 5:45 p.m., host Milton today (Thursday) at Adams Field at 8 p.m. and travel to Weymouth Friday for a game at Libbey Field at 5:45 p.m.

Junior Red Raiders MBA Champions

The North Quincy Junior Raiders, coached by Paul Bregoli, recently won the MBA 12-and-under Championship, finishing their season with a perfect 10-0 record.

In the final, Peter Turowski scored 8 of his game-high 14 points in the first quarter as the Raiders jumped out to an early 16-point lead en route to a 67-36 victory over Braintree.

Phil McGillicuddy was an offensive force, pouring in 12 points in the final.

Joe Sudak had his inside game working, netting 14 points to share high scoring honors with Turowski.

Brandon Sleeth had a fine offensive game, scoring 8 while Pat Bregoli added 9. Dan Duggan and John Fidalgo scored 4 points apiece.

The Raiders whipped the Spurs in the semifinals, 62-36. McGillicuddy slashed through the Spurs' defense for a game-high 16 points. Turowski dominated the boards on both ends, chipping in with 10 points while Bregoli and Sudak added 9 apiece. Duggan and Mike Haines each contributed 6 points.

SYNTHETIC OIL

Car owners who appreciate the importance of frequent and regular oil changes may wonder what further advantage can be gained by using synthetic oil. Unlike conventional motor oils which are refined from crude oil, synthetic oils are developed chemically, making them costlier to produce. However, they also provide a wider performance envelope with a number of significant advantages in several areas. For one, synthetic oils flow well at low temperatures, making them better for winter use. They also afford exceptional thermal stability, making them good choices for high-load, high-heat summer conditions. They are less volatile (which can translate to reduced oil consumption) and more forgiving of abuse and less susceptible to the harmful effects of oxidation. While synthetic base stock may hold up longer, allowing longer intervals between oil changes is discouraged because the normal buildup of internal deposits goes on and breakdown of additives continues to occur. HINT: A third type of motor oil is a petroleum-synthetic blend, which combines some of the high-performance attributes of synthetics with the lower price of conventional oil.

People generally put a great deal of money into their cars. With the initial purchase price, insurance, tune-ups and repairs, you can end up with a sizable investment. It therefore makes sense to make sure you have your oil changed and repaired by the best and ASE Certified technicians around. Your car regularly serviced and here at LEO & WALT'S SUNOCO, you'll get it. Stop by 258 Quincy Ave., E. Braintree and get acquainted or call us at 843-1550. "A Place Where Your Car Can Live Longer." Have a great and safe 4th of July! Hours: Mon-Fri 8am-9pm, Sat 7am-9pm, Sun 9am-5pm. We are also your local source for propane for grills, motor homes and converted vehicles.

Girls' Softball

Kerri Limo First-Place Winner

Kerri Limo, which won eight of its last nine games and tied the other, finished its season in first place in the Junior Girls Division of the Quincy Youth Girls' Softball League with an 8-1-1 record.

Winning pitcher Lisa Schifone struck out five, made an unassisted double play and also went 2-for-2 to lead Kerri to a 6-5 win over Quincy PAL in its regular season finale.

Other offensive standouts for Kerri were Beth Goodrich, Kory Verhault, Jacqueline Tower and Stephanie Tetreault. Marilyn Powers and Meaghan Foley turned in outstanding defensive performances. Also playing well were Melissa Spillane and Sheila Lynch.

Sheila Lynch struck out 10 to lead Kerri to a 12-9 victory over Service-Master. Key hitters for Kerri were Lisa Schifone, Susan Spring and Samantha Blair. Kristen Gallagher, Meaghan Foley and Kristina Penzo all played well.

In a 9-8 squeaker over Keohane's, Meaghan Foley scored the game-winning run in the sixth to lift Kerri to the victory. Lisa Schifone, who struck out 8 and picked up the win, also collected 2 hits and scored 2 runs.

Beth Goodrich (2-for-4),

Brianna Nolan (2-for-4), Marilyn Powers and Sheila Lynch also contributed hits for the victors. Goodrich, Stephanie Tetreault and Kory Verhault were defensive standouts.

Keohane's Shannon Paine, Keri Rogers, Tyla Skinner and Megan Sidorowicz had hits and Melissa Tirrell and Nicole Lewis played well.

Kerri snuck by Keohane's again, this time by an 18-16 score. Beth Goodrich pitched her first game of the season, threw out 8 runners at first and also went 2-for-3 to help her own cause.

Lisa Schifone went 2-for-3, including her first homerun and also played a strong defensive game at first base. Other hitters for Kerri were Jen Ryan, Susan Spring, Meaghan Foley, Kristen Gallagher, Kory Verhault, Jackie Tower, Sheila Lynch, Samantha Blair and Brianna Nolan. Stephanie Tetreault and Melissa Spillane played well.

Kerri rallied from an eight-run deficit to tie Quincy PAL, 10-10. Marilyn Powers went 3-for-4 with a home run in the sixth to tie the game at 10.

Sheila Lynch struck out 5 and allowed 2 runs in four innings of relief and also collected 2 hits. Beth Goodrich was Kerri's hitting star, going 4-for-4 and scored 3 runs. Susan Spring, Jacqueline Tower and Brianna Nolan had 3 hits apiece. Samantha Blair and Kristina Penzo also chipped in with hits and Melissa Spillane and Kory Verhault played strong games.

Lisa Schifone went 4-for-4 and scored 3 runs to spark Kerri to an 18-9 victory over Quincy D.A.R.E. Other offensive standouts for Kerri were Susan Spring (3-for-3), Jen Ryan, Meaghan Foley, Marilyn Powers, Kristina Penzo, Kory Verhault, Samantha Blair, Sheila Lynch and Brianna Nolan, all with hits. Courtney Riley was missing from the Kerri lineup with a broken wrist.

Quincy D.A.R.E. standouts were Breanne Therrien, Michelle Boyd and Casey Lorman.

In other action, Quincy D.A.R.E. scored 16 runs in the first 3 innings and romped over Service-Master, 23-7. Ashley Fowkes, who pitched 2 strong innings, also went 3-for-4 to lead D.A.R.E.

Kerri McAteer pitched 4 solid innings, Caitlyn Callahan went 3-for-4 and Amanda Zoia played a strong game behind the plate. The entire team played excellent defense walks in 19 IP).

"The pitching has been great," said Cattaneo, noting that the six runs by Randolph was the most the staff has allowed in a game this season. "Every time Russell and Kenney go out there, they don't walk anyone. They get the ball over the plate, make the batter hit it and we've had the defense behind them making good plays."

"The relief pitching has also been strong, with Chad Feetham and Joe McCarthy coming in for two or three innings, throwing the ball hard, with good control, and shutting down the opposing batters. McCarthy can either start or relieve, which is a nice option to have as a coach."

Despite the team's success, Cattaneo voiced concerns regarding the team's hitting problems through 10 games.

"We have a lot young guys who have to adjust to Legion ball, which is different from high school ball," said Cattaneo. "Here, the pitching is tougher, and sometimes it takes a while to adjust. Some guys will adjust this season, some not until next season. Hopefully the hitting will come around in the second half. I hope we can keep playing well, get to the playoffs and then we'll see how far we can go."

Following a home game against Cohasset last night (Wednesday) at 8, the team travels to Randolph Sunday at 6 p.m.

Morrisette then opens the week with games at Weymouth (Monday, 5:45 p.m.) and against Braintree (Tuesday, 8 p.m., Adams Field). Both teams have defeated Morrisette this season—both by small margins.

"We can beat them, if we get a little more hitting," said Cattaneo, referring to Weymouth and Braintree. "We lost close games to them earlier in the season, games we could have won with a hit here or there. We left some runners on in both games. We're saving Kenney and Russell for those two games, so we should have a good chance of winning both."

SCOTT DEWARE

A Thought For The Week

Thomas A. Kempis in one of his books made this statement: "In the judging of others, a man labors in vain, often erring, but in judging and examining himself, he always labors fruitfully."

Have you ever noticed that when the other fellow acts irritable, he's UGLY; when we do, it's NERVES... When others are set in their ways, they're OBSTINATE; when we are, it's just FIRMNESS... When your neighbor doesn't like your friend, he's PREJUDICED; when we don't like him, we are simply being a GOOD JUDGE OF HUMAN NATURE... When the other fellow takes time to do things well, he's a SLOWPOKE OR LAZY; when we act the same way, we are DELIBERATE AND CAREFUL... When our neighbor gets rid of his money in a hurry, he's a SPENDTHRIFT; when we do, we're GENEROUS... When someone finds flaws in things, he's CRANKY AND CRITICAL; when we do, we're DISCRIMINATING...

Any thoughts on this or any other thought you read here are most appreciated and most welcome.

Chamber Launches Home Page On World Wide Web

The South Shore Chamber of Commerce (SSCC) recently launched a home page on the Internet's World Wide Web at <http://www.southshore-chamber.org>.

The site features an on-line application for new members and reservation system for Chamber events, provides links to Quincy, Braintree, and Weymouth town home pages; and, in the coming months, will add hotlinks to all SSCC business council communities.

The highlight of the home page is an on-line membership database which allows browsers to search for information by company name, industry category and location. The Chamber also plans to include additional links to the Chamber-member companies that have created their own home pages.

"The ability to conduct on-line research, exchange e-mail and tap into available resources is rather critical for both employees and job seekers," said SSCC General Manager Terry Fancher. "The Chamber has recognized this as a need. We plan to provide Internet training and are currently developing a series of seminars to educate members and non-members on these basic skills."

A one-page fact sheet is currently available through the Chamber outlining reduced rate dial-up service for members, lease-line services for large capacity users and a list of Chamber members that can create home pages at competitive prices.

The site was produced by Larry Swain of Penrose Inc. of Hingham, who donated his time to design and create the Chamber's home page.

For more information, e-mail a request to: rzooleck@pcix.com or call Fancher at 479-1111.

Historic Quincy

A Special Supplement

The Quincy Sun

Thursday, June 27, 1996

City of Quincy, Massachusetts

Office of the Mayor

Welcome to Historic Quincy

To John Hancock, John Adams and John Quincy Adams, Quincy was home. It was that "remarkable spot" John Adams referred to when he wrote to Abigail from Europe.

Standing on Penn's Hill with her son, John Quincy, watching smoke from the Battle of Bunker Hill, Abigail Adams may have sensed that this "remarkable spot" would produce national leaders and have an impact on American History for centuries to come.

Granite from Quincy quarries would build the great Bunker Hill Monument, a lasting memorial to the battle which began our war for independence. The deep waters of Quincy Bay would provide a safe haven for one of the greatest shipbuilding facilities in America. From granite carrying ships to the great ships of war such as the aircraft carriers, USS Wasp and USS Lexington, the tradition would grow.

With twenty seven miles of seashore on the east and nestled into the beautiful Blue Hills on the west, Quincy with its peninsula communities, has the character of a town, not a City.

Visit the Adams National Historical sites, including the birthplaces of two presidents and their summer home. Enter the beautiful United First Parish Church where the two presidents and their wives are entombed. Visit the USS Salem, the last big gun cruiser built. Walk its decks at the Fore River Shipyard where it was built.

Truly, John Adams was correct when he said of Quincy, "It is a most remarkable spot." I welcome you to Quincy. Enjoy its beauty and history.

Sincerely,

James A. Sheets

After Painstaking Renewal Project

John Adams Birthplace Has Original Look

The birthplace of John Adams, second president of the United States, looks like it did when he and his parents, Deacon John and Susanna lived there.

It took on that "as it was" look after a painstaking six-year reconstruction project in the 1980s.

Visitors to the John Adams Birthplace, which peers over the shoulder of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace on Franklin St., South Quincy, can now see more completely how the house looked.

The house is well-furnished and looks like it did when John and Abigail lived in it.

The final renovation touches were to the room where Deacon John Adams made shoes.

The rooms are furnished from the period of Deacon John and his wife and probably reflected her taste. They are furnished not elaborately, but sufficiently to have a lived-in look.

The birthplace was probably built in the late 17th or early 18th Century for less than $1,000 in the pounds of the day and the clapboards were hand-hewn from trees that grew in its fields.

The pine clapboards of the John Adams Birthplace are unpainted and the U.S. National Park Service, which restored the house, insists that based on research the house will remain that way, despite the fact that John Adams was known to have preferred it white.

For more than 80 years they were the little red farmhouses at the foot of Penn's Hill. But research turned up the fact that Abigail Adams, the wife of the second president, wanted them "stone" and white in color.

Since what Abigail wanted, Abigail usually got, in the summer of 1980, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace was repainted to Abigail's taste, the "stone" color determined to be a sort of off-white mixed especially for the occasion from a late 18th Century formula.

The John Adams Birthplace was painted white so that both houses would look as they did in 1807, the year the last Adams lived in them, but later research indicated it was unpainted.

The birthplaces, parts of which date back to the 17th Century, were taken over by the National Park Service on May 1, 1979 after years of semi-neglect due to lack of restoration and maintenance funds.

The John Quincy Adams Birthplace reopened in 1982 for the first time in three years after undergoing a $175,000 rehabilitation faithful to the lives of the prominent family that lived there.

If you close your eyes and give your imagination full rein you can see them now as they were more than 200 years ago.

There is Abigail Adams in the new pink gingham dress. There is the curly-haired infant, Thomas Boylston Adams, bouncing on his father's knee. And there is John

JOHN ADAMS BIRTHPLACE

The setting, right down to the pewter plates and candlesticks, is reproduced faithfully in the corner room of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace.

The furnishings of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace are precise reproductions of those that were in the house when the second president lived there. The originals are at the Old House, the Adams National Historic Site, from which they cannot be removed under the ownership agreement with the Adams family.

The most interesting room in the John Quincy Adams Birthplace is John Adams' old law office, in which the elder Adams, James Bowdoin and Samuel Adams drafted the Massachusetts State Constitution, the model on which the U.S. Constitution was based.

The law office is furnished pretty much as John Adams had it.

There is the hutch table on which he wrote the State Constitution; the bookcase filled with books that probably were there in John Adams' day, judging by an inventory of his law library; his old writing desk and two chairs that were copies from those in his second law office in Boston.

Pastels of Abigail and John, originally done in Salem, were photographically reproduced by photographer George Dow and now hang in Abigail's sitting room. The originals are in the possession of the Massachusetts Historical Society.

The cabinet was reproduced and installed in the kitchen of the John Quincy Adams Birthplace along with copies of

The Adams Birthplaces at 133 and 141 Franklin St. are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. Last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available. Tours should be arranged at the Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

The Adams Cottages

Our Only Father - Son Presidents Born Here

It was the North Precinct of Braintree then, a sprawling tract of woods and farmlands on the gently rolling hills some 10 miles south of the Boston Stone along the winding Coast Road to Plymouth.

Something less than 1,500 people lived in the North, Middle and South Precincts of Braintree in the year 1735 and two of them were Deacon John Adams, 44, farmer and cordwainer, and his wife, Susanna, 26.

Their home was a weathered gray farmhouse with a high peaked roof and attached lean-to kitchen set on seven acres of farmland at roughly Milepost 11 of the Coast Road, just where it turned up the wooded slopes of Penn's Hill toward the Monaquot River ford.

He was a pillar of his rural community. Mr. Adams was a deacon in the First Parish Church, a lieutenant in the Braintree militia and a town constable with a forceful personality and tact that enabled him to collect taxes from his neighbors.

He was a hard-working farmer whose cider was acknowledged best in town, he worked in leather during the winter months, and he had an eye on an adjoining piece of farmland, 9 1/2 acres owned by the Billings brothers, complete with a farmhouse similar to his own.

Susanna Adams was a Boylston of Brookline, socially a cut above her husband, and perhaps there were moments in the simple house at the foot of Penn's Hill when she thought of the home of her uncle, the noted Dr. Zabiel Boylston of Brookline, whose furniture came all the way from London.

Their first child, a son who was named John for his father, was born in the southeast bedroom of the farmhouse on Oct. 19, 1735. (Old Style). He would become the second president of the United States.

Deacon John purchased the house next door for 500 pounds in 1744 and it was ready 20 years later when young John moved in with his brand new bride, the former Abigail Smith, the preacher's sparkling daughter from the next town of Weymouth.

Their second child, a son who was named John Quincy Adams after his great-grandfather, Col. John Quincy, was born there on July 11, 1767. He would become the sixth president of the United States.

The junction of Franklin St., Independence Ave., and President Ave. in South Quincy is the only place in the country where the birthplaces of two presidents stand side by side in the same city.

The precise age of the two cottages at the foot of Penn's Hill is not known.

When the John Adams Birthplace was retorted by the Daughters of Revolution in 1897, a brick bearing the date 1861 was discovered under the southeast corner, and the house was known to have been occupied by one Joseph Penniman in that year.

And a man named Samuel Belcher was living in the John Quincy Adams as early as 1663, when it was little more than a one-room shack with fireplace. It was built to its present size in 1716, as evidenced by a date brick found in the new fireplace.

According to Henry Adams, grandson of President John Quincy Adams, no member of the family lived in the cottages after 1818, although ownership remained in the Adams family until 1940.

Both houses were restored by the Adams Realty Trust, the John Quincy Adams Birthplace in 1896 at a cost of $1,650 and the John Adams Birthplace a year later at an expense of $515.49.

They were presented to the city of Quincy in 1940 and supervised by the Quincy Historical Society until they were turned over to the U.S. National Park Service in 1979.

The Adams Birthplaces at 133 and 141 Franklin St. are open daily, including Sundays and holidays, from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. from April 19 to Nov. 10 with guided tours. Last full tour is at 4:15 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, which also includes admission to the Adams Mansion within seven days. Park passes available. HISTORIC QUINCY

The City of Quincy has almost everything a city can offer with its brilliant, magnificent shoreline, its National Historical sites, its two colleges and its neighborhoods. It is rich in heritage, natural and human resources – and it is particularly enriched by its unique blend of old and new.

First settled in 1625 at Mount Wollaston and separated in 1640 from Boston as a Town called Braintree, our Quincy was established as a Town of its own in 1792 and incorporated as a City in 1888.

It continues to be one of the finest cities in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts. It produced two Presidents of the United States. The mortal remains of Quincy's two most famous sons, Presidents John Adams and John Quincy Adams lie at the First Parish Church, Unitarian, in Quincy Square. The citizens of this City are very proud of its history and working together, they are ready to meet the challenges they face as they look ahead to the 21st century.

ADAMS MANSION NATIONAL HISTORIC SITE

The Adams Mansion

Summer White House And Home Of 2 Presidents

Josiah Quincy, the one who built railroads around New England and founded the cooperative bank movement in Massachusetts, was in his boyhood a frequent visitor to the mansion where John Adams, the second president of the United States, lived in retirement.

Later, he wrote with wry amusement about Sunday dinner with the aging patriarch of the Adams clan and his wife, Abigail, a dinner that inevitably began with a thick pudding made from boiled corn meal.

"...it being thought desirable to take the edge off one's hunger before reaching the joint," wrote Quincy.

"Indeed, it was considered wise to stimulate the young to fill themselves with pudding, by the assurance that the boy who managed to eat the most of it should be helped most abundantly to the meat, which was to follow.

"It need not be said that neither the winner nor his competitors found much room for meat at the close of their contest; and so the domestic economy of the arrangement was very apparent."

Quincy, as a young Harvard law student, stopped by several times a week in summer to talk and read to the former President. He found the visits delightful. Indeed, the Adams of the cold and austere public mien was never more relaxed than he was at his country home in Quincy.

The original house, a small part of the present building, was built probably in 1731 by Major Leonard Vassall, a wealthy West Indian sugar planter who lived in Cambridge and apparently used it for a summer place.

His daughter, Mrs. Anna Borland, who was a Loyalist during the Revolution, abandoned the house to leave with the British forces when they evacuated Boston in 1776. For a while it was used as a haven for rebel refugees fleeing the war zones.

Mrs. Borland returned to reclaim the house after the Revolution and John Adams, then in Europe as the first American ambassador to London, purchased it for 600 pounds through the good offices of the Cotton Tufts of Weymouth, his wife Abigail's cousin.

The Adamses were about to return to the United States after seven years abroad and Abigail was concerned that John's books and papers and the furnishings they had acquired in Europe would not fit into their old farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill where they lived before.

The deal was closed on Sept. 26, 1787, and the deed is still on file in the Suffolk County Registry of Deeds in which the Adams purchase is specified as a house, barn and other buildings on seven acres of land with some 76 acres more scattered around the North Precinct of Braintree.

There are indications that Abigail was first disappointed with her purchase. It was a lot smaller than she remembered it.

"In height and breadth it feels like a wren's house," she wrote to her daughter, Abigail, the wife of Col. William S. Smith, "Let Col. Smith come without heels to his shoes or he will not be able to walk upright."

Abigail and John Adams moved into the house, which they named "Peacefield," after his retirement from the presidency in 1801 and lived there until they died.

It was from the "Old House," as the family called it, that John Adams carried on his long and increasingly warm correspondence with his old rival, Thomas Jefferson of Virginia, who had succeeded him in the presidency. In retirement, they became firm friends as they outlasted their contemporaries.

"Thomas Jefferson lives," whispered John Adams as he lay dying in the Old House. He was wrong. Jefferson, in far away Monticello, Va., had preceded him in death by a few hours on the same day.

It was July 4, 1826, the 50th anniversary of the Declaration of Independence.

The Old House which served as summer White House for two presidents, was home to four generations of the Adams family, the last, Brooks Adams, dying in February, 1927. It was taken over by the U.S. National Park Service in 1946 to become the Adams Mansion National Historic Site.

The site at 135 Adams St. is open from April 19 to Nov. 10 daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The last full tour is at 4 p.m. Admission is $2 for adults and children over 16, and includes admission to the Adams Birthplaces within seven days. Tours should be arranged at the Visitor Center, 1250 Hancock St.

THE FIRST PARISH CHURCH

First Parish Church

Where 2 Presidents, Their Wives Are Entombed

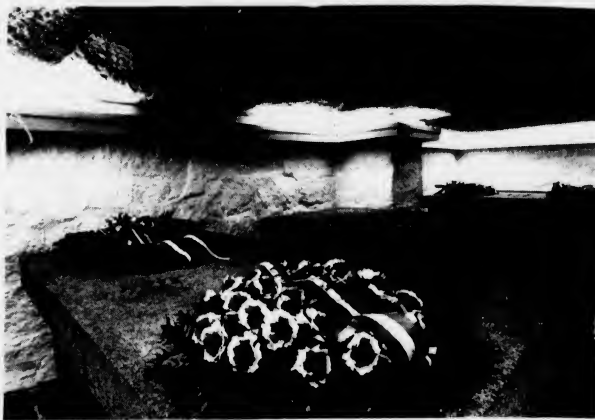

In 1949, when the present First Parish Church building, the Old Stone Temple, was 121 years old, it was ruled officially that the church is older than the city itself and the town before it. It was then that the late historian William Churchill Edwards was called upon to resolve a minor dispute that involved the rounding of the corners of the church lot in downtown Quincy.

"Almost the first subject to which the minds of the early settlers of our country were turned after they landed here was the formation of a church," said Edwards.

The first church in these parts was established as a branch of the Church of Boston in 1636. It became a church in its own right in 1639. The Mount Wollaston section of Boston was incorporated as the town of Braintree on May 23, 1640. Ergo, the church came first!

Quincy's first house of worship, the branch of the Church of Boston, was called the "Chapel of Ease," and if it was neglected by early historians it was because its first pastor, the Rev. John Wheelwright, his sister-in-law, Anne Hutchinson, and others were banished from the Massachusetts Bay Colony for heresy.

The new church, the one that lasted, was gathered by covenant on Sept. 26, 1639, and it was holding services in its third meeting house in 1732 when its pastor was the Rev. John Hancock, father of the bold first signer of the Declaration of Independence. Son John also was a member.

The affairs of the church and the town of Quincy were one and the same until 1824 when church and state were separated in Massachusetts and the Congregational Society was established to handle parochial matters.

The old Hancock meeting house was still standing, although a little run down, on the south lawn of the present church lot in 1822 when former President John Adams deeded the interest from certain of his lands and granite from his pastures to build a stone temple.

It was completed in Greek revival style at a cost of $30,488.56—which was some $3,000 less than architect Alexander Parrish's estimate and dedicated Nov. 12, 1828, with John Quincy Adams, the sixth President of the United States holding Pew No. 1.

Even before the church was dedicated, the mortal remains of his benefactors, John and Abigail Adams, were transferred to tombs in the crypt of the church and, in 1852, the bodies of John Quincy Adams and his wife, Louisa, joined them.

It is the only church in the United States in which two Presidents are buried. The only other church in which a President is buried is the Episcopal Cathedral in Washington, D.C., where President Woodrow Wilson is entombed.

An active Unitarian Universalist Church, it is open to the public for tours daily from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. through Sunday, Nov. 10. Admission is $2; those under 16 are admitted free. For further information, call 773-0062 or the church office at 773-1290.

Why We Pronounce It 'Quin-zee'

Why do we pronounce Quincy "Quin-zee" when just about everyone else in the country refers to it as "Quin-see?"

There are 19 other Quincys in the U.S., but they pronounce it "Quin-see." Can they be right and we be wrong?

Not according to Quincy's late city historian, William C. Edwards who never budged an inch whenever the argument ever came up. And it still comes up.

The reason we pronounce it "Quin-zee" is very simple.

"That's the way the Quincy family pronounced it," he used to explain.

"The original Quincy family which settled here at Mount Wollaston pronounced it 'Quin-zee,' including Col. John Quincy after whom Quincy, Mass.—the first Quincy—was named in 1792."

Apparently, all 19 other Quincys in the U.S. were named after John Quincy Adams.

And, apparently the early settlers of those communities thought John Quincy pronounced it John "Quin-see."

Quincy Was Almost Hancock

If some of the early settlers had their way, you would be living in the city of Hancock today instead of the city of Quincy.

Quincy, like George Washington, was born on Feb. 22.

On Feb. 22, 1792, the General Court of Massachusetts passed an act incorporating the North Precinct of Old Braintree as the separate town of Quincy.

But, just before that, quite a few of the residents wanted the new town named after native-son John Hancock instead of Boston-born Colonel John Quincy.

Colonel Quincy, who had represented Old Braintree in the General Court, was the great-grandfather of President John Quincy Adams.

Many people today think Quincy was named after the sixth President but the honor actually goes to his great-grandfather.

John Hancock, who was born in the North Precinct, was governor of Massachusetts when the General Court passed the act incorporating the new town as Quincy. He signed the act the following day.

But at the first town meeting of the new town in May, a petition was presented to change the name from Quincy to Hancock in honor of the patriot and first signer of the Declaration of Independence. The move was finally defeated after a stormy verbal battle.

Opponents argued that Hancock was still alive and that the honor should go to a distinguished-but-deceased-person.

Colonel Quincy met those requirements. He was both distinguished and deceased.

He had represented Old Braintree in the General Court from 1717 to 1741, 12 of those years as Speaker of the House. He died in 1767 at age 77, two days after John Quincy Adams was born.

Quincy became a city June 11, 1888. But a lot of people will go right on thinking Quincy was named after John Quincy Adams.

Abigail Adams Wife, Mother Of Presidents

Mrs. John Adams, the former Abigail Smith of Weymouth, is the only woman to be wife of one president and mother of another — and she could have been grandmother of a vice president.

Husband John was chief executive from 1797 to 1801; son John Quincy occupied the White House from 1825 to 1829 and grandson Charles Francis Adams ran for vice president on the Free Soil ticket in 1848.

An early advocate of women's rights, Abigail Adams once wrote to her husband, John:

"In the new code of laws which I suppose it will be necessary for you to make, I desire you would remember the ladies and be more generous and favorable to them your ancestors.

"Do not put such unlimited power into the hands of the husbands. Remember, all men would be tyrants if they could."

Abigail (Smith) Adams was the only woman to be the wife of one President and mother of another.

She was the wife of John Adams, our second President.

John Adams did live to see his son become President in 1825.

Quincy Homestead

John Hancock's Declaration Of Love

An aura of romance surrounds the stately old house that is set back in the trees from the corner of Hancock St. and Butler Rd., on the banks of Furnace Brook.

There is the wallpaper with its blue cupids and pink flowers that was imported from France for the wedding of Dorothy Quincy, the vivacious daughter of the house, to Quincy-born John Hancock, a patriot on the run with a price on his head.

There are the words "You I Love and You alone," addressed by Hancock to his beloved Dorothy and scratched on a window pane with his diamond ring just before he fled to Lexington on the eve of the Revolution.

And there are the secret chambers and passageways, used, it was said, to hide fugitive patriots during the Revolution and, at an earlier date, even certain Englishmen fleeing a charge of regicide in the death of King Charles I.

Parts of the house were built in 1685 by Col. Edmund Quincy, the second of the name, on land that was granted to an earlier Edmund in 1638. The major part was built in 1706 by Edmund the third. (There were six Edmunds in all, four in a direct line; two nephews.)

beautiful daughters around whom swirled a whole future generation of judges, generals and merchant kings.

The undisputed belle of the household was Dorothy, the coquettish youngest of the eight Quincy children, whose troth was soon plighted to John Hancock, the wealthy young businessman from Boston who was already becoming known as a leader of the rebels.

Tradition has it that they were to have been married in the north parlor of the Quincy homestead with its French cupid wallpaper when Revolution intervened and John had to flee with the British on his heels.

Eventually, they were wed Aug. 28, 1775, at the home of Thaddeus Burr, uncle of Aaron Burr (later Vice President of the United States) in Fairfield, Conn.

After the Revolution and the death of Edmund the fourth in 1788 the old house passed from the Quincy family. The Hancocks wanted nothing to do with it. Their only son, John George Washington Hancock, was killed in a skating accident at age 9 while on a visit in 1787.

The house was acquired in 1904 by the Massachusetts Society of Colonial Dames, who restored it with vintage furniture, utensils and clothing, and gave it to the state with the proviso that the Dames continue to run it.

A Third Generation Continues Our Traditions.

Quincy has changed a great deal since Sweeney Funeral Home was established in 1917. But, it's nice to know some things will never change. Like the observance of traditional values and customs.

At Sweeney Funeral Homes, older residents are quick to notice the subtle reminders of yesteryear, such as the grey gloves our funeral director still wears. Like the characteristic top hat and tails that our founder, Dennis Sweeney, wore over 30 years ago, they reflect our Tradition. One that has been built on a dignified and instinctive concern for the city's bereaved families for three generations.

Today, our founder's grand-nephew, Dennis S. Sweeney has continued the family's philosophy of maintaining a beautiful, home-like atmosphere.

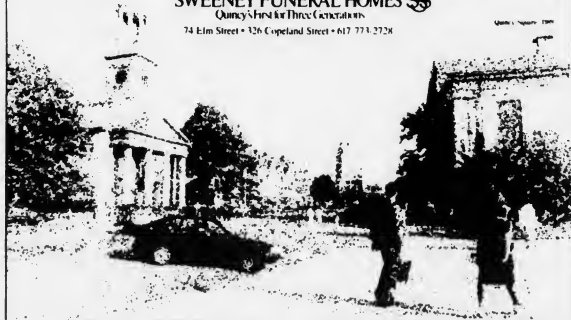

And like his namesake, who started pre-arrangements in the 1940s, Dennis believes in helping residents to plan for the future. Pre-planning means that this financial decision is not left for a family to decide while they are attempting to cope with a major personal loss. It's a difficult time, a time when family members are least able to make the wisest choice.

Sweeney Funeral Homes has been helping South Shore residents with difficult decisions for over 70 years. Call Dennis Sweeney at (617) 773-2728 for a free consultation. There's no time like the present.

John Quincy Adams:

Lookout For Spying On British Ships

Abigail Adams stood with her great-uncle, Col. Josiah Quincy, in a window of his mansion overlooking Wollaston Beach and watched the tall masts of 170 ships stand slowly out to sea. It was March 17, 1776. The British were evacuating Boston.

But even in triumph there was tragedy.

Aboard the departing ships were more than 1,000 Loyalists, Americans who had chosen King above country, and one of them was Abigail's cousin, Samuel Quincy, the Colonel's only remaining son, an avowed Tory.

"I take a long farewell," his sister, Hannah, wrote to him for one last time. "Let it not be published that a brother of such brothers fled from his country. Can you expect to walk uprightly now? Can you take fire in your bosom and not be burned?"

Two of Col. Josiah Quincy's sons had died young. Now he had no more.

But there was no time for regrets. The work of revolution had begun. The second floor of the house at what is now 20 Muirhead St., Wollaston, was a lookout from which the 66-year-old Colonel spied on British ship movements for his friend, Gen. George Washington.

A few months before, Col. Quincy watched the Royal Governor, Gen. Thomas Gage depart and he scratched on a pane of window glass the reminder: "Oct. 10, 1775, General Gage sailed for England with a fair wind."

This time he remained in the window for three days as the British tall ships moved restlessly about the Harbor as if reluctant to leave. Finally, on March 20, the last of them passed through the roadstead and out to sea.

The mansion in Wollaston reached full social flower under the aegis of the Colonel's grandson, the third Josiah, the "Great Mayor" of Boston, president of Harvard and Congressman, who called it "Tranquilla" and used it as his summer home.

It was there that the Marquis de Lafayette visited one Sunday afternoon after dinner with his friend, ex-President John Adams at the Adams Mansion. He carried flowers from the Adams garden for Mrs. Eliza Susan Quincy and her five attractive daughters.

The house was built in 1770 by the old Colonel himself, the first in a line of six Josiahs. It was said that, while most families passed their line from sire to son, the Quincys went from 'Siah to 'Siah.

But, while there were six Josephs and innumerable Edmunds, the city was named for yet another member of the prolific family — Col. John Quincy, the great-grandfather of John Quincy Adams, sixth president of the United States.

JOSIAH QUINCY HOUSE

The Josiah Quincy House is open to the public from June 1 to Oct. 15 Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m. Tours are conducted on the hour and the last tour begins at 4 p.m. Visits may be made at other times by appointment. Admission is $2 for those over 16. All Quincy residents and SPNEA members are admitted free.

How Many Miles From Boston?

Stone mile markers across Hancock Street from each other indicate that the traveler is both 7 1/4 and 10 miles from Boston. And both are correct.

The 10-mile marker was placed on the Old Coast Road, one of the oldest highways in the United States still in existence, which went from Boston to Plymouth in 1639 by way of inland Milton.

The 7 1/4-mile marker was raised after the first bridge over the Neponset River was built in 1803, creating the Neponset Turnpike, which is today Hancock St. in North Quincy and Wollaston.

Abigail Adams Cairn

The Smoke Could Be Seen Over Bunker Hill

Abigail Adams was awakened at dawn in the farmhouse at the foot of Penn's Hill by the sound of far-off guns. All through the sweltering morning of June 17, 1775, as she hustled about with the chores, the dull boom of cannon intruded on her consciousness.

Riders on the Coast Road to Plymouth, stopping at the farmhouse for a drink of water, told her of a great battle underway on Breed's Hill in Charlestown.

One of them brought word that Dr. Joseph Warren had been killed in the fighting and little Abby, age 10, burst into tears, and John Quincy, nearly 8, felt bewildered and sad, for Dr. Warren was the Adams family doctor in Boston.

In the afternoon, Abigail could stand it no longer. Taking Abby and John Quincy by the hand, she walked up the Coast Road to the top of Penn's Hill and climbed up on the rocks for a better view.

The panorama of the Bay, a shimmering blue in the sunshine, spread out before them, the tiny houses on the three hills of Boston and, beyond, the black smoke rising in billows.

"Good God," exclaimed Abigail, "they are burning Charlestown!"

The scene etched itself forever in John Quincy's memory.

The early days of the Revolution were times of turmoil in Old Braintree and its North Precinct, which was later called Quincy.

Abigail's husband, John, was away most of the time at the Continental Congress in Philadelphia, leaving 31-year-old Abigail to manage the farm and look to the needs of four small children: Abigail, John Quincy, Charles, 5, and Thomas Boylston, 3.

There were days of alarm as the British, penned up in Boston by the brand new Continental Army, foraged up and down the coast for supplies. Refugees from occupied Boston and the inner towns of Dorchester and Roxbury sometimes slept in the kitchen and in the fields.

As the wife of a member of Congress, Abigail was a center of attention. The house on the Coast Road was a favorite stopping place for travelers to Plymouth. Politicians up from Philadelphia made it a point to stop by for a visit with John Adams' wife.

Abigail was invited to visit Gen. George Washington's headquarters at Winter Hill. The aristocratic Washington was suspect among New Englanders. He was a Virginian; he was an Anglican; and, it was said, he held slaves. But John Adams liked him and Abigail was soon charmed.

One day, young John Quincy came home to find his Uncle Elihu melting down Abigail's pewter spoons in the kitchen to make bullet molds. He looked at his mother and she looked back at him and something indefinable passed between them.

"Do you wonder," wrote the sixth President of the United States some 68 years later, "that a boy of 7 who witnessed this scene should be a patriot."

In 1896, where the old Coast Road (now Franklin St.) meets Viden Rd. atop Penn's Hill, a stone cairn was built to mark the spot where Abigail and young John Quincy watched the Battle of Bunker Hill. It is open to the public and free of charge.

The YMCA is a great place
For some kids, it's the only great place to go.

The truth is, because of family problems or low incomes, a lot of kids can't afford the opportunities to go places and be with adults who can give them the caring attention that they need.

That's why the YMCA is so important. We give kids the positive experiences they need to grow up prepared for happy and productive lives. But we always run out of money before we run out of kids.

Support the place that supports kids and families. The YMCA

Adams Academy

On Site Of John Hancock's Birthplace

By modern standards, the boarding house at the corner of Hancock and Depot Sts. had all the aspects of a genteel prison.

Residents were forbidden to leave between 7 p.m. and 7 a.m. They could not enter or leave at any time except by the hall door. They were banned from pool halls and bars. Smoking materials also were forbidden to them.

In exchange for good behavior, plus tuition ranging from $75 to $150 a year, they were given the best prep school education of the day, for they were students at Adams Academy, which flourished from 1872 to 1907 in Quincy.

The academy was a gift of John Adams, the second President of the United States, who always had his checkbook ready to fill the spiritual and educational needs of the citizens of his beloved Quincy.

The trust fund, nourished by "rents, profits and emoluments" from certain Adams-owned properties, was set up in the Adams will of 1822, but it was not until 1869 that the fund was deemed large enough to start construction.

The location was specified by Adams himself as the corner of Adams and Hancock Sts., site of the birthplace of his childhood friend, John Hancock, the first signer of the Declaration of Independence.

The doors opened to the first students, 24 of them, on Sept. 4, 1872. Five years later, the academy reached a peak enrollment of 154 with an international student body—25 from Quincy, four from Washington, D.C., 125 from 14 states, two from England and one from Chile.

It had one of the earliest prep school football teams, too, recording a tie with the Resolutes of Boston on Oct. 21, 1876, a scant seven years after Princeton and Rutgers played the first college game. It whipped Andover three times from 1877-79.

The admissions catalogue specified that applicants be "well prepared in the usual studies of good grammar school" and warned that "no pupils are desired to give them a collegiate education."

The best known headmaster was Dr. William Everett, once acclaimed as one of the seven smartest men in the world. He ran the academy with a firm hand from 1878 to 1893 and again from 1897 to ADAMS ACADEMY, now home of the Quincy Historical Society.

1907. From 1893 to 1897, he was a U.S. congressman from Lynn.

Dr. Everett, an amiable if sometimes waspish eccentric, was widely known as the man who hated Abraham Lincoln. He had reason. His father was Edward Everett, whose masterful oration at Gettysburg was over-shadowed by Lincoln's notes scribbled on the back of an envelope.

It was Dr. Everett, who signaled the passing of Adams Academy—and many other 19th Century classical prep schools—at graduation exercises in 1907 when he said that "unless someone comes forward and planks down $50,000, the academy will be closed."

Nobody did and on June 22, 1907, the Adams Academy officially closed its doors.

The building today is occupied by the Quincy Historical Society, which maintains a museum and research library in the old classrooms as well as an expanded gift shop. The museum and gift shop are open all year, Monday through Friday from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. The library is open Monday and Wednesday from 9:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m., Tuesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday from 1 to 4 p.m. or by appointment. It is closed Sunday and holidays. There is a $1 fee for non-members; children age 12 and under are admitted free.

BANK OF BOSTON

John Quincy Adams: The Old Flame Still Burned

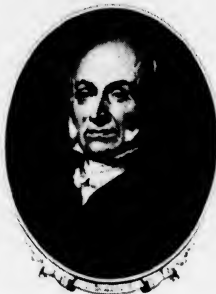

The old man's bitterness glowed from every word as he penned them in his diary on June 17, 1843, the day the Bunker Hill Monument was dedicated.

"What a name in the annals of mankind is Bunker Hill! What a day was the 17th of June, 1775! And what a burlesque upon them both is an oration upon them by Daniel Webster!"

The old man despised Webster as a turncoat to his own heritage, one whose compromises had sold out to slavery.

"The ideal associations thundering cannon, which I heard, and the smoke of burning Charlestown, which I saw, on that awful day .. How could I have witnessed all this at once, without an unbecoming burst of indignation.

"Daniel Webster is a heartless traitor to the cause of freedom; John Tyler [the President] is a slave-monger. What have these to do with the Quincy granite pyramid on the brow of Bunker Hill?"

"I stayed home .."

The old flame still burned in John Quincy Adams at 75.

First Iron Works

Steel Industry Born Here In 1644

It failed after nine years of effort and since failure was anathema in a growing America, perhaps that is why the site and even the memory of the first commercial iron blast furnace in the United States was lost for so long.

It flourished, if that is the word, from 1644 to 1653 on the banks of the Mount Wollaston River in a section of Old Braintree called, "the Woods." It left its name on the river, now Furnace Brook in West Quincy.

Iron was an important commodity in Colonial Massachusetts, particularly for nails and pots and pans. Unfortunately, iron utensils had to be imported from England, a costly process for the penny-wise colonists.

With this in mind, John Winthrop Jr., son of the governor of the Massachusetts Bay colony [Did someone cry "Nepotism?"], went to London and formed the "Company of Undertakers for the Ironworks in New England." He, of course, was the local agent.

The Company gave Winthrop a thousand pounds of capital and a work crew of indentured servants, many of whom ran away when they heard they were going to the wilds of America. Jail was better than that!

When, after a search from Maine to Plymouth, he decided to locate in Quincy, Winthrop was also granted 3,000 acres of land, with subsidiary land rights elsewhere in the colony, and a 21-year monopoly.

The operation was deemed of such importance that the iron workers were given exemption from militia duty, this at a time when war was imminent with the Narragansett Indians and with Ninigret, the sachem of the Niantics.

The first iron was turned out in 1644, but young Winthrop was fired the next year to be succeeded by Richard Leader. It is interesting to note that one of America's earliest magnates toiled for a salary of 100 pounds a year.

The ore from which iron was blasted on the banks of Furnace Brook came from the swamps and bogs. It was not a high quality product. Water power from a dam thrown across the Brook was inadequate. Quincy iron ore proved to be more expensive than the imported kind.

The Company of Undertakers appealed for fresh money in 1646 and apparently there were enough investors ready to send good money after bad because the furnace was still in operation in 1650 when the Scotch Prisoners arrived.

The Scots were rugged Highlanders, soldiers in the army of the future King Charles II who were captured in the Battle of Dunbar. They suffered the fate common to most 17th Century prisoners of war.

Cromwell shipped 272 of them to New England, cheap labor in an effort to make Quincy iron works a paying proposition. It didn't work. The Company of Undertakers went bankrupt in 1653 and "the Woods" went back to the bear and the deer.

Meanwhile, with the same Richard Leader as agent, construction began on a second iron works on the North Shore in Saugus in 1646. When it was completed in 1650 it was recognized as the first integrated iron industry in America.

The remains of the John Winthrop Jr. Blast Furnace are located in Hall Cemetery on Crescent St., West Quincy.

City Hall Seat Of Government For 152 Years

Daniel and Hannah French deeded the land to the town of Quincy for $1,000 with the stipulation that it "shall not be used for any other purpose than as a place for a Town House and for the said Inhabitants."

And, with a few minor transgressions of that vow, the solid structure of Quincy granite on Quincy Square has been just that for the past 152 years, the nerve center of government for the town and then the city.

It was the great hall on the second floor that the popular John Quincy Adams II, grandson of a President of the United States, held forth as town moderator for many years and, with his brother, Charles Francis Adams Jr., gave informal direction to town affairs.

One of the earliest ordinances passed by the first City Council on March 8, 1889 was the adoption of the City Seal emblazoned with the four most significant dates in Quincy's history:

1625, for the first settlement on Mount Wollaston; 1640, for its separation from Boston as the town of Braintree; 1792, for its separation from Braintree as the town of Quincy; and 1888, for its incorporation as a city.

CITY HALL

Designed by the architect Solomon Willard—who received $280 for drawing up the plans and superintending construction for five months—the City Hall was completed and occupied for the first time on Nov. 1, 1844.

It cost exactly $19,115.93 to build, including 88 cents to John Briesler for lead to seal the chimney.

In 1979, when a 3 and one half story reflective glass addition was built behind the old City Hall, the cost was $1.9 million.

QUINCY RECYCLING PROGRAM PAYS OFF

Quincy's recycling and leaf composting programs are great for several reasons.

First of all, recycling and composting preserve precious natural resources.

Second, several recyclable items and leaves are now BANNED by state law from Massachusetts landfills and incinerators.

Third, every ton we recycle and compost saves the city $47.50! That's how much the city pays Browning-Ferris Industries (B.F.I.) for trash disposal.

Fourth, the money we have been composting has been used to cover the city's old landfill. THIS YEAR ALONE we will save $125,000 because we won't have to buy as much land.

With the city's contract with B.F.I. requires B.F.I. to share with us the revenue they receive from the sale of recycled items. In just the last six months alone, Quincy has earned $57,000! This is because the value of recycled paper is currently very high.

To take advantage of all these benefits, Quincy residents are STRONGLY encouraged to participate in the city's recycling program. Remember, what you can for the environment and to save Quincy a great amount of money. For more information about the Quincy recycling program, please call 770-BINS.

THE GRANITE RAILWAY

The Granite Railway First Commerical Railroad In U.S.

It was the darndest looking contraption that many among the distinguished gathering had ever seen.

Each of the three wagons had four wheels, six and one half feet in diameter, surmounted by a smaller gear wheel which was used to raise and lower the cargo platform that was slung low between the wheels.

It rode on foot-high wooden rails, topped by iron plate, which rested on stone sleepers or cross ties, placed eight feet apart and firmly supported on crushed granite to a depth beyond the frost line.

On Saturday, Oct. 7, 1826, the wagons were laden with 16 tons of the finest Quincy granite and the opening day guests were properly amazed when a single horse moved the whole thing with ease more than three miles to a special wharf on the Neponset River.

The granite blocks, a particularly hard and weather-resistant stone capable of taking a brilliant polish, were en route to Charlestown, where they were building a monument to the Battle of Bunker Hill.

The Granite Railway, the first such commercial venture in the United States, was built specifically to transport stone for the Bunker Hill Monument.

That it became successful, and a model for others around the country, is a tribute to three vastly dissimilar men, the engineer Gridley Bryant, the architect Solomon Willard and the financier, Colonel Thomas Handasyd Perkins.

Bryant was 27 at the time but already an engineer of note. He invented the eight wheeled railroad car and, when a fellow named Ross Winans of Baltimore sued to establish a patent on it, Bryant was able to prove his claim to the satisfaction of the U.S. Supreme Court.

Willard, then 43, was a great bear of a man, gentle, obliging, industrious. Frivolity, it was said, was alien to him and he was never known to run. He could be crotchety, too. He was a carpenter turned wood-carver, turned stone-carver and, finally architect.

Perkins was the autocratic, 52-year-old merchant king of Boston who was said to have been offered the post of Secretary of the Navy by President Washington and turned it down with the observation that he owned more ships than the Navy.

It was Perkins who lobbied the Railway's charter through a puzzled and obstinate State Legislature, which had never been called upon to incorporate a commercial railroad before. It was Perkins who financed it, too, largely with his own money.

Even in its early days, the Granite Railway was a tourist attraction of some magnitude.

Daniel Webster, who used to stop off for a pick-me-up in Quincy en route from Boston and Washington to his home in Marshfield, viewed it and decided that it would never succeed because of the frost that would form on the rails in the winter.

The President of the United States, a local boy named John Quincy Adams, visited in August, 1827, got caught in a thunderstorm and took shelter in a shed where Willard's stone-cutters were hacking away at monument granite.

A group of visitors were riding up the Railway's incline in an empty car on July 25, 1832, when the chain broke and catapulted them over a 40-foot cliff. One was killed in what may have been the first railroad fatality in the United States.

The Granite Railway Co. survived until 1870, some 27 years after the Bunker Hill Monument was finished, when most of its track was taken over by the Old Colony Railroad, which in turn became a division of the New York, New Haven and Hartford.

Today much of the roadbed, over which freight moved commercially on rails for the first time in America, is buried under the macadam of the Southeast Expressway.

The old Railway incline has been restored and is located at the dead end of Mullin Ave. in West Quincy. It is open to the public year around, 24 hours a day. There is no admission charge.

Moswetuset Hummock

'Birthplace Of Massachusetts'

The Indians saw it was a hill (wetuset) shaped like an arrowhead (mos) so they called it "Moswetuset" and when English tongues got through mangling the word it came out "Massachusetts," which became the name of the bay and then the state.

The little wooded hillock near the junction of East Squantum St. and Quincy Shore Drive was once the seat of the sachem Chickatabot, who comes down through the pages of Quincy as a rather pathetic figure.

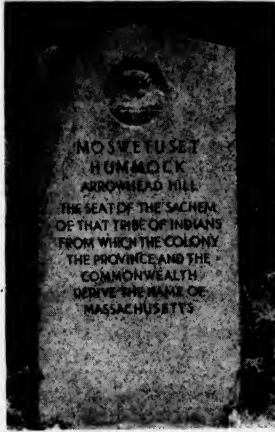

He was the chief of the Moswetuset Indians, a once great tribe that occupied the coast north of Plymouth.

A few years before, under the great sachem Nanepashemet, the Moswetuset had been able to field some 3,000 warriors for a war with the Nanepashemet was killed.

Then came the plaque.

In two years the mighty Moswetuset were all but wiped out. No more than 60 of them were left to till their fields on the banks of the Neponset River. Sachem Chickatabot fled his home on the hill in Wollaston and took refuge on Moswetuset Hummock.

That was the situation in 1621 when Capt. Myles Standish landed from a shallop with an exploring party of Plymouth Pilgrims that included the Indian guide Squanto (or Tsquantum), whose name was given to the peninsula that stuck out in the bay.

The tragic Chickatabot died not long after the Pilgrims' visit and we were succeeded as sachem by his son, Josiah

Wompatuck, a boy who knew a good deal when he saw one.

Wompatuck sold what was left of his virtually deserted tribal lands to a group of whites for 12 pounds, 10 shillings. The lands included most of what is today the city of Quincy and the towns of Braintree, Randolph and Holbrook.

MOSWETUSET HUMMOCK

Moswetuset Hummock, identified by a marker stone and maintained in its natural state, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

Hancock Cemetery

Patriots, Early Settlers, Intrigue Buried Here

Henry, the first Adams in Quincy, is buried there. So is the Rev. John Hancock, father of the first signer of the Declaration of Independence. And Colonel John Quincy, for whom the city is named.

But of all the 800 graves in the Hancock Cemetery, the Old Burying Ground of Colonial Quincy, most intriguing is one marked by a tombstone bearing this cryptic epitaph:

"Erected to the memory of John R. Grieve: Died Nov. 12, 1850, age 22 years, and Hannah Banks, his wife, died Nov. 12, 1850, age 15 years. Both of Zanesville, Ohio. Deluded by the writings of A.J. Davis."

The mystery of John and Hannah has never been fully solved.

They came to Quincy in 1850, not as man and wife, but as male cousins, John Green and George Sands. They obtained work in a shoe factory but rarely left their lodgings on Elm St., spending long hours reading books on spiritualism.

Co-Workers thought that George Sands looked frail, almost effeminate. It was widely suspected that "he" was a girl. A scheme was devised to test the theory.

One day at lunch one of the shoe workers tossed George an apple. A man would catch it by closing his legs; a woman by spreading her skirt. Guess what "George" did!

Humiliated, John and Hannah never went back to the factory. Nor did they ever return to the house on Elm St. Their frozen bodies were found next spring by rabbit hunters on Penn's Hill, locked in a loving embrace.

Several months later, the father of John Grieve arrived from Ohio to bury the young couple. It was he who directed the words to be chiselled on the headstone. He explained no further.

A.J. Davis was never identified for sure. But Andrew Jackson Davis, a spiritualist, hypnotist and faith healer, was then practicing in Boston.

Among the belongings found in the Elm St. lodgings were these words, written by 15-year-old Hannah Banks:

"To the oppressed and downtrodden, to the suffering and afflicted, I would cry out...Death is only an event, only a circumstance in the eternal life experience of the human soul. Death is simply a birth into a new and perfect state of existence."

Not far from the grave of John and Hannah is a tomb bearing words that cry out of an earlier injustice:

"Three precious friends under this tombstone lie

"Patterns to aged, youth and infancy.

"A great mother, her learned son, with child.

"The first and least went free. He was exiled.

"In love to Christ, this country, and dear friends.

"He left his own, cross'd seas and for amends

"Was here extoll'd, and envy'd all in a breath,

"His noble consort leaves, is drawn to death,

"Stranger changes may befall us ere we die,

"Blest they who will arrive eternity.

"God grant some names, O thou New England's friend.

"Don't sooner fade than thine, if times don't mend."

The tomb with its hidden message contains the family of the Rev. Leonard Hoar, third president of Harvard College, a man too liberal for his times.

He was forced by the General Court of the Massachusetts bay Colony to resign at the instigation of religious opponents and jealous colleagues for permitting Harvard to "languish and decay." Eight months later, in November 1675, he was dead at 45.

In 1975, the same General Court, now of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, righted the 300-year-old wrong done to the Rev. Mr. Hoar by "proclaiming and confirming his innocence of any misdeeds while president of Harvard College."

The cemetery, on Hancock St., Quincy Sq., next to City Hall, is open to the public. There is no admission charge.

John Adams 'Father'

U.S., State Constitution Both Born Here

Quincy, birthplace of John Adams, John Quincy Adams and John Hancock, also has claim to the birth of the U.S. Constitution.

The seed for this precious document was planted here.

The U.S. Constitution was modeled after the Massachusetts Constitution which was written by John Adams, Samuel Adams and James Bowdoin in the law office of the John Quincy Adams birthplace in Quincy.

There is every reason to believe that John Adams did not want to go the Massachusetts Constitution Convention in Cambridge in 1779.

He had arrived home only seven days before on the French frigate La Sensible after nearly 18 months in Paris helping to negotiate a commercial and military alliance with France. He was in such a rush to get home that he apparently landed the day before La Sensible reached Boston by rowing ashore from Nantasket Roads.

He missed his wife, Abigail, terribly, and she him.

"One was angry, another was full of Greif, and the third with Melancholy, so that I burnt them all," he wrote to her from Passy on Dec. 18, 1778, listing his complaints with her most recent letters. "If you write me in this style I shall leave of writing intirely, it kills me.

"Am I not wretched Enough, in this Banishment, without this? What Course shall I take to convince you that my Heart is warm? I beg you would never more write to me in such a strain for it really makes me unhappy."

"How lonely are my days?" she wrote on a Sunday evening, Dec. 27, "How solitary are my Nights? How insupportable the Idea that 3000 leagues, and the vast ocean now divide us—but divide only our persons for the Heart of my Friend is in the Bosom of his partner."

Somewhere on the vast ocean the two letters passed each other.

Paris and the dissolute court of Louis XVI held small appeal to the Puritan in John Adams, even when his closest everyday companions were Dr. Benjamin Franklin, still with an eye for the ladies at age 73, and the swashbuckling Capt. John Paul Jones, half patriot, half pirate, who had just taken command of the leaky old East Indiaman he had renamed Bon Homme Richard.

The American colonies, newly reborn as the United States of America, were going through the most dismal period of the War for Independence. Inflation was rampant: butcher's meat, a dollar to eight shillings a pound; flour, fifty dollars a hundredweight. The news from the fighting front was of death, privation and horror.

Like many Braintree wives whose husbands were away at war, Abigail Adams was forced into the unaccustomed role of head of the household, a function she filled with determination.

"I cannot avoid sometimes repining that the gifts of fortune were not bestowed upon us, that I might have enjoyed the happiness of spending my days with my partner," she wrote, "but as it is, I think it my duty to attend with frugality and economy to our own private affairs; and if I cannot add to our little substance, yet see to it that it is not diminished."

She abstained from drinking black market tea, allowing herself one tiny complaint: "I should like a little green (tea), but they say there is none to be had here. I only wish it for a medicine, as a relief to a nervous pain in my head to which I am sometimes subject."

John Adams attended the opening session of the Constitutional Convention in Cambridge on Wednesday, June 1, 1779. On Saturday, he was named to a committee of 30 to prepare the declaration of rights and the constitution. On Monday, the committee delegated the task to a subcommittee of three, John and Samuel Adams; and James Bowdoin.

Thus it was that John Adams wound up in the law office of his home at the foot of Penn's Hill, paired with his firebrand cousin, Sam, and his ailing friend, James Bowdoin, to write a Constitution of the United States.

The patient, hard-working John Adams, of course, did most of the work.

"I was by the Convention put upon the Committee—by the Committee upon the subcommittee—and by the subcommittee appointed a sub subcommittee—so that I had the honor to be principal Engineer," he wrote to his friend, Edmund Jennings. Payroll records indicate that he was paid 90 pounds for his work.

The so-called "Adams draft" of the Massachusetts Constitution was accepted by the Convention with a few alterations but by that time John Adams was long gone back to Europe, this time to help negotiate a treaty of peace with Britain and serve as America's first minister to London. He did not see the farm at the foot of Penn's Hill again for another eight years.

But he was immensely heartened by these words from the pen of his ever-loving Abigail, written on Oct. 15, 1780:

"Our Massachusetts Constitution is read with admission in New York and pronounced by the Royal Governor as the best republican form he ever saw." Quincy Adams Birthplace, Franklin St., Quincy.

Amelia Earhart, Duchess Of Windsor Had Quincy Ties

Amelia Earhart and the Duchess of Windsor are names in Quincy's more modern history.

The famed aviatrix who disappeared in the Pacific on an around-the-world flight in 1937 learned to fly here in the 1920s. And, the future Duchess for whom a king would give up his throne, lived here in Wollaston while married to a young Navy lieutenant stationed at a Naval air school in Squantum in 1917.

A resident of Medford at the time, Earhart was one of five financial backers of the Dennison Airport established on a nine-acre marshland tract at Quincy Shore Drive and East Squantum St.

The Beechwood Community Life Center is now located on part of the site across from historic Moswetuset Hummock where the Moswetuset Indians settled and from which the name Massachusetts is derived.

Earhart was one of the passengers on the first official flight from the airport Sept. 3, 1927. She must have liked it because a short while later she started taking flying lessons at Dennison.

She later bought a Fokker monoplane from Commander Richard E. Byrd, who would become the famed North Pole explorer. She tested the plane at Dennison and flew it across the Atlantic Ocean, the first woman to accomplish the feat.

The Dennison Airport adjoined the Squantum Naval Reserve Air Base in what is now the Marina Bay area.

Prior to the Naval Reserve Base, the Massachusetts Naval Militia had a training field there which in 1917 was taken over by the First Naval District as an air training school.

Assigned to head the school was Lt. Earle W. Spencer who was married at the time to the former Wallis Warfield who two marriages later became the Duchess of Windsor when King Edward VIII abdicated his throne in 1936 so he could marry "the woman I love."

While in Quincy, she and Spencer lived in a second floor four-room apartment on Davis St. in Wollaston.

For years, the first name of Capt. Wollaston, the leader of the original settlers of Quincy in 1625, was lost to history.

Only recently did the researches of H. Hobart Holly, historian of the Quincy Historical Society, turn up the information that it probably was Richard.

The Centerpiece Of The U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum

USS Salem: Quincy's Newest Tourist Attraction

The USS SALEM is Quincy's newest tourist attraction.

Built at Quincy's renowned Fore River Shipyard, she became the Flagship of the United States Navy's Sixth Fleet during the Cold War years in the 1950s.

The SALEM is over 700 feet long and carries the heaviest automatic main battery guns in any warship of any navy. As the most powerful gunned warship in the fleet, she was a bulwark of democracy in the Mediterranean and the Caribbean Seas.

She carried a crew of over 1,600 men and traveled at a cruising speed of 35 knots. Today, visitors can tour the Main Deck, Number 3 Turret, Admiral's and Captain's Bridges, and other sources of interest. Guided tours by today's uniformed crew will take guests through the Second Deck where they can see how the SALEM's crew lived and worked.

Of special note are the crew's gallery and bake shop, the barber shop, where one can actually get a haircut when the barber is on duty and the machine shops where the actual work is done to restore the ship. Real sailors will want to see the CIC (Combat Information Center), the nerve center of the ship where she was controlled and fought from; Engine Space Number 1, where her powerful battleship class propulsion system drove her through the sea; and her berthing compartments, where Sailor and Marine lived their lives. A well-stocked Museum Shop is on board in the ship's store where souvenirs and gifts as well as actual artifacts can be purchased.

Senior citizens, school groups, and Boy Scouts and Girl Scouts as well as other organizations are welcome and can reserve tour times in advance if desired. The ship is available for overnight encampments and special activities.

The quarterdeck and other large spaces aboard the ship can be reserved for parties, corporate meetings, dinner functions and other uses. An Operations Specialist can arrange for catering and other amenities to make the SALEM a great place to have a function. Tours are available daily, but large groups (20 or more) should make advance arrangements.

The wintertime will bring special events like the "North Atlantic Cruise" where a weekend-long series of events chronicling what a winter cruise on the SALEM would be like. These events are interpreted by actual former SALEM crew members. There will be period Motion Picture Films and the ever-present "training films" showing on board, as well as plenty of hot coffee.

UNITED STATES NAVAL SHIPBUILDING MUSEUM

Spring, summer and fall are the sun times aboard the ship, and with her awnings rigged, you will be transported to some of the SALEM's many ports of call. A motor whaleboat can take you on a tour of the shipyard where the SALEM and many other great ships were built, and where women played a key role in our nation's defense with their contribution to the war effort. Children and grown-ups alike can ride in a captured enemy tank on the museum ground (there will be a small charge for the boat and tank ride). The Second Marine Division, SALEM Detachment will drill and perform on the parade grounds next to the ship (check ahead for exact date and times), and the Massachusetts Military Research Center will be open for research and viewing its extensive collection of armaments, uniforms, and memorabilia.

The SALEM at the United States Naval Shipbuilding Museum is a wonderful family experience for all. Visit history-rich Quincy, home of two U.S. Presidents, the Granite Industry, and the First Commercial railroad and have a memorable time.

The U.S. Naval Shipbuilding Museum is located at the Fore River Shipyard on Wharf St., Quincy (access from the Rte. 3A traffic rotary). The SALEM is open Sunday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m. (last tour at 6 p.m.) Admission is $5 for adults, and $3 for senior citizens and children. Children ages 3 and younger are free. Flat-heeled shoes or sneakers are recommended. Parking is free. For more information, call the Museum at (617) 479-7900.
